Power Without Wires
How Powerful Is Nature

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

MR. J. P. MORGAN, selling old masters recently, is said to have got more than half a million for one picture. The late Mr. Huntington, of California, paid one million, or more, for a painting known as the "Blue Boy," and very pretty. These prices are respectable, but small compared with the cost of a portrait of King George, presented by the British ambassador to President Roosevelt.

That modern portrait cost the taxpayers of the United States, five thousand million dollars, a new record.

MARC A. ROSE writes for Vincent Astor and Professor Moley a sad story about "the small town banker." He sits at his desk all day, looking at traffic, outside the window and that is all his occupation. The foolish 1929 modern bank across the street folded up more than two years ago. Spiders ornament its costly bronze fittings. The surviving banker's "vaults bulge with cash—but will the borrowers ever come back?"

THEY WILL, if and when the banker, big-town or small-town, decides that it is safe to come out of his "liquidity," borrow and lend. The borrowers are there and eager, like anxious spirits at the gates of paradise. But their collateral, once acceptable, is acceptable no longer. The banker must protect his bank, stockholders, and cash. Six years ago, he would have lent half a million on that new bank. Now he would not dare lend fifty thousand. He would have an empty building on his hands.

Borrowers will return and be able to borrow when this country returns, with reasonable restrictions perhaps, to the methods that created it. These methods did create depressions occasionally, but they all passed and prosperity was greater than ever. We are now trying to invent a better prosperity, guaranteed never to wear out, or to buy our way back to prosperity with tax payers money. Perhaps it can be done: The small-town banker and his customers must wait and see.

NIKOLA TESLA, who did important work in harnessing Niagara power, things he knows how to transmit power, without wires, to any desired distance. He may not actually do it, for he is seventy-nine years old and few great material tasks are accomplished at that age. Even Edison, at eighty, could talk better than he could perform.

But Tesla may point the way for others. Long before the modern talk about "releasing the power in the atom," Tesla sitting in the old Delmonico at 26th street and Fifth avenue, holding a claret glass in his hand—he never drank—said to this writer "If I could release and harness the power that holds together the atoms in that glass it could run half the machinery of the United States."

Men will eventually transmit power through space without wires: and flying machines in that day will pick up the power of hydraulic or other power plants as they fly over them: no heavy load of fuel to carry, no landing to refuel. That will be the beginning of a new flying age.

HOW BIG and powerful could a volcanic or earthquake disturbance be if nature did her worst? What surprises does earth reserve for us, to shake our smug self-approval?

You read of a recent eruption of Krakatoa: Do you remember details of the biggest effort of that volcano within historic times. It came just fifty-two years ago in August, 1883. Two-thirds of the rocky island were blown away, the noise of the explosion

SHERIFF DIRECTED TO PLACE LIQUOR IN COURT CHARGE

JACKSON, Miss., July 13.—(AP)—Hinds county's sheriff was served with a writ of replevin by a federal court officer here today directing him to "surrender" into custody of the federal court 205 cases of bonded whisky, valued at $4,000, which was seized by county officers here several days ago.

At the time of the seizure, Constables Joe Shurden and C. H. Newman arrested Carey Beasley and charged him with violating the state prohibition laws.

The writ of replevin was issued by U. S. District Court Clerk Ben Todd on application of Robert C. Denham who said he acted for the United States Liquor Importers and Distributors, Inc., of New Orleans. The writ was issued on the ground that the liquor was being moved in interstate shipment, and that it had not reached its destination. The raiding officers said they found the liquor stored in a building on Beasley's premises.

Sheriff John W. Roberts refused to surrender the confiscated liquor today, and was advised by his attorney, he said, to await an order from the district judge.

WILSON SUBMITS BILL ELIMINATING EUDORA FLOODWAY

Urges Measure As Substitute For Markham Plan For Boeuf Basin

TWENTY-SIX RESERVOIRS PART OF NEW PROGRAM

Congressman Asks Action By Committee During The Coming Week

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(Special)—Representative Riley J. Wilson, chairman of the house flood control committee, was today prepared to press for action on legislation designed to modify the 1928 flood control program through elimination of the proposed Eudora floodway and substituting for it a series of flood reservoirs in the Arkansas and White river basins.

In the face of opposition of Major General Edward M. Markham, chief of army engineers, Wilson offered the new plan because, he declared, "This is the only course to pursue with any prospect of final results."

Under the terms of the Wilson bill, which he will ask his committee to report next week, the provisions of the Markham plan for the Atchafalaya and Morganza floodways in lower Louisiana and other protection works for the rich sugar bowl area remain intact. Likewise, his measure proposed continued straightening and deepening of the main channel of the Mississippi river to aid in its flood carry.

Principal changes in the Markham plan proposed by the Louisiana representative are elimination of the Eudora floodway east of Macon Ridge; construction of 26 reservoirs in the Arkansas and White basins; and raising of the fuse-plug levee at the head of the Boeuf Basin to the 1928 grade and section.

Wilson estimates that his program would cost approximately $275,000,000, in comparison with the $265,000,000 es-

MAN WANTED HERE IS APPREHENDED

Escaped Convict Arrested In New Mexico After Robbery There

Sheriff Milton Coverdale was notified late last night that Harold Holmes, escaped convict of the Louisiana State penitentiary and wanted by the local sheriff's department for house burglary and the theft of an automobile at Calhoun, has been arrested at Tucumcari, N. M., where he is accused of holding up and robbing attendants of a filling station.

Holmes is also wanted by the Caddo parish sheriff's department for the robbery of a filling station, with a firearm, in Bossier City.

Charges against Holmes in Louisiana and New Mexico arose from offenses committed following his escape from the penitentiary last June 27. He had been sent to the penitentiary from the Ouachita parish district court in 1933 to serve a sentence of from 6 to 9 years for larceny of an automobile.

Previously, he had served a term of one year in the penitentiary for larceny in Jackson parish.

Holmes is accused of robbing the home of H. G. McIntosh at Calhoun, a quantity of clothing and a single-barrel shotgun being taken in the robbery. He is also accused of stealing an automobile owned by Robert Watson of Calhoun.

At Bossier City, Holmes was said to have used the shotgun in robbing a filling station. He was said to have used the same weapon in the filling

SEAMEN RECRUITED FOR TANKER JOBS GIVEN BIG ESCORT

HOUSTON, Texas, July 13.—(AP)—Eleven non-union seamen en route to Galveston to man the Cities Service tanker the Missouri, today were given an escort of eighty deputy sheriffs and special officers to the Galveston county line.

When the sailors, recruited in New Orleans, reached Houston last night, they were met by a "committee" from the international seamen's union, which is striking against Cities Service tankers. The union men tried to dissuade them from going on to Galveston, but only one of the original twelve quit. The remainder were marched to a hotel where they spent the night while union men in automobiles cruised around the exits.

Verbal Duelists In 'Liar' Outburst At Lobby Inquiry

Brewster's Epithet Climaxes Corcoran's Testimony About Utilities Bill Electioneering

You're a liar!"

"We'll see if I'm a liar. Ernest Gruening was there . . ."

WOMAN CONVICTED IN KIDNAP CASE

Mrs. Waley Found Guilty Of 'Lindbergh Law' Conspiracy Charges

TACOMA, Wash., July 13.—(AP)—Nineteen-year-old Margaret Waley was convicted swiftly of both "Lindbergh law" and conspiracy charges by a federal jury here today for her allegedly unwilling participation in the $200,000 kidnaping of curly-haired George Weyerhaeuser.

In four hours and forty-five minutes a jury of ten men and two women waded through legal technicalities to reach the decision:

1. The 9-year-old timber fortune heir had been taken across the Washington-Idaho line by his kidnapers, thus warranting application of the "Lindbergh law."

2. She assisted actively in transporting the boy across the state line.

3. She actively conspired with her husband, Harmon M. Waley and the fugitive William Dainard, alias Mahan, to snatch the boy and collect $200,000 ransom.

The plump young woman, described by her attorney as a child of abject poverty, took the verdict without a flicker of emotion.

Federal Judge E. E. Cushman set next Wednesday morning for pronouncement of sentence. The jurist sentenced Waley to 45 years in prison on a plea to guilty to similar charges.

Life sentences are possible on both charges. The law sets no minimum.

Mrs. Waley said in a statement: "I am satisfied with the verdict as I told the truth and tried to plead guilty. I did not know I was in a criminal conspiracy until my husband was involved in it, after which I went through with it rather than betray the man I love."

Earlier, sitting in the courtroom waiting for the judge to enter, she had bitten her lips nervously as she talked with United States Marshal A. J. Chitty and kneaded a green-edged handkerchief in her fingers.

Chitty quoted her as saying: "My goodness, I hope that jury doesn't acquit me."

Her attitude in this respect had been described by her attorney, John F. Dore, the result of warnings by federal agents that she would be tried under a state law providing the death penalty unless she subjected herself to federal jurisdiction.

Thrice she had attempted to plead guilty, but Judge Cushman rejected that and ordered the trial which ended so swiftly today.

Judge Cushman was called upon twice by the jury for additional instructions to lead them through the legal conceptions of conspiracy and the transportation of the youth in interstate commerce.

United States Attorney J. Charles Dennis issued a statement saying: "On behalf of the department of justice, I hereby serve notice upon each and every member of the underworld that any assistance, aid, or

LIGHTNING IN PRANKISH MOOD SPLITS MAN'S PANTS

TALIHINA, Okla., July 13.—(AP)—Lightning split the seat of Bill Dixon's pants and used his backbone for a conductor when it struck a tree under which he and five other persons were seeking protection from an electrical storm.

Dixon, 60 years old, was seated on a box leaning against the tree trunk when the bolt struck. He said he could feel it course down his spine. When companions picked him up, the seat of his trousers was missing.

Dixon was knocked unconscious, as was Mel Armstrong, another of the party. Both are recovering.

Orleans Water Board Issue Goes To U. S. Supreme Court

NEW ORLEANS, July 13.—(AP)—Efforts of Senator Huey P. Long's state administration to seize control of the New Orleans sewerage and water board, a $60,000,000 unit, was blocked today pending a decision of the United States supreme court on the constitutionality of a legislative act reorganizing the board.

Chief Justice Charles A. O'Niell of the Louisiana supreme court, today granted attorneys for the old sewerage and water board, who unsuccessfully attacked the validity of the reorganization act in the state courts, an appeal to the high U. S. tribunal.

The new board, composed of a majority of appointees of Governor O. K. Allen, political ally of Senator Huey P. Long, has been striving to take control of the New Orleans sewerage and water facilities by ousting the old board through litigation, knotted in state and federal courts.

A federal court injunction against the new board has kept the old board in power.

Justice O'Niell, one of the dissenters against the constitutionality of the act empowering the new board, at the same time today ordered a supersedeas to stay judgments and rulings of state courts against the old board until the U. S. supreme court has acted on the question.

Justice O'Niell, as head of the state supreme court, is the only member of that tribunal with the power to sign such an appeal order and grant a supersedeas.

Attorneys for the state administration insisted that the old board be made to post a bond of not less than $400,000 pending the United States supreme court's decision but Justice O'Niell held that a bond of $25,000 was sufficient, and he named that sum.

The old board has been directed by Judge Wayne G. Borah in federal court to show cause Monday morning why his temporary injunction restraining the new board from interfering with its functions should not be dissolved.

If the injunction is retained, it is expected that Judge Borah will act also Monday on the old board's petition to include Governor O. K. Allen and State Attorney General Gaston L. Poterie among those restrained by the injunction.

AUSTRIAN WOMAN KILLED IN CRASH

Chancellor Narrowly Escapes As His Wife Is Fatally Injured

VIENNA, July 13.—(AP)—Wreckage of the motor car that almost cost the life of Austria's chancellor today, killed his wife and thrust new power into the hands of militant Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, tonight yielded evidence of a defective steering gear.

Experts who conducted an examination of the death machine said they were convinced the steering gear was defective, but added they were unable to determine what had caused the condition.

Acting swiftly upon reports of the injury to Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, the cabinet tentatively decided to place von Starhemberg, chief of the heimwehr, Austria's Fascist "private army," in the post of chancellor.

In the tragic accident, near Linz, Frau Schuschnigg, 34, was killed and their son, Kurt, Jr., 9, seriously hurt.

Suffering severe nervous shock and a shoulder injury, the grief-stricken chancellor left his hospital bed at Linz to pray briefly at the Carmelite church where Frau Schuschnigg's body lies.

Then he returned to the Brothers

FILLING STATION OPERATOR FATALLY SHOT BY OFFICER

VAIDEN, Miss., July 13.—(AP)—Alfred Shelton, 35-year-old Durant, Miss., filling station operator, was shot and killed by Officer Herman Miche while resisting arrest here today, the sheriff's office reported.

Miche said he had received complaints that Shelton was intoxicated and creating a disturbance about the streets of Vaiden. The officer said he approached Shelton as he was seated in his parked car and attempted to place him under arrest.

Miche said Shelton reached for his gun, and the officer fired. One bullet entered Shelton's abdomen, resulting in his death.

No charges had been made tonight against Miche.

TAX PLAN NEARS DRAFTING STAGE

Cross-Fire Of Criticism And Praise Marks Work On Program

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—A cross-fire of vigorous criticism and hearty praise—but with criticism sounding the louder—today rushed the president's tax plan to the bill-drafting stage.

In order to finish hearings today, the house ways and means committee met earlier than usual and sat later, giving up its usual Saturday recess. The sum and substance of what it heard was this:

A demand from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for a reduction of expenditures if not a balanced budget through economy.

Insistence from the merchants association of New York that the projected new levies be deferred until they can "be duly considered and enacted as a part of a properly coordinated plan for balancing the * * * budget."

An assertion that the general conference of American rabbis "heartily approves" the president's plan.

The Chamber of Commerce argument was presented by three witnesses, objecting to the tax plan in general and its four points in particular.

TWO KILLED AS RIOTING MARKS IRISH OBSERVANCE

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 13.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and twenty injured in a scond night of rioting that began yesterday with the celebration of the 245th anniversary of the battle of the Boyne.

In two days fighting between Catholics and Protestant Orangemen four have been killed and 66 injured.

Tonight's outbreaks were in York street, scene of the first day's disorders. The rioters defied curfew restriction and a triple guard of Belfast and provincial police.

Authorities immediately sent out a call for more police from adjoining counties. One district was ordered surrounded.

NEGROES HOLD UP YOUTHS ON TRAIN

One Victim Of Robbery Shot, Another Reported Thrown From Car

One youth was shot in the leg, another was either shot or knocked off a speeding eastbound freight train, and 18 others were held up and robbed by three armed negroes on an Illinois Central freight train Friday night about a mile and a half west of Holly Ridge, La., according to a report received here Saturday.

A wide search was made Saturday by members of the force of Sheriff A. A. Abell of Richland parish for the missing youth along the tracks where the holdup occurred, but no trace could be found of him.

Witnesses said that after the man had fallen from the train, one of the negroes fired a shot at him but it was not known whether the bullet took effect. The train was going at a rate of about 40 miles an hour at the time of the robbery.

The negro bandits waited until the train slowed down at Rayville before making their escape, fleeing through the negro section of the town. Deputy sheriffs combed the district, but the negroes had disappeared.

According to the report, the bandits came upon the group of white youths riding on a flat car of the train. Branishing revolvers, the negroes forced their victims to one end of the car, where one of the trio searched their pockets for valuables, while the other two held the white men at bay with their revolvers.

When he attempted to thwart the robbery, Monroe Johnson of Liberty, Miss., one of the transients, was shot through a muscle of the left leg. He was taken from the train at Rayville, where his wound was dressed. His condition was not considered serious.

Apprehension was expressed in Rayville as to the fate of the man who fell from the train. Witnesses said that at the speed the train was making, the man was certain to have been seriously if not fatally hurt in the fall.

Since the section along the track where the robbery occurred is filled with swamps, it was feared that he might have fallen into the water and in a dozed or unconscious condition, drowned.

The search for him was to be continued Sunday in an effort to locate the body. It was said that the missing man became frightened during the holdup and started to walking along the car. When one of the negroes fired, he was seen to tumble from the car and disappear as a second bullet was fired, it was reported.

ARBITRATION MOVE IN BILOXI LABOR DISPUTE REJECTED

BILOXI, Miss., July 13.—(AP)—Governor Sennett Conner's proposal to arbitrate the Gulfport longshore dispute was turned down late today by officials of the Gulfport Benevolent association.

"We have nothing to arbitrate," they said. "We have a two-year contract for loading and unloading the boats at the Gulfport harbor."

The International Longshoremen's association, now picketing the Gulfport waterfront and preventing the loading of ships by the local benevolent association unions, accepted the arbitration plan.

Members of the benevolent association said that four ships had been diverted from Gulfport as a result of the picketing, resulting in a loss of $6,000 per ship, the approximate cost to load and unload them.

Mayor Denounces Old Associates For Their Desertion Under Fire

"You Can't Deal With Men You Have Called Thieves And Crooks And Then Uphold Your Honor," He Declares

SPURNS "TAINTED PEACE" OFFER

Crowded Council Room At New Orleans Resounds With Cheers Of Applauding Citizens As Mayor Attacks His Foes

NEW ORLEANS, July 13.—(AP)—The city of New Orleans shook today under the thunder of the political strife between Senator Huey P. Long and Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley.

In a back to the wall stand, Mayor Walmsley defied the Louisiana dictator and his hosts and rallied his shattered forces for the onslaught Long has directed for his removal from office. The sound of battle in the city echoed throughout the state with anti-Longs rallying to the standard of Walmsley as a last resort.

The mayor was given a wound, designed to be mortal, when most of his city political lieutenants, deserted his ranks for Long's on the plea the step had to be taken to save New Orleans from financial ruin. Three of his four city commissioners requested his resignation and 13 of his 17 ward associates made the same request.

Denouncing his former associates for deserting him, and refusing to resign, Walmsley shouted to the city commissioners:

"You wouldn't want to deal with Al Capone. You can't deal with men who have been called thieves and crooks by each and everyone of you and then uphold your honor. * * * There is nothing that I will do that will bring back 'Banquo's ghost' to haunt me and make the members of my family hang their heads in hame. Peace, I want peace, love peace, but never peace on the terms that have been offered."

As Walmsley was lambasting the commissioners and Long's "dictatorship," Norman Thomas, national leader of the Socialist party, threw down a new threat to Long by announcing he would come to Louisiana and stump it with a sound-truck caravan against the "demagoguery of Huey Long's share-the-wealth program."

Long, visibly irritated over Thomas' plan, charged that President Roosevelt, with whom he has broken politically, was sending Thomas to Louisiana.

"Anyway, Thomas won't get three people in Louisiana to listen to him," the senator said.

Today's commission council meeting, wrought with drama from start to finish, was interrupted by an enthusiastic citizen who identified himself as William B. Golden and asked to be heard. Gaining the mayor's consent, Golden said:

"Huey P. Long was not elected governor of Louisiana. He was elected to the United States senate. His duty is at Washington. He should go back to the United States senate where he belongs and if he can't pass laws for the people of his state and the nation then let him take a back seat and let Pat Harrison or some other able senator do his duty."

Before Golden could proceed further, the "deserting" commissioners demanded adjournment and the meeting dissolved in an uproar of applause for Walmsley.

Meanwhile, the "Old Regulars," Walmsley's political organization went forward with plans for a series of city-wide mass meetings next week to circulate petitions demanding the mayor's resignation.

Senator Long has promised the "Old Regulars" to call a special session of the legislature to address Walmsley out of office "within 24 hours" after the signatures of a majority of the voters of the city are attached to the ouster petitions.

MAN BECOMES FATHER OF STEP-GRANDCHILD

HAMMONTON, N. J., July 13.—(AP)—Thomas D. Delker, 65, Hammonton newspaperman, today became the father of his step-grandchild.

Last winter, Delker married Miss Emma Messner, 22, daughter of Joseph Messner, who is the husband of Delker's daughter.

The marriage made him the son-in-law of his own son-in-law. His daughter became his step-mother-in-law, while his bride became her own step-grandmother.

Now a baby, Emma Mae Delker, has arrived. She is her step-grandmother's step-sister, her mother's step-aunt, and her father's step-sister-in-law.

MOVES FOR PEACE GAIN 'SPOTLIGHT'

Secretary Hull Issues Statement Supporting Kellogg-Briand Pact

(By Associated Press)

Moves for peace gained a portion of the Italo-Ethiopian "war" spotlight yesterday as Secretary Hull of the United States issued a statement in support of the Kellogg-Briand pact.

His action evoked comment in London circles that a "united front" with Great Britain against war in Ethiopia was possible if the United States joined Great Britain in opposition to such a war.

In Rome, Italian authorities declared they had "in no way" violated the Kellogg-Briand pact.

Military preparations on the part of Italy moved forward with unabated intensity. Massaua, the leading seaport in the Italian colony of Eritrea, was described as a city of soldiers and stevedores, laboring strenuously to move men and supplies into the zone where hostilities are expected in September.

Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia was reported moving crown jewels and religious relics out of the holy city of Axum to a safer place high in the interior of Ethiopia.

ADEN, Arabia, July 12.—(AP)—From this Persian gulf port, on the historic route to India, Great Britain is anxiously watching Premier Mussolini's massing of troops in Italy's east African colonies of Somaliland and Eritrea.

Observers said today they considered the Italian army the most scientifically equipped as well as the largest ever sent into Africa. The preparations now under way indicate to military experts that an early assault on the 5,000-year-old independent

TOWN IN ARKANSAS CLEARS DEBRIS OF VIOLENT WINDS

JASPER, Ark., July 13.—(AP)—Tornadic winds that ripped along a narrow path in northwest Arkansas left this Ozark mountain city the task of clearing away an estimated $100,000 worth of damaged property today.

The windstorm did its worst damage, here destroying buildings, uprooting trees and injuring several persons, two seriously. Its path continued south to Dardanelle where minor damage was reported and a negro woman injured.

Scattered rainstorms, accompanied by strong winds and electrical disturbances were reported in other sections of Arkansas but no serious damage resulted.

Will Rogers Says

SANTA MONICA, Cal., July 12.—(Special)—Now they find that Italy is after the trade of Abyssinia. The Japanese are in there, they are underselling everybody all over the world. Well, a few years ago when we thought we had a "patent mass production" we was underselling everybody. England wants Italy to lay off Abyssinian territory, yet look at the map. They control three sides of Abyssinia themselves. They have already got theirs, so you see there is two sides to every argument, and it's all a matter of "whose dog is bit."

EUROPEAN VISIT IS MADE BY NUNS

Sister Patrick And Companion Enjoy Interesting Trip Abroad

Sister Patrick and a companion, both members of the Franciscan sisters of St. Francis sanitarium, have just returned from an extended trip to Europe. They witnessed some of the events held in connection with King George's jubilee which was one of the most interesting events of the journey.

They arrived in Havre, France, April 18, after a stormy crossing, and went at once to the Mother House in Calais, where they rested for a few days. They visited Belgium, Holland and some of the beautiful cities of France, including Paris and the seaside town of Berck.

After a few days they crossed the English channel to Dover and passed through London with its streets all decorated for the silver jubilee of King George and Queen Mary.

At Fishguard they took the boat for Ireland, landing in Cork, and spent a month visiting the beauty spots of Ireland.

They returned to Calais June 13 to witness the golden jubilee of the superior general of the congregation, which was presided over by the bishop of Arras. Over 50 priests attended and also 200 delegates from the different convents of the order from North and South America, Asia, Africa, Belgium, France, Holland, Portugal, Turkey and Ireland. Three days later they boarded "The Washington" at Havre and arrived in New York after a pleasant trip at sea.

RAILROAD EMPLOYES GO ON TRIP TO ARKANSAS

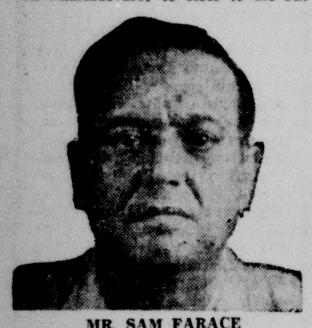

Missouri Pacifice railroad employes and their friends were to leave by special train for Lake Village at 7:15 o'clock this morning. The special picked up passengers from Alexandria and way stations before reaching Monroe and also from stations en route to Lake Village.

From Lake Village, the party was to be conveyed to Lakewood, on Lake Chicot, where a big program of entertainment has been planned.

Tremendous Sale of Gly-Cas Enables Public To Profit

It is true—thousands of boxes of Gly-Cas are being sold here in Monroe and vicinity and the tremendous sale Gly-Cas has enjoyed has enabled its manufacturer to offer to the suffering public through the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard Street, this city, this new advanced medicine at the price of the ordinary medicines of today, within the reach of everyone. Never has there been an equal of Gly-Cas here before.

Read what Mr. Sam Farace, 316 North Seventh St., Monroe, many years a resident of this community and a well known and respected local gentleman, said recently in talking with the Gly-Cas Man at the Phoenix Drug Co.:

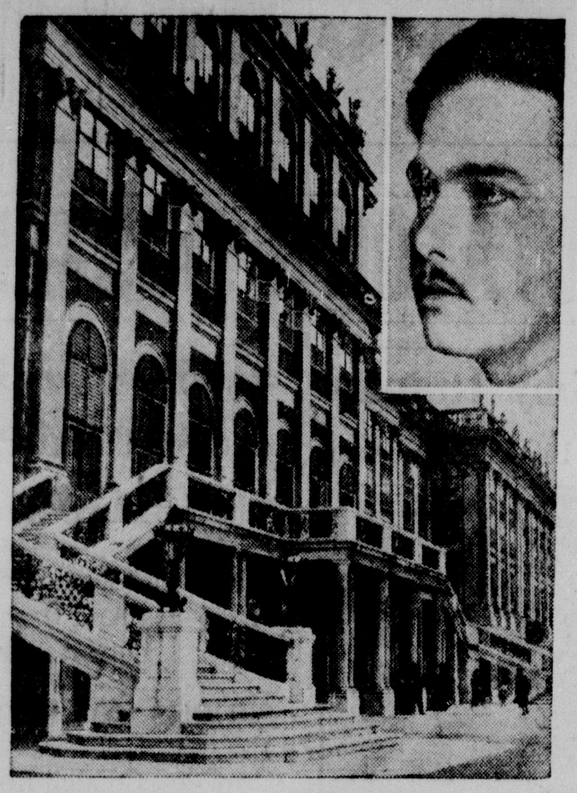

"For the past twenty-two years I had suffered dreadfully with rheumatism in the worse form," said Mr. Farace. "I had to use CRUTCHES TO GET ABOUT and at times was CONFINED to my BED with unbearable suffering with such aches and pains. My limbs were so affected I thought they would surely break, a good night's rest was impossible and the strongest sedatives even failed to relieve my pain. I spent more than THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS on many different kinds of medicines and treatments—doing my best to find relief—but always met with failure. Had decided that my case was beyond help and thought it would surely be too stubborn and of too long standing for much help soon. But when I began to hear so much praise for Gly-Cas here in Monroe and everyone seemingly was telling how DIFFERENT it was—I decided to put it to a REAL TEST on my own case—and it was wonderful."

"Poisons of the worse kind were easily removed from my system by this new Gly-Cas—and almost at once too," continued Mr. Farace. "Those severe pains were soon relieved until I began to get a natural sleep each night. My stomach and bowels were easily regulated too, and I now eat foods I had not dared touch before. But best of all that dreadful rheumatism that caused me such continual suffering has been so relieved I am seldom if ever bothered with any pain at all. I am now able to get around the best I have in 20 years and I am feeling better in every way. I KNOW from actual experience that Gly-Cas gets to the very source of the troubles—removing the cause for the wonderful results this new remedy has given me are nothing less than 'miraculous.'"

The Gly-Cas Man is daily meeting crowds of local people at the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard Street, where he is introducing and explaining the action of this new vegetable medical discovery.

ADLER'S AWARDED AGENCY FOR CARS

Local Firm Appointed Dealer For Hudson, Terraplane Automobiles

Adler's, Inc, located at the corner of South Grand and Grammont, has recently been appointed dealer for Hudson and Terraplane automobiles in northeast Louisiana.

The firm is under the direction of Sam and Saul Adler who are well known in the local automobile field. Although Sam Adler has made his home in Alexandria since 1930, Saul Adler has remained in Monroe as manager of the Hotel Monroe garage and serice station. Adler Brothers formally operated the Oakland and Pontiac agency here.

The new showrooms of Adler, Inc., have just been remodeled. Four large plate glass windows have been installed and a pleasing effect has been brought about through flood lights.

Sam Adler is one of the oldest automobile dealers in the country and has been actively engaged in the automobile business since 1905. As an employe of the assembly department he helped to build the first Hudson car which was manufactured in 1907. Later he was made district manager, covering the entire south for seven years. For six years Mr. Adler was district manager for General Motors, Pontiac division.

INDIAN CAN NOW RELIEVE THIRST

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 13.—(AP)—More than 400 retail liquor stores in Arkansas but not one drink for an Indian.

So the Indian complained to Attorney General Carl E. Bailey. He said he had tried to buy liquor at Rogers and other northwest Arkansas towns and had been refused, the store owners telling him sales to Indians was against the law.

Assistant Attorney General Tom Fitzhugh, to whom the letter was referred, said the Thorn legalization law had repealed an ancient law which provided that it was illegal to sell or give whisky to an Indian.

Fitzhugh said the Indian could legally buy liquor at any liquor store.

DECREASE SHOWN IN RELIEF CASES OF URBAN CENTERS

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—A decline of 249,897 in the urban relief population between May and June was announced today by Harry L. Hopkins, the relief administrator, along with a $4,450,459 decrease in relief costs.

The figures, covering 140 of the largest cities, showed a 3.3 per cent decline in the number of relief cases, and a 6.6 per cent decline in expenditures—from 2,070,640 families and single persons in May to 2,003,073 in June, and from $67,384,249 to $62,933,790.

Of the 140 cities, 123 were reported to have shown declines in the number of cases.

"Reports received from widely scattered areas," Hopkins said, "indicate increased private employment as the principal reason for these declines.

"The continued absorption of relief cases by the automotive industry in Flint, Mich., and the decline in the number of cases receiving relief in Winston-Salem, N. C., as a result of the reopening of a large textile mill, may be cited as noteworthy instances."

GETS BOAT JOB

CHICAGO, July 13.—(AP)—Lieut. Commander Louis B. Olson, former commander of the coast guard cutter "Seneca" at Mobile, Ala., will be sworn in July 20 as commander of the coast guard ice-breaker "Escanaba," Capt. LeRoy Reinburg, head of the Chicago division of the U. S. coast guard, announced today.

CANDIDATES OPEN ORATORICAL FIRE

Mississippi Race For Governor's Chair Enters Final Stretch

JACKSON, Miss., July 13—(AP)—Entering the final stretch of the first primary campaign, with only three weeks remaining until Mississippi's Democratic voters go to the polls to register their choices for public office, the five candidates for governor are concentrating their oratorical fire in central and south Mississippi next week.

Seventy-four campaign speeches have been booked by the candidates themselves, while scores of "proxy" speakers will address crowds of voters in practically every school district in the state during the coming week.

Lester C. Franklin has the most ambitious itinerary of the gubernatorial candidates for the week, having booked 24 engagements, speaking four times each day.

Paul Johnson of Hattiesburg speaks 18 times during the week, while Hugh White of Columbia and Lieutenant-Governor Dennis Murphree will each make 16 political addresses during the week. Dr. E. A. Copeland, another of the gubernatorial candidates, does not announce his speaking itinerary.

In addition to the candidates for governor 28 candidates for nine other state offices, and 31 for the offices of railroad commissioner and district attorney in the various districts, and hundreds of county and local candidates will be exceptionally busy from now until the first primary balloting August 6.

Three weeks later, August 27, the second or "run-off" primary will occur.

Political campaigning was more intensified during the past week following the official certification of candidates last Monday by the state Democratic executive committee. The executive committee found only one state official unopposed for reelection, Supreme Court Clerk Tom Q. Ellis, who is serving out his first term.

Two of the gubernatorial candidates held state-wide rallies in Jackson during the past week, Paul Johnson and Lester Franklin addressing the voters at Poindexter park. Another of the candidates, Dennis Murphree, held a state-wide rally here two weeks ago, while Hugh L. White has his Jackson rally set for Friday night of the coming week.

Election officials are anticipating a record vote in the first primary balloting, with predictions that the 315,000 total of four years ago will be exceeded.

Relaxation of the primary election laws, making the payment of poll taxes the only tax-paying requirement for voting, is expected to substantially increase the state's total voting strength.

TO BATTLE TICKS

FARMERVILLE, La., July 13.—(Special)—The campaign for the eradication of cattle ticks in Union parish is expected to get under way August 1 under the supervision of W. J. Gill of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry. Mr. Gill, who has been designated supervisor of the drive, will be assisted by 32 persons. Dipping of all cattle will be enforced. There are now 170 dipping vats in the parish and several more will probably be constructed before the drive is launched.

Iron constitutes 40 per cent of the earth. The next most abundant element is oxygen, comprising about 28 per cent. Then come silicon, magnesium, nickel, calcium, aluminum and the rest.

GAS REPORT FOR WEEK IS ISSUED

One Well Completed In Morehouse Parish; Other Tests Are Made

One completion and progress made in a number of tests for oil and gas are reported by the Monroe office of the conservation department, minerals division, for the week that has just ended.

The completion is that of a test in Morehouse parish, section 33-21-4 east, of the Southern Carbon company, Ten Del No. 15 which was gauged as making 7,020,000 cubic feet of gas, rock pressure 875 pounds, total depth, 2,148 feet.

BATHS IN SPINACH APPARENTLY PROVE JINX TO RATTLER

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—Miss Beebe de la Fontaine today apparently had vindicated every faith the spinach branch of a vegetarian cult had lodged in the efficacy of greens as a protection against venom of a Florida rattlesnake.

Allegedly bitten Thursday night in an exhibition before paying customers in Dr. Lloyd Shanklin's 48th street spinach show, Miss De la Fontaine today was "in fine shape."

According to Dr. Shanklin, who vouches she actually was bitten by the rattler, Mlle. De la Fontaine trained for her ordeal by taking spinach baths.

A couple of off stage squeals was the only manifestation of her "agony" as the rattler coiled and struck.

Further today's announcement said Miss De la Fontaine ate a hearty breakfast, though unconfirmed reports had it that she had fumbled the check due to a persistent swelling of the fingers on which the rattler scored bulls eyes.

Miss De la Fontaine's press agent, a gentleman of serious mien, reiterated formally that she had received no medical attention and ascribed her post-bite health solely to her immersion in spinach baths.

Now Representing Hudson-Built Cars In MONROE and Vicinity

"No wonder you chose Hudson and Terraplane to sell!" That's what our friends are telling us as soon as they try these 1935 Hudson-built cars. Here are some of the features that made us decide that these cars—above all others—offer MOST of what this year's buyers want in a car. Come in and see these features for yourself. Drive these cars. Before you buy, compare them with what other cars offer. Special showing all this week.

America's FIRST Bodies ALL of Steel! — Floors, sides, sills, pillars, doors and EVEN ROOFS of solid steel, solidly welded to an inner structure also all of steel.

Police-Tested Brakes! — They always STOP you safely, in a short, STRAIGHT line. Tests by police in cities all over the country proved that Hudson-built cars stop 40% faster than police require for perfect stopping.

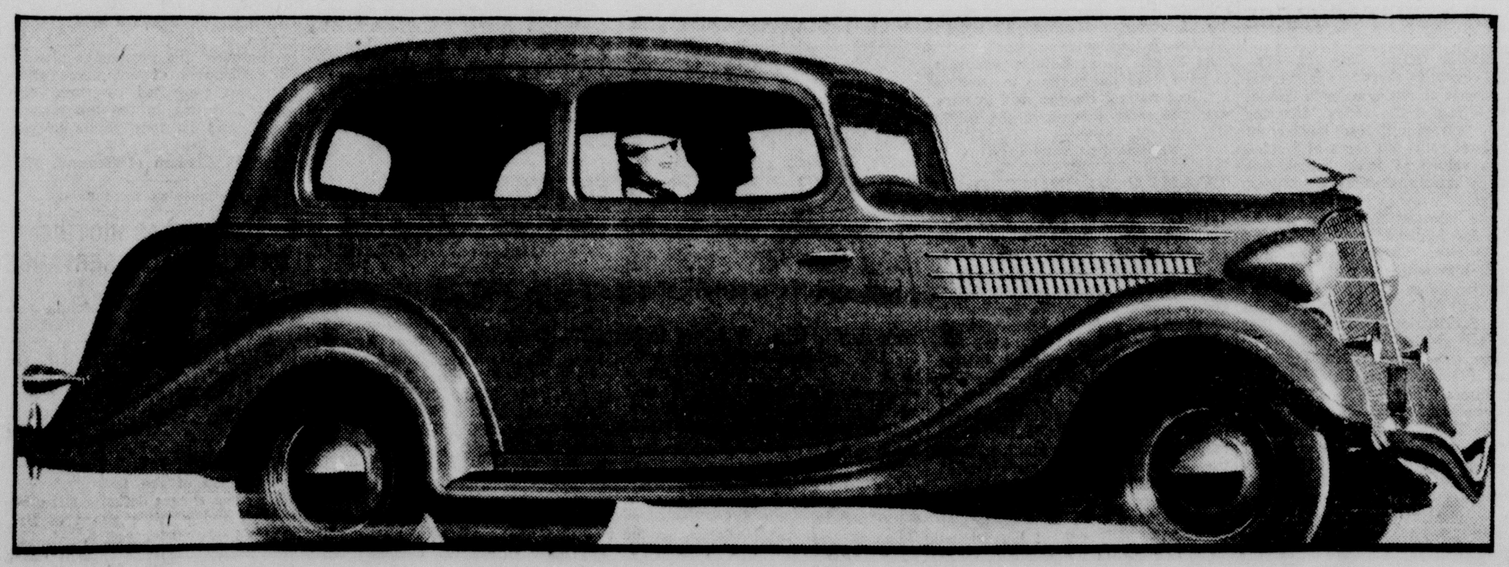

Record-Breaking Performance and Ruggedness! — In April, a Hudson stock car at Muroc Lake added 36 NEW official performance records to the scores already held by Hudson-built cars. 1000 continuous miles and more at over 85 miles an hour! One of the toughest tests of ruggedness ever given any car!

Proved Economy! 22.9 miles to the gallon for Terraplane—20.1 miles to the gallon for Hudson. Those are the AVERAGE mileages from scores of recent economy runs. And thousands of SWORN STATEMENTS from owners prove the remarkably low upkeep and operating expense of Hudsons and Terraplanes in day-by-day driving.

THE ELECTRIC HAND

AND LOOK AT THE PRICES!

$585 and up for Hudson-built Terraplane (88 or 100 horsepower) . . . Hudson Six $695 and up (93 or 100 horsepower) . . . Hudson Eight $760 and up (113 or 124 horsepower). All prices f.o.b. Detroit for closed models.

stronghold of Ethiopia is contemplated.

The military preparations at Massaua, Eritrea, across the gulf from here, are the most easily observed. That city now is a town of stevedores and newly-arrived troops, working without rest to unload the ships and clear the wharves already piled high with supplies.

Four or five Italian ships constantly are standing in the harbor waiting to disgorge their cargoes. Cranes creak and clatter throughout the day as tanks, armored cars, airplanes, horses, mules, artillery pieces, and the rest of the paraphernalia of war is swung overboard to start the journey into Africa.

The heat, frequently reaching 120 degrees in the shade, adds to the fatigue of the laboring men. The single railroad line to Wsmara, 120 miles inland, at the edge of the Eritrean plateau, is a jumble of confusion as engineers try to move the troops and material away from the burning seacoast.

The young Italian soldiers, arriving on the crowded troop ships, see a barren plain which stretches away into the distance, unrelieved by vegetation.

On account of the scarcity of water, the troops at Massaua are allowed only two pints a day for each man. With this amount he must do his drinking and washing.

Machinery now is being installed for distilling sea-water, but thus far it has been impossible for the engineers with their equipment to keep pace with the demand for the thirsty men. Meanwhile boats travel as far as the Sudan to buy water.

On top of the plateau, the main activity is road building, with the new highways pushing toward the Ethiopian frontier across ravines and mountains as fast as is humanely possible for the workmen brought from Ethiopia to labor. They, like the stevedores in Massaua, are earning the equivalent of from $3 to $5 a day.

Asmara is a beehive of activity with huge camps of men constructing dams and pipelines to care for the soldiers who are massing and who are on the way. Similar scenes are reported at Magadiscio, Italian Somaliland, although the bulk of the landing is at Massaua on account of the better harbor there.

Reports from Massaua say the Italians are combing Palestine, Cyprus and Syria for mules, donkeys and cattle for shipment into Eritrea.

ITALY INTERESTED IN BUILDING DAM

ROME, July 13.—(AP)—Italy is tremendously interested in the political aspects of constructing the enormous dam at Lake Tsana, Ethiopia, surveyed by an American company, the J. G. White Engineering corporation.

Lake Tsana is the source of the Blue Nile and subsequently the Nile, irrigating and fertilizing sections of Eypt. The dam is to guarantee a constant reserve for the Nile.

Negotiations which have been going on four years among the British, Egyptian, Sudanese and Ethiopian governments, have been brought to a sudden head, it is believed here, by the Italian military preparations in East Africa.

In effect, Italy does not favor the plan. It gives money to Ethiopia, with whom she will undoubtedly be at war this autumn. It gives Egypt, and therefore, England, vested rights in Ethiopia which will be embarrassing later on.

HOOPLE'S CREATOR GOES ABROAD

As usual, the laugh's on Major Hoople. Here's Gene Ahern, the famous comic character's creator, accompanied by his wife and daughter Nancy, on board the S. S. Champlain for a vacation trip to Europe. The major, though, has been left behind to tend to his job of entertaining newspaper readers.

opposed the graduated corporation income tax to replace the present flat rate; Roy C. Osgood of Chicago objected to increases in inheritance and gift levies; E. C. Alvord of Washington spoke against higher personal income tax rates.

Clausen held that anything could "hardly be more inadvisable" than the new tax program which "may progressively diminish returns." He described the plan as "disturbing and harmful" and asserted it would "tend toward federal monopolization of revenues to the detriment of state budgets."

Alvord's argument was that higher personal income taxes would discourage individual incentive, that "funds will not be risked in new enterprises" and that the result would be a flight of capital from "producing activities into tax-exempt securities."

Osgood contended that if estate and inheritance taxes should remove the incentive to "thrift and endeavor, an economic injury, not a benefit, must result."

Dr. Sidney E. Goldstein of New York City, taking a shot at the Chamber of Commerce, said:

"What the president is endeavoring to do is to democratize our economic organization and income. What the Chamber of Commerce is striving to do is to maintain the autocracy in our economic life that is largely responsible for our economic collapse."

DEMAND EXPRESSED FOR ENDING SESSION

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—A bi-partisan demand that congress stop trying to legislate in sweltering summer heat and go home resounded today in a capital deserted by many New Dealers for a pleasure-business week-end.

While President Roosevelt, Vice-President Garner and other Democratic chiefs traveled to a rod and gun club retreat in Chesapeake bay, those who stayed behind fretted and fumed over the prospect of another month or more of bill passing and lobby investigating.

UNITED STATES, RUSSIA AGREE ON TRADE PACT

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—Ending 18 years of hit-or-miss commercial relations, the United States and Soviet Russia today concluded a trade pact under which the U. S. S. R. agreed to boost its American imports by 150 per cent over the average of the past three years.

In return for purchases of $30,000,000 of American goods during the next year, the United States granted wide tariff concessions to the Soviet. Experts here forecast privately, however, that the chief benefits to the Moscow government would be delayed, rather than immediate.

The Soviet is granted the benefit of all tariff reductions and other concessions made in the trade pacts with Belgium and Haiti, already effective, and in the Swedish agreement which becomes effective August 5.

CONFERENCES ENDED BY CANE PRODUCERS

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—Louisiana sugar cane growers seeking farm administration approval of an increased production allotment, completed conferences today with a call upon Rexford Tugwell, acting secretary of agriculture in the absence of Secretary Wallace.

Tugwell made no statement concerning the conference, but D. W. Louisiana group, said the under-secretary of agriculture was "very sym-Pipes, Jr., Houma, La., head of the pathetic" to the Louisiana sugar problem. Pipes added the delegation had been "very pleased" with its reception by AAA officials.

The group conferred with Secretary Wallace before he left the city and also had conferences with officials of the sugar section. Their hope has been to obtain an approximate two per cent increase in the annual quota allowed them under the Jones-Costigan act and a reduction of quotas to island importers.

LOBBY COMMITTEE BEGINS NEW PROBE

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—An effort to determine whether consumers must pay for the power industry's fight against abolition of its holding companies was begun tonight by the senate lobby committee.

Elaborate questionnaires went forward to all companies known to have participated. They asked the course of funds supplied for the battle as well as information on how, when and where and by whom it was spent.

Already the committee was in one public controversy over material taken by its investigators. Philip H. Gadsden, chairman of the committee of public utility executives, termed a "raid and an "outrage" the seizure of his committee's records.

But Chairman Black, Democrat, Alabama, expressed "astonishment at Gadsden's statement, issued after his return to Philadelphia. He noted Gadsden made no complaint when appearing before the committee but told it he would be glad to make all his records available.

British Columbia Adopts Forestry Training Plan

VICTORIA, B. C., July 13.—(AP)—Forestry training camps—a first cousin to American CCC—are beginning to flourish in British Columbia. Government sponsored, organized instruction in prospecting is in the offing.

The forestry plan was designed by George S. Pearson and 200 youths already are in the field under the guidance of British Columbia forest rangers. Additional camps have been projected to care for youths between the ages of 21 and 25, who have lived 10 years in the province.

Pearson is drafting a plan to divert a proportion of the recruits into practical mining field work and to obtain competent instructors in placer mining to tutor others.

REECE BEGINS TERM IN PRISON

Joseph I. Reece (left with glasses), former Tennessee insurance commissioner, is shown entering the state penitentiary to serve three to ten years. He was convicted for theft of $90,000 in bonds held by the insurance department. Reece was captured in Florida and returned to Tennessee after a futile protest against extradition. Schuschnigg, he said, was hurled from the car and struck head first on soft earth a few inches from a jagged stone at the side of the highway.

BLINDING DUST STORM HITS BERNICE FRIDAY

BERNICE, La., July 13.—(Special)—A dust storm, with a velocity of 75 miles per hour, struck this community late Friday afternoon forcing motorists to stop their automobiles on streets and highways to seek some relief from the blinding dust.

It was one of the worst storms of its kind in many months and lasted for about an hour.

WOMAN MINISTER TO FILL GOOD SAMARITAN PULPIT

The public is cordially invited to attend.

It was thought likely that the first bullet struck him.

The negroes were believed to have boarded the train at Vicksburg, Miss., and planned the robbery while riding aboard the train. The leader was described as being heavy set, was wearing overalls and a straw hat.

The wounded man told Richland parish authorities that he was en route to Shreveport to secure employment. He said that the youth who disappeared from the train boarded it in Vicksburg. No clue was obtained as to his identity.

Sheriff's officers were unable to ascertain the value of the loot obtained in the robbery, although witnesses said it did not amount to much.

City Briefs

I. E. Reynolds, head of the music department of the Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth, Tex., and his daughter, Miss Lourane Reynolds, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Stulce. Miss Reynolds is a talented young violinist.

Earl Tate and Hessel Cahn are spending today in Jackson, Miss.

Two local persons passed the state bar examinations in New Orleans Friday. They are Howell Heard, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Heard, of West Monroe, and Miss Allwine Mulhearn, daughter of P. S. Mulhearn of Monroe.

E. G. Waring, division freight agent of the Missouri Pacific railroad, with his family, will leave today for Hot Springs, Ark., for a week's vacation.

A party of 30 persons will leave early Monday morning from the First Baptist church for Mandeville, where the state Baptist camp is located. They will remain there ten days. The party will make the trip in a specially chartered bus.

FINGER-PRINTING FOR MANY USES IS NOW WIDESPREAD

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—Finger-printing is constantly being put to new uses in this country, the public administration clearing house of Chicago finds.

Los Angeles now takes the prints of all suspects arrested on drunken driving charges. Denver finger-prints every person placed in the city jail, regardless of the offense.

New York, Rochester, Albany and Cincinnati are building files of residents' prints. Millbury, Mass., is finger-printing all local school children, and a year ago Okaloosa, Ia., instituted finger-printing of every one within the town's limits.

In Virginia and West Virginia the state police accept finger-prints for their civilian files.

Coming To Decisions

Some questions are easy to decide. They can be settled by anybody without delay. Other questions require more thought. Sometimes a problem entirely new to us commands our consideration; we work on it in our own minds, come to what seems to us a sound decision; we proceed to put this decision into operation, to find perhaps that we guessed wrong.

Some persons, when perplexed, go to others and ask: "What would you do under such and such circumstances?" And the person interrogated will reply that he would do so and so. Perhaps several intelligent acquaintances will declare themselves emphatically on one side of the question and others equally intelligent will declare themselves on the other side.

Some problems as thick as mud to us can be promptly solved if we go to the right sources of information. If you are wondering how many gallons of paint it will take to cover your roof, you do not need to puzzle your head over that problem. Any good paint man can give you the answer. Specialists of various kinds can instantly clear up technical problems that look black as night to the uninformed.

If you have a technical question to solve, the way to get the answer is from some one qualified to give it. Why worry yourself about what to do with the bugs that are eating your flowers and vegetables when contact with a dealer in insecticides or the parish farm agent will give you the immediate answer?

But every now and then you encounter a problem that is speculative. One person's guess is as good as another's. What are you going to do with such a question?

Unless you are willing to take a wild chance yourself, find out what other persons think about the same matter. Consult persons of intelligence who might be expected to have sound thoughts concerning the problem. Ask such persons: "What would you do?" Then, when they tell you, ask them, "Why?" When they explain why, make mental or written notes of their arguments.

After you have obtained all the reasons feasible from various types of persons capable of giving opinions on the subject, sit down quietly and analyze the reasons for and against; think them over with an open mind. Try to keep your own prejudices out of the picture. Sleep over the matter for several nights, if time permits. Ask yourself frankly, "Now just what do I think about this thing? Exactly what is my own opinion?" Then follow your hunch.

It is strengthening to our character to make our own decisions as soundly as we can after having heard arguments pro and con on questions that are debatable. We are supposed to use our minds to come to our conclusions. That is what our minds are for.

It is good for us to practice coming to decisions, and to develop the habit of coming to decisions. But we should not be obstinate and dogmatic about it. After we have come to a decision, should we plainly see that we have made a mistake, we should not hesitate to change.

On the other hand, it is harmful to permit ourselves to be wishy-washy and change our decisions with every wind that blows. The mind is a delicate, subtle, vital organ. One has to learn how to use it. Therefore, inexperienced, undeveloped persons should be careful about setting up their decisions against experienced, developed persons. That is something for children, especially, to learn.

BEHIND THE BATTLE LINES

One of the greatest services rendered by the department of justice in the war on crime is the work done by its bureau of identification. The exploits of its sleuths are widely known; less publicized but perhaps even more valuable is the way in which its files can provide any local police organization with swift and sure identification of an arrested person.

An example is provided in the arrest in New York of Merton W. Goodrich, who was wanted in Detroit for the murder of a child.

Goodrich was arrested in New York for disorderly conduct. The New York police had no way of knowing that he was wanted in Detroit for an atrocious crime. In the ordinary course of events he would have served a week or so in jail and then gone his way.

But New York sent his fingerprints to the department of justice—and Detroit's long hunt for him was over.

Here is a service any police or sheriff's force can use. It is one of the most valuable of all services in the fight against crime.

Ordnance officers fail to agree as to the efficacy of present anti-aircraft guns in a war. However, if it's going to take a war to answer the question we'd prefer to remain in ignorance.

A successful farmer is one who can pay enough taxes to enable the government to pay his losses.

That is, there's always a way to get what's coming to you by giving a lawyer half of it.

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

A SHATTERED DREAM

On learning that debts owing to the United States by individuals aggregate more than four hundred million dollars.

I rejoiced when I learned that your dear Uncle Sam
Has due him, in various loans,
A rather large sum,
Which I figured would come
To four hundred and five million bones.
"Why worry along?" I observed to myself,
"Why be troubled and anxious and blue?
No need to be sad
When the jolly old lad
Has such a fine prospect in view."

I figured out just what would be my own share
When my Uncle came into his own:
I would buy two new cars
And smoke dollar cigars
With my share of the government loan.
I would live in Miami two months every year
And sail a new, shining, white yacht;
I'd be a good scout
And scatter about
Quite gayly the coin I had got.

Despite the great news of my Uncle's good luck,
I sometimes am sad and dejected;
Although it is true
That the money is due,
It cannot for years be collected.
However, I thought I was rolling in wealth,
And even today I can smile.
Though I can't pay the rent,
Since I haven't a cent,
I was pretty rich, for a while.

African Affair No Picnic

By BRUCE CATTON

The very old and somewhat out-of-date empire of Abyssinia is about to fight with streamlined, modernized Italy, and if the sports fraternity were making book on the affair the odds would be at least 10 to 1, with practically no takers.

Yet the long shot does have a way of galloping home, occasionally, and, if the views of an anonymous military expert writing in the London Spectator recently are correct, Italy stands a very broad chance of coming an inglorious cropper in the fighting in Africa.

This writer makes the point that Abyssinia is apt to be an easy place to get into, but a hard one to get out of. The Italian army, he says, ought to be able to drive its way to Addis Ababa, Abyssinian capital, without trouble; once there, however, its troubles would begin.

All the Abyssinians need to do, he continues, is to retreat. To catch and defeat them the Italians would have to cross a rugged mountainous country larger than Morocco—and it took most of France's great colonial army many years to make the Moroccans knuckle under.

Meanwhile, Italian communications would be in danger, and the upshot of it all might well be the starvation and slow disintegration of the entire Italian expeditionary force.

All this is interesting chiefly as a reminder that wars are seldom fought according to the textbooks. On paper, a modernized and well-disciplined army like that of Mussolini's should have no trouble at all with a horde of semi-savage levies such as Haile Selassie can muster. In actual fact, such encounters often turn out differently.

Augustus Caesar of Rome discovered this 1,900 years ago, when Varus got the flower of the Roman army entangled in the Teutoberger forest in Germany, where the barbaric tribesmen annihilated it. Cortez met the same fate in his first drive at the Aztec empire.

The British regulars were no match for the Pennsylvania Indians when Braddock was trapped near Fort Duquesne. The crack cavalry regiment of the U. S. army was overwhelmed when the plains Indians got it in a blind alley at the Little Big Horn.

You could cull a column or so of similar instances from the military histories, but the examples that have been given so far are enough to make the point—which is that making war on a horde of poorly equipped barbarians is a much riskier business than it appears on the surface.

Mussolini's troopers will need all the good generalship and the good luck they can command, if the African campaign is to be the triumphal procession it is expected to be.

New Deal In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Frequently at critical moments in the continuous drama of Capitol Hill, the careful observer catches the bare whisk of a coat-tail from behind a piece of scenery, indicating intense activity on the part of a character who never gets out to the footlights.

This gent, as is no mystery to most of the players, is none other than the vice president, Mr. Jack Garner. Almost the exact antithesis of the celebrated Throttlebottom who immortalized the vice presidency as something it has often been, but is no more, Garner impresses many insiders as a "master hand" in congress.

A very shrewd and able fellow, wise in the ways of congress after more than 30 years in house and presiding over the senate, Garner leaves few traces of his influence and never overplays his hand.

Yet the records of secret conferences in his offices in the capitol and the senate office building would show that he is an administration leader in congress of equal if not greater puissance than titular leaders such as Senators Robinson and Harrison.

Specialist On "Messes"

One of his great specialties is straightening out messes. And his highly developed streak of horse sense has also kept the White House out of various first-class messes.

It was hard-headed Garner who dissuaded the administration from plumping for his friend Sam Rayburn for speaker, realizing the impossibility of licking Joe Byrns and the danger of putting Roosevelt in an awkward hole.

Roosevelt, of course, has great faith in Garner's judgment—and even telephones him frequently for his reaction to important situations which arise while Garner is summering in Texas.

More than anyone else, Garner brings administration pressure to bear in the senate. His influence is even felt in the house. There the vice president watches his step for fear of accusations of encroachment, but he has dealt with the fellows in that body for years and maintains many close contacts.

Down Garner's Alley

The holding company bill, TVA amendments, and the tax program are among the measures on which Garner lately has helped the administration considerably. Roosevelt discussed the "soak-the-rich" program extensively with Jack before announcing it.

If your memory is long, you'll recall that Garner for years fought for a somewhat similar program against the opposition of Secretary of Treasury Andy Mellon.

The fact is, Garner is much more a New Dealer than Robinson, Harrison or Byrns. There's no one more outspoken in face-to-face deliberations with Roosevelt, and yet no one more devoted to the president.

Garner has a distinctive dislike for the big bankers, and big industrialists of New York. Thus, much of the New Deal is right down his alley.

Gag On The General

For the benefit of those whose eyebrows went up when Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, celebrated for his ability to find Communists behind every other bush and his advocacy of poison gas in warfare, was made chairman of the NRA committee to study the effects of code abandonment on business and labor standards:

The appointment was due to the efforts of Prentiss Coonley, chief of NRA's division of business cooperation, who developed a huge admiration for Fries while serving under him in the chemical warfare service.

Fries is subject to gag. He has been told to make no statements without submitting them for inspection and high officials of NRA say a "careful watch is being kept on him."

A STAMPING CORNER

By W. J. KIRBY

One of the latest airmail sets of stamps is that of New Zealand. Three denominations—1-d. carmine, 3-d. dark violet, and 6-d. dark blue—bear the same design. A large cabin plane is seen coasting earthward to land near a hangar, where a mail truck awaits. At one side, shaded by a palm tree, stands a Maori native watching the plane. The scene is labelled "New Zealand Air Terminal."

The postoffice department's stamp museum, in the postoffice building at Washington, is now open to the public. Quartered in numerous glass cases are original stamps and die proofs of every postage stamp issued by the government since 1847.

In addition to the United States stamps displayed, there are also stamps from seventy-five foreign countries. Eventually, it is planned to have stamps from every country embraced in the International Postal Union—about ninety—included in the exhibit.

The exhibit includes the cancelling machine used by Charles F. Anderson in cancelling the 115,000 covers sent out from the Byrd expedition at Little America. There is also the master die of the 3-cent Century of Progress stamp, a transfer roll and set of completed rotary plate. It is estimated that the completed display will have a value of appoximately two million dollars.

In a recent press conference, Post master General Farley stated that no new stamps were contemplated "just now." Does this mean that we will not have a stamp for the Boy Scout jamboree to be held in Washington next month? Official Washington has been known to withhold announcement of the new issues until the last moment, and again Mr. Farley may mean "this week" when he says "just now."

BUFFALO BILL—In 1860 Buffalo Bill (William Cody) was a pony express rider, assigned to a 75-mile route of rugged country between Red Butte on the North Platte river and Three Crossings of the Sweetwater. Riding into his terminal one day at the end of his 75-mile trip, Cody found that his relief rider was dead and that there was no one to cover the next 85 miles to Rocky Ridge. "The mail must go on." Cody decided to continue to Rocky Ridge, where he turned back, riding a double route once more, to arrive at Red Butte on schedule time. The distance covered, 320 miles in 21 hours, 40 minutes, is considered by historians to constitute a pony express record.

Lights Of New York

By Paul Harrison

By Paul Harrison

NEW YORK.—All around the town: Sign of the times, on a vacant Sixth avenue store: "Have moved around the corner to prosperity."

Modern advertising, in neon lights, helps the religious goods business in the Spanish quarter near Harlem: "Pray with candles if you want to get results" . . . Program libel on a theater marquee: "Noel Coward—The Scoundred—Swell Head" . . . Bourgeoise notice in the program of a Communist playhouse: "To the theater and home in a limousine—for only $6."

Since mentioning the two girl bootblacks I've seen four others—two in Bryant Park, two on lower Broadway . . . Companies employing corps of photographers to snap pedestrians and then try to sell them the pictures are hiring pretty girls to snap male strollers. Formerly lone men were the poorest type of prospects; now they're the best bet. . . . "Paddy's Market," the pushcart section of Hell's Kitchen, is exclusively Italian now.

Choicest spots for Broadway's standers-around are the lobbies of the refrigerated theaters . . . Plenty of free entertainment for kibitzers though, with three theaters being torn down on Broadway. Stem-shovels already are snorting in the bedrock cradle of the old Rialto, and they provide no end of pleasure for Manhattan's excavation-watchers . . . Toughest spot in the rialto is the Barrel House, on Forty-second street. Soldiers and sailors, mostly, and plenty for the bounders to do.

Guests at Reuben's the other dawning invented a new game: Place a pat of butter on a knife and flip the butter against the ceiling; object, to make it stick. This went on gaily for a time, drawing dark looks from the waiters but laughs from other diners—until the butter began to melt and plop down on coiffures and evening clothes . . . Recovery note: The new summer social register lists 937 yachts in commission this year, against 677 in 1934.

Caveat emptor: Of all the sturgeon sold in New York, nearly every ounce is sand shark . . . Almost never do you get sole when you ask for filet of sole, even in the best restaurants; it's flounder or haddock . . . Buyers of jewels have no protection against fraud, except for the reputations of the dealers . . . Fledgling dancers should beware of schools that list Fred Astaire's name among their graduates—and several of them do. Astaire declares he never took dancing lessons . . . And visitors shouldn't allow themselves to be lured into cheap Broadway night spots by flashy displays of photographs in the lobbies. In many cases these are only random selections of lesser-known Hollywood beauties, who never even have heard of the places their pictures advertise . . . One store flashes a testimonial of a performer who committed suicide last year.

Country Calls

In 1933 the government of the Dominican republic was overthrown and the ex-president and five aids fled the country. An over-zealous congress branded them traitors. Since then, though, the new government has thought things over, officially abrogated the stigma, and decided it wants to welcome home the men who fled. Money for their home-coming has been deposited in a New York bank. But the refugees, probably living under aliases in the United States, haven't been found. If Rafael Estrella Urena, Federico Velasquez Hernandez, Angel Morales, Manuel Alexis Liz, Federica Ellis Cambiasco or Valentin Tejada read this, they'll know.

Keep Prices Up

Because New Yorkers in droves are deserting the town from Saturday noon until Monday morning, nighteries have only the tourist trade to depend on over week-ends. But they're still charging extra prices. . . . Two gentlemen from Kentucky —colonels, no doubt—insisted on stepping behind the bar at Leon and Eddie's to show just how a mint julep ought to be made . . . Bars now serve popcorn, and put a lot of salt on their potato chips—to make the customers thirstier. . . .

Oldest sidewalk cafe in Manhattan is the Royal, over on Second avenue. It has been there 28 years and still has the waiter named Herman who cashes checks out of his own pocket —for a percentage. He has made a fortune that way, although he can't read or write. Just looks at a customer's face and is almost infallible in guessing whether or not he's honest.

A prominent automobile manufacturer is building a special coupe fitted with medical equipment to take care of the needs of professional men.

BRITAIN'S KING IS A DIPLOMAT

Crowns Best Friendships By Making His Personal Aides Peers

By Milton Bronner
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, July 13.—That at least one king is not ungrateful has been strongly evidenced by the fact that George Fifth of England has made Sir Clive Wigram and Sir Frederick Ponsonby peers of the realm. Barons, in fact.

The monarch conferred this honor upon them to record his appreciation of two of his oldest servants, counsellors and friends, for Sir Clive is his private secretary and Sir Frederick is treasurer to the king and keeper of the privy purse.

There are a number of occasions during each year when the monarch distributes honors. But the list of those to be honored usually is made out by the prime minister. Of course, if the king objected to names on the list, they might be removed, but this does not often happen. Likewise the king can add to the list submitted. But this again does not often happen. But there is no doubt that when King George announced his intention of honoring Wigram and Ponsonby, the then Premier MacDonald warmly acquisced.

Doles Out King's Funds

The chances are that, outside of his own family, nobody in all the world knows King George so well and so intimately as the two men he has honored. Sir Frederick, by dint of his jobs is the keeper of the king's purse. He knows just how much the king is worth in pounds sterling in the bank. He pays all the king's bills and sends checks to all the king's pet charities. He pays all the royal servants and the household bills of the various royal residences. He handles the incomes from the king's various properties. If George V suddenly wanted to make a private splurge, buying something very expensive, he would have to consult Sir Frederick to see how the bank account stood. Because the king never accepts credit. He is one of the best cash customers in his realm.

Sir Clive Wigram perhaps knows the king even better. He is not only the monarch's confidential adviser on political matters—his ears and his eyes—but also his hand, because he handles all the king's correspondence. All letters are answered through him, save very personal ones that George Fifth may pen himself. His work takes him into daily contact with the king. He knows all the moods of his royal master.

Attracted Favor Quickly

Son of Herbert Wigram of the Madras Civil Service in India, Clive Wigram, born 1871, was sent back to England to study at the famous school of Winchester. He entered the Royal Artillery at the age of 20. He seems to have been the kind of young subaltern who immediately attracts favorable notice, for at 22 Lord Elgin, named viceroy of Indian, took the young man along as his aide de camp.

Retaining his military rank, he exchanged into the 16th Lancers and saw active service on the northwest frontier, 1897-98. Then he went off to South Africa and served in the Boer war, being mentioned in dispatches.

Back in Indian once more, he became aide de camp to the new viceroy, Lord Curzon. In the winter of 1905-6, King George, then Prince of Wales, made his famous tour of India. Lord Kitchener, commander of the forces in Indian, was asked to recommend some young officer to act as Indian A. D. C. to the future monarch. Wigram was recommended. He got on exceptionally well with George. Then the latter returned to England and everybody thought he had forgotten his handsome aide who had proved so serviceable.

Summoned Wigram To London

But in 1910, when George V came to the throne, one of his first acts was to prove that he had not forgotten Wigram. He sent for him and made him his equerry and assistant private secretary. When Lord Stamfordham died, Wigram succeeded him as private secretary. The king's jubilee is, therefore, also Sir Clive's as he has served King George for 25 years.

Like Sir Clive, Sir Frederick Ponsonby also is a soldier. But he was not picked for his job by the king as was Wigram. He was an inheritance. The Ponsonbys are one of the oldest noble families of England. Sir Frederick's grandfather was a distinguished soldier in the Napoleonic wars. His father, Sir Henry, was equerry to Albert, Queen Victoria's husband, and later was secretary to the old queen herself.

Sir Frederick entered the army in 1888 and was A. D. C. to the then viceroy of India in 1893. Holding a commisison in the Grenadier Guards, he served at the front both in the Boer and the great war.

Served Queen Victoria

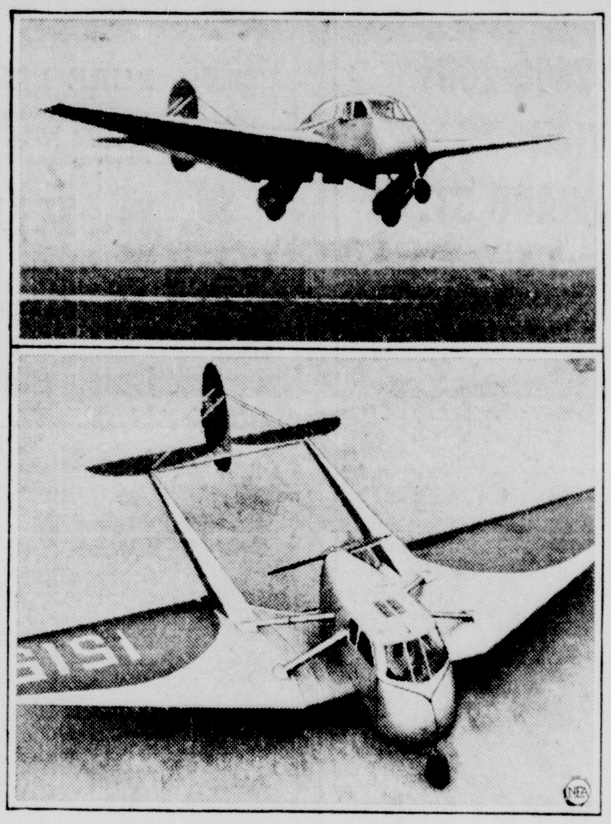

He served Queen Victoria as equerry and later as assistant keeper of the privy purse and assistant private secretary from 1894 till 1901. He served King Edward Seventh in the like capacities from 1901 till the monarch's death in 1910. King George made him keeper of the privy purse in 1914 and treasurer of the household in 1920.

A piquant fact is that his daughter became the third wife of the twice divorced Duke of Westminister, one of the richest and gayest of all the dukes and no favorite of the king and queen.

Sir Frederick edited the letters of the Kaiser Wilhelm's mother, who was an English princess, the aunt of King George. Wilhelm, upon his father's death made strenuous efforts to get his hands on those letters, but they were smuggled out of Germany. They did not throw a very pleasant light on the former Kaiser.

'NON-NOSE OVER' PLANE TESTED

Teachers Compile Survey Of Life After Graduation

What becomes of high school students after they have graduated? What are high schools worth to the citizenships and the state?

In an endeavor to satisfacterily answer these questions the Franklin parish Teachers association sponsored a survey of the high schools of that parish, and has just made a report which discloses interesting results. The survey covered the graduation classes of the parish high schools for the ten-year period from 1920 to 1930, and shows just what each graduate has done in various fields of activity after leaving high school.

The research committee was composed of members of the faculties of the various high schools of Franklin parish and was headed by William B. Glover, principal of Winnsboro high school. The other members were: Miss Modene Henry, Winnsboro; Miss Aletha Hower, Central high school; Miss Margaret Baskin, Baskin; Miss Helen Glasgow, Wisner; Loville Madry, Crowville; John Rickey, Gilbert; L. E. May, Ogden; Williard Middleton, Fort Necessity.

The report of the committee, which has just been made public, follows:

"During this period of hard times and restlessness, many people are predisposed to lament the size of their school tax. Others with immature thought and without having made the necessary investigation, conclude that high schools cost more than they are worth. But few have carefully and critically examined the graduates of these schools to determine their value to community, state and nation. If the value of high schools is to be fairly judged, it is necessary that the worth of their graduates be carefully studied and rather accurately determined.

Before establishing value judgments of high school education it is essential that a painstaking investigation be made into the activities of the graduates. Questions such as the following must be answered: Where do the graduates live? What is their occupational and economic status? What are their religious and social activities? Do they continue their education? Has a high school education made them more valuable to society? Finally, what is their citizenship accountability? In answering these questions the true value of high school education in Franklin parish may be determined. If the high schools of the parish aid in raising the standards of citizenship, certainly, their cost is justified.

"During the decade 1920-1930, 673 students graduated from Franklin parish, Louisiana, high schools. The purpose of this study was to estimate the value of these schools' products, in order to determine the worth of a high school education to the pupils individually, and to the community, state and nation.

"In investigating the activities of the graduates one of the first things to determine is where they live.

"Approximately 37 per cent are engaged in the enterprise of establishing and maintaining their own homes. Nearly 23 per cent are in homes of their parents, while the remaining number live in rooming houses or apartments close to their work. Thus 60 per cent are in established homes, either of their own or of parents.

"It may be of interest to note in passing that 83 per cent of the graduates reside within the state of Louisiana; 55 per cent live in Franklin parish and only one of them lives in a foreign country.

"Graduates have entered 38 different occupations. Homemaking, which has been considered as an occupation, leads with 245 girls so classified. Farming has attracted only 62 graduates, a relatively small number from a parish largely rural in nature. Nearly one-fifth of the graduates have entered professions, the entrance to which required a high school education. This group includes 54 elementary school teachers, 29 secondary school teachers, and two college teachers, 16 registered nurses, five musicians, three lawyers, two doctors and four pharmacists. In addition there 58 per cent office workers, 13 salesmen, 22 store clerks, 15 merchants and four automobile mechanics. No doubt high school education aided graduates in securing positions of this kind. Fifteen of the graduates are classed as common laborers. Thus only two per cent of the graduates are classified as common laborers. The remainder are in scattered occupations such as radio operator, telephone operator, barber, undertaker and beauty parlor operator.

"In determining the economic status of the graduates these questions were asked: Are the graduates self-supporting? Are graduates being provided for by their relatives or parents? Are they sustained by dispensation of public charity? Are any graduates on relief? Hoy many graduates own their business enterprises?

"In finding answers to these questions, it was revealed that 86 per cent are self-supporting; approximately eight per cent are being provided for by their parents; only five are on relief, and there are none on public charity. Thus from the percentages just given, the conclusive facts are imminent that Franklin parish high school graduates are highly self-reliant, and are assuming one of the requisites of a good citizen-self-maintenance.

"Without question 'Religion has been the saving salt of humanity' and sincere religious principles and ideals are requisites for good citizenship. Therefore, an evaluation of the graduates' religious activities was necessary.

"It was learned that 499, or 78 per cent, of the graduates are church members, 132 of these members diligently participate in church activities, while 26 are Sunday school teachers, and 32 others hold positions of leadership and responsibility in the church.

"Approximately 61 per cent of the graduates enrolled in courses in higher education. 249 of the 393 who registered in higher institutions enrolled in state institutions. 62 per cent of those enrolled in high institutions graduated. The curriculums chosen are as follows: (1) Teacher training. (2) Business administration. (3) Nursing. (4) Engineering. (5) Home economics. (6) Music. (7) Law. (8) Dentistry. (9) Pharmacy. (10) Agriculture.

"Having received training in these courses, numbers of the graduates were prepared and enabled to secure positions as heretofore listed. High school graduation was prerequisite to entrance in these courses.

"It has been said that "two requisites of a democracy are the establishment and stability of homes." Nearly 65 per cent of the graduates have assumed these responsibilities. The success of this may be fairly determined by the fact that only one marriage in 24 has resulted in divorce, whereas in the parish as a whole, one marriage in ten results in divorce (based on three year average), and throughout the country as a whole, one marriage in six results in divorce.

"Education may not prevent crime. However, real education and training are powerful factors in checking it. Not a single one of the 673 graduates was tried and convicted for law-breaking activities. It has been found through studies of criminals in penal institutions that a large proportion of prisoners have not had a common school education and only a small proportion have had a high school education. Therefore, it seems to be an established fact, that as education progresses crime regresses.

"In determining the extent of poverty and pauperism, it was established that only two of the graduates are living in poverty, and that none have become paupers. This is a splendid record when one considers how common poverty and pauperism have been since the depression.

"One of the primary duties of a citizen is to take an active part in government. 88 per cent of the graduates are qualified voters; therefore, the graduates of Franklin parish are assuming the responsible task of aiding in governmental affairs.

"Because of the opportunities created by high school education in Franklin parish, graduates have learned to be liberal in their thinking and law-abiding in their actions. They have been enabled to live happier, to create greater prosperity, to establish better homes, to build better character, and to render the kind of service to their communities that has resulted in elevating standards of citizenship.

"The facts presented in this report prove beyond a doubt that the high schools are one of the most important institutions in Franklin parish. If they are builders of good citizenship, can we afford to lament the cost?"

NEW ORLEANS SELECTED FOR AGENTS' CONVENTION

GALVESTON, Texas, July 13.—(AP)—New Orleans was awarded the 1936 convention and R. O. Carter of Dallas was elected president at the final session of the Southern Claim Agents' association convention here today.

Carter, who succeeds E. W. Sprague of Memphis, is a claim agent for the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railway.

H. L. Davis, Southern Pacific claim agent, was elected first vice-president; F. W. Middleton, assistant to the Texas and Pacific president, second vice-president, and F. D. Wilkins of the Texas Electric company, secretary-treasurer.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS TO HAVE OUTING

Will Go To Ki-Ro-Li Monday; Studies And Sports To Be Featured

About 30 girls, members of the Monroe Camp Fire group, will go to camp at Ki-Ro-Li tomorrow for a week's outing. Mrs. Charles M. Mitchell, president of the Camp Fire council, will be in charge. Owing to illness in her family, Mrs. F. B. Neely, executive, will be unable to attend.

The girls will have their dinner Monday as the first meal at camp and all plans are complete for the success of their outing, it was stated last night.

They will be instructed in swimming, in nature study, hiking and in handicraft.

At the close of the outing, a big camp fire will be held and awards will be made for honors that the girls have earned during the encampment and for the past few months.

YANKEES' LEAD OVER DETROIT CUT TO ONE GAME

LEADERS LOSE TO CHISOX AS TIGERS DIVIDE WITH A'S

Chicago Wins Series Opener In Close Battle With Yanks, 7-6

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—The Yankees wore themselves out today overcoming the effect of one bad inning, and after they finally had tied the score in the eighth they had nothing left to meet Chicago's ninth-inning spurt. The White Sox won the series opener 8 to 7.

Zeke Bonura

The defeat reduced the Yankees' lead to one game over the Detroit Tigers who split a double header with the athletics.

The Sox blasted Johnny Murphy from the hill in the fourth inning, batting clear around with five hits and three walks to score seven runs. Aided by Lou Gehrig's 13th home run of the season and Tony Lazzeri's eleventh, the Yanks kept picking away at this lead until they finally drove Sad Sam Jones to cover in the eighth and tied the score.

Pat Malone proved ineffective as a relief hurler in the ninth and gave up the winning run without a hit. He passed Tony Piet, who went to second on Mule Haas' sacrifice and third on Zeke Bonura's fly, then uncorped a wild pitch that let the runner score.

Rip Radcliff led the Chicago attack in the big inning, starting things off with a single and driving in the last two with a triple off Jimmy Deshong, who replaced Murphy and pitched fine relief ball until lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth. Bonura also hit a triple and Haas and Luke Sewell contributed singles while Murphy forced in one run with a pass.

TIGERS, A'S DIVIDE

PHILADELPHIA, July 13.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers and the Athletics split a wild and wooly doubleheader today, the A's taking the first 18 to 5 in a free-for-all hitting barrage, and dropping the second 6 to 3, after announcing they would protest the battle.

As a result of the even break, the Tigers climbed to within a game of the league-leading New York Yankees, who were defeated by the White Sox today.

Homers rumbled freely through each game, among them the 26th circuit clout of Hank Greenberg, Detroit's major league leader, in the second game. Jimmy Foxx and Bob Johnson, of the A's, and Detroit's Fox all smashed out four-baggers in the opener, and Johnson also connected for one in the nightcap.

Roger Cramer, A's centerfielder, equalled the "modern" big league record by hitting safely six straight times at bat in the first game.

DISCOVERY WINS $10,000 BUTLER HANDICAP EASILY

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Discovery, holder of the world record at one and one-eighth and one and three sixteenth miles, today won the $10,000 Butler handicap at Empire City for his fourth straight victory. Mrs. Deering Howe's Only One was second and A. A. Baroni's Top Row third in the field of six as King Saxon finished out of the money.

PARKER TO MEET HARRIS FOR SPRING LAKE TITLE

SPRING LAKE, N. J., July 13.—(AP)—Frank Parker, the nation's fourth ranking player, today defeated Wilbur Hess, national intercollegiate champion from Ft. Worth, Tex., to enter the final round in defense of his Spring Lake invitation tennis title.

The victory, achieved in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3, qualified the Lawrenceville, N. J., youth to meet Charles Harris, of West Palm Beach, Fla., his conqueror in the Kentucky state championships, in the final round tomorrow. Parker already holds two legs on the trophy and a victory tomorrow would give him permanent possession of it.

GIANTS RALLY TO WIN THIRD FROM PIRATES, 7 TO 6

League-Leaders Maintain Big Lead By Pounding Out 15 Hits

PITTSBURGH, July 13.—(AP)—The Pirates and the league-leading New York Giants put on a weird exhibition of the ups and downs of baseball today, and when it ended the Giants were on the long end of a 7 to 6 score, and their hold on first place was just as firm as ever.

Travis Jackson

It was the third straight triumph for the Giants here and Pittsburgh's fifth loss in succession and 11th in 15 games. Manager Pie Traynor made a desperate effort to break the losing streak when he benched Lloyd Waner and put young Bud Hafey in to hit against Carl Hubbell. Hafey got only one blow but the revamped lineup turned out 13 hits and slammed Hubbell for five runs in the fourth, only to give way at the end.

Guy Bush, who started on the bill for the Bucs, succumbed to a four-run rally in the second when Hank Leiber started with a triple over Hafey's head. Travis Jackson sent him home with a single that bounded up and hit Arky Vaughan's face; Hubbell smashed a double that landed so close to the foul line there was an argument about it and Dick Bartell got a single when Tommy Thevenow tripped and fell going for his grounded.

The Bucs made up for all those bad breaks in the fourth when they hammered out five hits, including triples by Thevenow and Paul Waner and a double by Gus Suhr to tally five times. But Waite Hoyt, Bush's successor, couldn't hold the lead and the Giants forged ahead with two runs in the fifth on hits by Bill Terry and Jackson, and error by Thevenow and a passed ball. They got their final run, which actually won the game, in the seventh just before the last Pittsburgh tally.

Terry, who led New York's 15-hit attack, opened this inning with his fourth blow, stole second and tallied on Leiber's hit.

CARDS BLANK PHILS

ST. LOUIS, July 13.—(AP)—"Wild Bill" Hallahan, celebrating the return to his old time hurling form, held the Philadelphia Phillies to two scratch hits today as the world champion Cardinals won their eighth consecutive victory 4 to 0.

The triumph, Hallahan's third straight in two weeks, still left the Cardinals seven and a half games behind the league leading New York Giants.

SPORTS Chatter

BY GEO. V. LOFTON

Connie Mack named Hal Trosky as the most likely successor of Babe Ruth in the manufacture of home runs, but the big Cleveland first baseman is hitting only .250, and some of the critics are commencing to wonder if he might have been a one-year phenom.

Trosky is only one of a number of the newer major league players who showed so much promise, but who have been unable to get going this season.

Bill Werber, of the Red Sox; Jo-Jo White and Marvin Owen, of the Tigers; Linus Frey, of the Dodgers; Frank Higgins, of the A's; Red Rolfe, of the Yankees; and Harland Clift, of the Browns; and Trosky perhaps have been more disappointing to their managements than the others.

Ralph Boyle and Frenchy Bordagaray, of the Dodgers; Cookie Lavagetto, of the Pirates; Terry Moore, of the Cardinals; Tuck Stainback, and Frank Demaree, of the Cubs; Alan Strange, now with the Senators; Myril Hoag, of the Yankees; Beau Bell and Al Bejma, of the Browns; and Ed Coleman, transferred from the A's to the Browns, certainly have not looked like major hitters this season, but none of them played such important roles in the plans of their clubs as Werber, White, Owen, Frey, Higgins, Rolfe, Clift and Trosky.

Can't Steal First Base

Werber and White, for example, led both their leagues in stolen bases in 1934. They actually were remindful at times of the immortal Tyrus Raymond Cobb, upsetting rival infields with daring sprints and slides. White's aggressiveness on the sacks precipitated the trouble between the Tigers and Cardinals in the world series last October.

Werber and White promised a spectacular base-running duel this spring. Werber exhibited a scar on his wrist, incurred when he attempted to tag White at third base in Fenway park last season.

"The next time White comes into me that way, he'll have to fight," asserted the then cocky Werber.

Werber also said that he was just warming up when he swiped 40 bases last season, and set his 1935 goal at 60.

But the more heated rivalry between Werber and White failed to develop, for the very good reason that a ball player can't steal first base. Werber is hitting only .244, and White was benched in favor of the reformed Gerald Walker when he couldn't lift his batting mark above .204.

Clifton Dispels Doubt

Owen was ill this spring and has been in and out of the lineup, giving Flea Clifton an opportunity to prove that the Tigers weren't so weak in the way of reserves as everybody imagined.

Frey, the youthful Brooklyn shortstop, started out as though he intended to take his place among the leaders in just about everything, and the Flatbush flock slumped with him when his batting average fell to .249.

Handicapped by injuries, Higgins is hitting only .248, and his third year with the A's certainly is not turning out to be a charm.

Rolfe's poor hitting has been screened by the remarkable Yankee pitching. Such a keen judge as Rogers Hornsby believed that he had the makings of a remarkable long range hitter in Clift, but the Oklahoman has failed to live up to expectations.

However, all the boys are young, and even fair ball players are so scarce that they get ample trials these days.

Unhappy Magnates Give Game Back To Customers

Balloting Plan For Selection Of All-Star Players Is Approved

(By NEA Service)

NEW YORK, July 13.—Well, the party in Cleveland is over, and the major league magnates are holding their heads.

They've all been hit over the head by public opinion, and now are ready to admit that the Chicago sports editor who came up with the all-star game had a swell idea.

This Chicago sports editor got by with it for two seasons. Others of his craft appreciated his idea. But I can't think of two major league owners who gave it a tumble.

Only a year ago there was talk in New York of forgetting all about the all-star game. The stupid owners wanted to toss a million dollars' worth of publicity out of the window, particularly in the midsummer season when business was bad; when the St. Louis Browns were attracting 30 spectators, who ought to come out regularly just to see Rolly Hemsley catch.

In justice to major league owners, it costs $50,000 to close major league parks for two days.

But the annual all-star game will return to them tenfold whatever they put into it. And the proceeds go to a good cause—broken down ball players.

70,000 Can't Be Wrong

Apparently the slow-thinking baseball magnates have learned something from the last all-star game, an engagement that thrilled nobody among a crowd of 70,000 in the huge Cleveland stadium and satisfied even fewer people.

President Will Harridge of the American league has decided it would be all for the best to give the game back to the fans. He advocates the balloting plan that will permit the fans next year to choose the rival teams.

That the American league prexy should come to that conclusion is significant. His team won the all-star game at Cleveland, 4 to 1, and he beyond anyone else should be content with the arrangement that prevailed there. The two managers, Mickey Cochrane of the Tigers and Frankie Frisch of the Cardinals, picked the teams without consulting the fans.

Where Was Greenberg?

The game didn't present Hank Greenberg of the Detroit Tigers, currently the American league home run king, nor did it enter into the box score the name of Tommy Bridges, generally regarded today as the ace of the junior circuit flippers, even though he was named for the team.

The all-star game is a unique presentation. Originated in Chicago as a World fair spectacle, it never was meant to be a test of the relative strength of the two major leagues. The world series provides that. This game was intended to be the fan's game. His action to see in action the players he has lifted into favor and regards, momentarily, anyway, the best in the game.

The game in Cleveland, even if it did re-establish the playing strength of the American league, totally disregarded this idea.

Fans Get Run Around

National league managers thought so little of the game, and the fans' viewpoint, that they pitched Dizzy Dean, Paul Derringer, and Carl Hubbell on the day preceding the all-star game and thus made them unavailable for service in the game the fans are most anxious to witness.

The National league authorities have been most flagrant in their "public be damned" policy. In his anxiety to win the game, Ford Frick, National league boss, decided upon the manager-selected team, and at a conference talked Harridge into it.

The result is a flood of criticism and it has changed Harridge's viewpoint. He's now in favor of the fan-picked team. Frick hasn't committed himself, but he, too, after the third straight National league defeat, must see the logic of the argument. He can't do worse and might do better.

President Harridge's Idea

Harridge proposes to increase the player squad from 20 to 23. He'd have the fans through a nation-wide ballot pick 18 of the players for each team, reserving for the management the right to pick in the case of error five additional performers.

It is a grand idea, and if it isn't adopted will again indict the magnates for stupidity. It would guarantee that players like Cy Blanton of the Pirates, Hank Leiber of the White Sox, popular favorites of the moment, would get into the game, and keep off the squad passe veterans who have passed the meridian of their careers and keep their places only because of past reputation.

FORMAL OPENING OF M'GUIRE GOLF CLUB THURSDAY

Elaborate Program Is Arranged At New West Monroe Course

Formal opening of the new West Monroe golf club at McGuire's park will be held next Thursday afternoon and night with an elaborate program of entertainment, it was announced Saturday night by Jim McKenzie, club professional.

No green fees will be charged and every golf player in Ouachita parish is invited to attend.

All kinds of sweepstakes will be held and free refreshments will be served at the new club house both during the afternoon and at night.

The beautiful new nine-hole course is in the best possible shape, considering the short time it has been built. The greens are in excellent condition and the fairway is fast and clean.

Play will begin about 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon and continue until dark and everything possible will be done to add to the enjoyment of the visiting golfers and the other guests, it was said.

Visitors are asked to drive out highway 80 to Seventh street and turn right to the club house. This is necessary because of the levee work which is being done on Trenton street.

The West Monroe course, which is backed financially by the Brown Paper mill and its officials, will be one of the finest and most beautiful in the south when a little more work has been done to it.

Its water hazards equal any of the finer and larger courses of the country and its general plan shows careful study by the club professional and his aides.

Mr. McKenzie is reputed to be one of the best golf teachers in this section of the country. Some of the finest golfers have been tutored by him.

The new club house, while small, is well arranged and fully equipped with showers and lounge rooms. It was so planned that additions can be made in the future as the demand and finances permit.

West Monroe golfers have taken a great interest in their club and an increasing number are patronizing it.

At the present time non-member golfers are allowed to use the course with the payment of a small green fee.

The course is located at McGuire park and the club house across the highway from the course.

THREE MATCHES COMPLETE ROUND

Second Round Play In Lakeside Tourney To Start On Monday

Only three matches remain to be played in the first round of Lakeside Country club's championship golf tournament and these will be run off today, thus clearing the deck for the start of second round play Monday, Shep Girault, Lakeside pro, announced yesterday. One week will be allowed for the completion of second round matches.

The three matches slated at the country club today are H. L. Woods vs. H. K. Tauchstone, F. B. Winbery vs. C. S. Foster and Bun Beasley vs. Morton Braswell.

Following are the results of first round matches already played:

Record-Breaking Feats Presage Bright Outlook For U. S. In Olympics

By John J. Romano

All eyes of the sports world these days visualize the probable chances of the various athletes in the 1936 Olympiad to be held at Berlin. It is rather early to predict the chances of the United States team in spite of record-breaking performances being recorded in practically every meet. Little news of such straining efforts seeps through the press releases.

It is the general belief that Americans put on a lot of swank and are determined to lead the world if such a thing as bluff will do it. Anyone acquainted with the stringent rules required to record an official new mark will quickly convince you that it simply is not done. To gain title to a new mark requires as many affidavits, sworn and signed by numerous officials, as winning the coveted D. S. C. or Victoria Cross on the field of battle. It is well that such is the case. No athlete, no matter what his nationality may be, wants his name on the Hall of Fame unless he justly deserves it. That is what makes the Olympic games the focus of the sports world every four years.

Owens And Peacock

Scanning over the American entrants one has but to look to Jesse Owens, of Ohio State, and Eulace Peacock, of Temple. If there are more versatile athletes on the cinder path they are yet to be discovered. These superb athletes specialize in four events and it will take something like a frightened deer in the sprints to a kangaroo in the broad jump to beat them. Four firsts mean plenty of points.

Anton Kishon, the youngster from the little heard of Bates college, is another to be heard from when the distance is measured off in the 16-pound hammer throw. The young giant snapped the weight at 168 feet and 6 7-8 inches. There's nothing record-shattering about that but remember Anton is a youngster and is only beginning to learn the fine points of tossing the hammer. With any kind of encouragement and pointers from those who have him in charge, Kishon may set a better mark than that made by Matt McGrath in Stockholm in 1912. He needs but nine feet more to erase burly Matt's standing record.

Jarvinen Will Be Pressed

Scandinavia has had a monopoly on the javelin. But Charley Gongloff, of Pittsburgh, may have something to say. His record-breaking toss in the National Collegiates heightened the hopes of those who eschewed an American victory. Gongloff smashed the mark set up by Bob Parke, of Oregon, by a few inches. When fractions count, inches are like daylight between the first and second horse in a race. They pay off on the leader. The all-time Olympic mark for the javelin is 238 feet and 7 inches made by Matti Jarvinen, of Finland, at Los Angeles three years ago. Gongloff attained 221 feet 3 1-8 inches. Not far to go to set a new figure when one considers the time the Pittsburgher has in which to improve before he toes the mark against the best world has to offer.

Gongloff will be competing against a scion of a family long known in Olympic triumphs. Jarvinen's father was a champion discus man in the ancient Greek classics. Not content with the success he attained in world-wide competition, the elder Jarvinen coached and trained his sons to a point where they became world renowned for their efforts.

Akilles Jarvinen went out for the decathlon. This is the highest prize in international competition. The Finn reckoned without the power of Jim Bausch, American star, and all-around athlete. Bausch won the ten events without forcing himself to the limit.

Matti, the record-holder for zipping the steel-tiped spear through the air, was more successful. In addition to gladdening his father's heart, Matti's throw eclipsed all others and is still on the books as the supreme toss of the javelin. That is what young Gongloff is shooting at!

Will Make Presence Felt

Don Elser of Notre Dame is another husky calculated to add points for the American team and send Old Glory flying from the topmost standard. Don plays considerable football and basketball. This does not hinder him from attempting to heave the 16-pound ball farther than more illustrious athletes such as Leo Sexton who tossed the iron pill 52 feet, 6 3-16 inches. Elser's best effort is 50 feet, 7 1-8 inches. Don has not far to go before he can write his name in Olympic history.

Sexton had very little training before he began to get distance behind his heaves. Elser is built on better lines. He reminds you of a giant oak towering high above the others but possessing graceful lines, denying to the sight the power and strength possessed in its fibre. Elser is like that. He takes to all sports as a duck takes to water and accomplishes the results expected without undue effort. Elser will be hard to beat once he polishes indescernible raw edges and gains the smoothing process of his specialty. Elser also shows exceptional form as a sprinter and hurdler of merit. Count on the Notre Dame star for sure points.

All in all, this outline touches on but a few of the outstanding Olympic stars. There is still time for others to develop out of the shadows and who knows but that those mentioned may be eclipsed by others to come up in the meantime.

SCHMELING SIGNS TO MEET JOE LOUIS IN SEPTEMBER

15-ROUND BOUT TO BE HELD AT POLO GROUNDS

Winner Between German And Negro To Get Crack At Braddock

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, July 13.—Disclosing a shift in heavyweight fight plans which apparently eliminates Max Baer from the picture, Promoter Mike Jacobs today closed negotiations for a 15-round match between Joe Louis and Max Schmeling, to be held September 18 at the Polo Grounds.

Max Schmeling

The winner, according to Jacobs, will likely be matched with James J. Braddock for the world's championship in 1936. Braddock is under contract to make his first title defense for the Madison Square Garden corporation, but Jacobs, head of the 20th Century Sporting club, does not consider this a barrier to his projected plans to promote a championship fight next year.

Originally Jacobs contemplated matching the Louis-Schmeling winner with Max Baer, this October, but the promoter doubts whether the former heavyweight champion will attempt a come-back.

"I am not figuring on a fight for Baer," said Jacobs. "I don't think he wants to fight again but he may change his mind. We can reconsider the prospects, if and when Max decides what he wants to do. He doesn't know himself now."

Baer had his hands examined this week at Baltimore, found there were no broken bones and was told he could get them in shape to box by September. Before Louis knocked out Primo Carnera, the plan was to match the "Brown Bomber" with Baer. Subsequently the Californian married and talked about retirement, with the result that Joe Jacobs, American manager of Schmeling, seized the opportunity to grab the spot for the hard-hitting German.

The terms for Schmeling's contract with the 20th Century club finally were agreed upon today in an exchange of cables between Mike Jacobs and Joe Jacobs, who hustled to Germany soon after Louis knocked out Carnera. The "Brown Bomber" already has signed. The principals will split upward of 50 per cent of the "gate."

Promoter Jacobs believes the Louis-Schmeling fight will draw the biggest crowd for a non-championship bout since Jack Dempsey knocked out Jack Sharkey before a million-dollar house at the Yankee stadium in 1927. Jacobs predicts the gross receipts will touch $750,000 due mainly to the sensational interest aroused by the rise of the "Brown Bomber" as a heavyweight title threat.

Joe Jacobs is due to sail from Germany on Tuesday, bringing with him Schmeling's signature. The German, one-time holder of the world championship, probably will return to the United States the middle of August.

Schmeling fought himself back into heavyweight prominence this year with knockout victories over Steve Hamas and Walter Neusel.

Louis has one hurdle to clear before meeting Schmeling. The Detroit negro is matched with King Levinsky at Chicago August 7. He will be a heavy favorite to dispose of the veteran, who was knocked out last winter in two rounds by Baer.

QUITS HUNTING TRIP

BERLIN, July 13.—(AP)—Max Schmeling came in from the woods today to sign a contract to battle Joe Louis of Detroit in a milk fund battle in New York in September.

Joe Jacobs, the German's American manager, said yesterday that Schmeling, on a hunting trip, called him by telepehone and agreed to meet the dusky bomber who slugged Primo Carnera out of the heavyweight title picture recently.

Schmeling was under contract to Walter Rothenburg, European promoter, to fight Max Baer in Amsterdam, Holland, but the condition of Baer's hands threeatened to prevent that engagement.

The German fighter, according to Jacobs, expressed confidence of defeating the sensational negro and going on from there to wrest the crown from Jim Braddock.

Jacobs talked to milk fund promoters in New York by long distance telephone today.

BOXING CLASSES ARE HELD THREE NIGHTS EACH WEEK

The recently organized amateur boxing club will hold classes on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday nights, it was announced yesterday. There is no charge for boxing instructions and all interested in the sport are invited to attend the classes.

Classes for those who have had previous instructions or experience begin at 3:30 o'clock, followed by a class for inexperienced boxers at 8 o'clock on each of the three nights. Those who attend are asked to be on time so that the classes may get started as early as possible.

The classes are held in the rear of 119 North Second street, and those who attend are asked to use the rear entrance.

Several new members were added to the club roster at last Thursday night's classes.

Every sixth worker in the United States is employed in the manufacture or servicing of motor vehicles.

North Carolina Pro Cops First Money In Open At Fonthill

FONTHILL, Ont., July 13.—(AP)—The tortoise beat the hare today and Tony Manero of Greensboro, N. C., carried off $750 first prize money in the General Brock hotel open golf tournament.

Manero, a New York born Italian, posted a 291 for the 72-hole medal play without being under par for any 18-hole round. He shot consistent golf throughout, however, to take first money away from other shotmakers, some of whom turned in sensational individual rounds only to falter on others.

In a tie for second place was Byron Nelson, Ridgewood, N. J., player and Bud Donovan of Winnipeg, former Manitoba amateur champion, each of whom carded totals of 292.

Tied at 293 were Ray Mangrum of Pittsburgh and Clarence Doser, Rochester, N. Y. Bob Alston of Ottawa and Jimmy Thompson of Hollywood, Calif., had 294 each and then, one stroke behind at 295, came Walter Hagen, Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., Harry Cooper of Chicago and Tommy Miyamoto who headed six Japanese entrants.

Donovan, one of the early finishers, watched Manero shoot par on his last nine holes to oust him from first place but Manero in turn had some anxious moments as Hagen and Nelson started their last nine holes needing 35's to go ahead of him.

IF WIND IS BLOWING, NO. 1 IRON WILL KEEP BALL OUT OF IT

During the Pasadena Open, one of the early tournaments played during the last winter gold rush, Jug McSpaden, Kansas City, Kan., pro, claims he played the best four rounds of golf in his life. His scores were 70-67-71-73.

Victory in this tournament did not hinge on one stroke, as often is the case, for McSpaden led the field to the wire by five shots.

"The very best shot, and the one that is most vivid in my mind," says McSpaden, "is the No. 1 iron I hit on the twelfth during the final round.

"The wind was blowing, and having the equivalent of a spoon shot to get home, I picked that iron. I rather would play a long shot with this club than with a spoon, believing the chances of getting off a good shot are not only better, but it is easier to control a ball with an iron than with a wood. The ball, hit crisply, kept low and out of the wind, where a spoon would have sent it. The shot ended three feet from the cup."

The No. 1 iron is used McSpaden for distance, and is played the same as a spoon. The ball is placed a few inches more toward the right foot than for the drive, where the ball is teed at a point off the left foot.

A full pivot is necessary if the player is to get the required yardage. Although the ball is struck before the club hits the turf, it is unlike other iron shots where the ball is hit a decided downward blow.

Grove Regains Some Of Former Effectiveness

By Bill King
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

BOSTON, July 13.—Those brazen American league batters who have been going back on their heels to take a healthy swing at Bob (Lefty) Grove's fading fireball had better get up on their toes again, warns Pilot Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox, his old teammate.

With 10 wins to his credit, two more than he gained during all of last season, and with the comforting thought that he would have had three more but for infield boots, Grove has silenced most of the critics who claimed that Tom Yawkey, Red Sox owner, paid Connie Mack $100,000 for a worn-out pitcher.

"You can't take any more roundhouse cuts at Mose," Dykes said. "He don't give you any more good balls. He's curving plenty these days and most of the time he throws his fast one, it's going right by you, just as it did when we were with the Athletics."

Jimmy Foxx, the last of Mack's pennant-winning stars, is equally proud of his old teammate's comeback.

"Lefty's throws hiss past you with quite a bit this season," Foxx explained. "He has probably lost some of his terrific speed, but he has given his fireball a new touch that makes it as effective as ever. Nowadays the last six feet of Lefty's fast pitches seem to jump. This is probably an optical illusion but it gives the batter a tendency to swing late."

While getting No. 10 against the White Sox the other day, Grove held them to five hits, all of which were made during the first three innings.

He was so elated over his performance that he was eager to talk about it, although he has strenuously avoided discussions about himself since his shoulder started aching during the 1934 spring training season.

"I had so much stuff," Grove explained, "that I couldn't control it. No one hit a good ball. Why some of those White Sox connected with throws that were almost wild pitches. They couldn't hit my fast ball and they didn't do much when I started curving it."

FULL PROGRAM AT COACHING SCHOOL

Many Innovations Planned At Mississippi State This Week

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., July 13.—(Special)—Numerous innovations supplementing the regular courses of instruction in six major college sports have been provided by the athletic department of State College for the coaching school here July 15-27.

A thorough course in training, giving the fundamentals of conditioning athletes and building up individuals physically, is to be given by Claude (Monk) Simons, Tulane trainer and physical education instructor. This course will parallel all courses for the two weeks in football, basketball, baseball, track, boxing and wrestling.

Major Sasse is bringing to the campus for two days Chuck Taylor, nationally known authority in basketball and one of the greatest players the game ever produced. Taylor will give a series of demonstrations and exhibitions in dribbling, passing, shooting and pivoting to supplement his lectures on the fine points of the game.

J. E. Burghard, Southeastern conference official, has been secured to interpret rules changes effective next fall, and Harold Drew, Alabama end coach and chief scout, has been scheduled to lecture on the fine points of scouting opponents. Drew last year scouted Stanford for Alabama and will show pictures of the Rose bowl game while here as instructor in the coaching school.

R. P. Patty, business manager of the athletic department, has arranged a series of entertainments for attending coaches. He has planned two dances, one each week, a barbecue, swimming parties, golfing and tennis for persons registered for the two weeks.

A stream of inquiries pouring into the athletic office this week indicates that attendance will be far beyond expectation of those in charge.

GIRAULT OFFERS FREE INSTRUCTION

Classes For Lakeside Club Members' Children Start Tuesday

Shep Girault, professional at the Lakeside Country club is opening a class of instruction for youngsters who are interested in learning to play the game of golf, it was announced yesterday.

Classes will be held every Tuesday from 9 to 10 a.m. at the Country club and are open to all club member's children under 16 years of age. The classes will be given free of charge.

The children will need only one club to start with, preferably a mashie, and Mr. Girault suggests that they get an old club from their parents and he will cut it down to fit their requirements. If a child can't get a club at home, he will loan them one to get started with, the professional said.

Mr. Girault pointed out that the best time to teach a boy or girl the correct fundamentals of a good golf swing is while they are young. "Once the child gets the knack of it, the improvement in their game will be very rapid," he said.

All boys and girls interested in the game are urged to come out for the first lesson Tuesday morning at 9 a.m.

EVANGELINE LEAGUE

(By Associated Press)

Alexandria and Rayne of the Evangeline baseball league engaged in a scoreless duel for five innings Saturday before Kirschner's homer in the sixth with the bases loaded scored four runs. Rayne finally won 6 to 1.

Abbeville jumped to sixth place in the league by defeating Lake Charles in a doubleheader, 6-1 and 3-1, sending Lake Charles to seventh place.

Jeanerette, the league leaders, had little difficulty in beating New Iberia, 12 to 1.

RUSTON DEFEATS SHREVEPORT NINE

Foxmen Pound Three Hurlers To Score 9-2 Win Over Cedar Grove

RUSTON, La., July 13.—(Special)—Going on another batting rampage similar to the one here Wednesday afternoon against Swartz, Ruston defeated the Cedar Grove nine of Shreveport by a 9 to 2 score in the Memorial park Saturday. The locals sent two invading pitchers to the showers before they were slowed up by Guillery, the third hurler to try his hand.

The home club's attack was led by "Sport" Grafton of Bernice with three hits in five times at bat. Grafton is a former Tech star and is playing his third season with the Ruston town team.

Ruston started off in the first inning by making two runs. After Mitchell and Thigpen had reached base on hits, Jimmy Davis doubled to deep center and both men scored. A hit batsman and double by Grafton gave the locals another run in the second.

The invaders started their attack in the fifth when a walk to Blume and double by J. Beckett brought in a tally. Two hits brought in another run for the visitors in the sixth which ended their scoring for the day.

Hits by Willis and Grafton gave the Foxmen another score in their half of the sixth. Doubles by Willis and Riser added another in the seventh.

The Ruston club batted around in the eighth to add four more runs to their total. Pankey walked, Grafton singled, Mitchell walked and then Hinton hit a long double to right field to bring in three runs. Davis then singled to bring in Hinton to complete the scoring spree.

VAULT TO 'DOUBLE-DOUBLE'

For consistent excellence the sophomoric pole-vaulting pair from the University of Southern California, Bill Sefton (left) and Earle Meadows, has set a lofty standard. The boys are 1935 co-champions and co-record holders at 14 feet 1 1-8 inches—of the National Collegiate A. A., and co-champions—at 13 feet 3-8 inches—of the National A. A. U. In other words, they couldn't beat each other, but they could beat everybody else in two of the greatest groups of athletes the track and field world has known.

Identify, Former Plater, Reaches Top Within Year

Coupled With Discovery, Man o' War's Son Provides Great Team

By Max Riddle
(NEA Service Turf Writer)

NEW YORK, July 13.—One of the most interesting high lights of the current racing season is the superb form shown by Identify, a four-year-old son of Man o' War, which young Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt claimed from Morton L. Schwartz for $3,500 last year.

One hardly can stretch the imagination far enough to state that Identify is a high-class stake horse. But he easily has been the star of the New England racing season, and has proved a more successful campaigner than his more famous stable mate, Discovery.

One interesting feature of the rise of this former plater is that he is a specialist at certain middle distances, such as a mile and a sixteenth to a mile and three-eights.

In this respect he parallels the famous King Saxon. King Saxon, also a recruit from the better plater ranks, is a specialist at distances up to a mile.

What this means is simply that the Vanderbilt stable can depend upon Identify to grab the major share of stake and handicap prizes at the middle distances, while Discovery is copping from a mile and an eighth to a mile and a quarter in rich specials, such as the Brooklyn, or Arlington and Saratoga stakes.

Identify was cut out to be a slasher, as his blood lines show. He is an aptly named son of Man o' War, out of Footprint, by Grand Parade.

Though for several years Man o' War has sent nothing to the races with any more class than War Glory—a very small horse, one of the best three-year-olds of 1933, winning the Dwyer stakes—Identify was highly tried and seemed to be lacking.

Keeps Vanderbilt Faith

But Trainer Max Hirsch had him in the best form of his life when he was claimed for the Vanderbilt interests. One might suppose that a Vanderbilt, having millions and being intent upon establishing a great racing and breeding stable, would have no interest in horses which were racing in the claimer class.

However, Vanderbilt somehow got the idea the Man o' War colt would produce. He did! Less than a week after Identify changed stables, he snared the Annapolis purse, beating Dust Girl in the mud, with Bradley's Bazaar out of the money. Ever since that time, Identify has been steadily improving.

He has won five stakes this year, the Granite State, Toboggan at Belmont Park, White Mountain handicap, in which he beat nine others, the Rockingham Park handicap, and the Governor's handicap.

In the Rockingham Park he saved the day for Vanderbilt, whose Discovery was expected to be the winner. Discovery could do no better than third, but Identify led all the way, beat Dark Hope by three lengths, and Discovery by two more. Back of these were Vicar, Our Count, War Glory, Gallant Mac and Howard.

Weight No Handicap

Perhaps the Governor's handicap was his best race, for he carried 125 pounds, giving away as much as 25 pounds to his rivals led all the way, and set a new track record of 1:50 3-5 for a mile and an eighth.

It takes a good horse to break a record with that weight up.

Thus, though Identify may be no Head Play or Discovery, he is proving himself one of the most dependable good horses in the country, and he will go down in history as just one more of the good ones sired by the old super horse, Man o' War.

CARIDEO TO JOIN STARKVILLE STAFF

Sasse Hires Former Notre Dame Star As Mississippi State Aide

ATLANTA, July 13.—(AP)—The engagement of Frank Carideo, former Notre Dame all-America quarterback, as an assistant coach was announced today by Major Ralph Irvin Sasse, one-time West Point mentor and now head coach at Mississippi State college.

Carideo will report Sept. 2 and become a full-time aide, Sasse said, helping with the development of backfield material besides specializing in coaching the kickers.

The former Notre Dame star will round out Sasse's staff, which also includes Capt. Ross MacKechnie, former head coach at Mississippi State, and Captain John Stokes, line tutor, who served with the major at West Point.

There is a bit of dramatic background to the new combination. Carideo was all-America quarterback of Knute Rockne's last Notre Dame team, in 1930, the first year of Sasse's regime as head coach at Army. They met in the mud at Chicago and the Soldiers came close to upsetting one of the greatest teams Rockne ever developed. The margin of a 7-6 victory was furnished by Carideo's point after touchdown. It was the only close call that the Notre Dame juggernaut, which slaughtered Pennsylvania, 60 to 20, and trounced Southern California, 27 to 0, had that year.

Carideo served as an assistant to Noble Kizer at Purdue in 1931, then went to the University of Missouri as head coach for three years. He resigned at the end of the 1934 season, after being under fire for failure to get winning results, and was replaced by Don Faurot.

BROWN AT STERLINGTON

Brown Paper mill meets the Sterlington Engineers at Sterlington at 3:30 p.m. today in what should be one of the most interesting and bitterly contested games of the season as it will give one of the teams undisputed possession of first place in the second half standing. Each team has won 3 and lost 1.

The Sterlington Engineers, first half champions, won the first half with 16 games won and 4 lost, while Brown Paper mill finished only one game behind with 15 wins and 5 losses. Sterlington practically eliminated Brown single handed in the first half by winning all four of their games from them, but Brown has strengthened their team by the addition of McAlpin and Clifford Johnson, each of them power-houses at the plate, as well as adding some pitching strength.

Manager Loomis at Sterlington feels that his offense, headed by Gilbert, who is hitting an average of .506, is good enough to take the second half. He did add three pitchers to help on the defense. The pitchers added were Holt of Arkansas U., Crowe of Shreveport and Baumstenn of Ole Miss.

The managers of each team refuse to announce their starting pitcher as a game of this importance prohibits a hasty decision.

BATTING MARKS TAKE SLUMP IN BOTH LEAGUES

Vaughan And Johnson Suffer Losses In Race For Hitting Honors

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—Due to the two-day layoff for the all-star game and various other causes, there wasn't much activity in the major leagues during the past week and what there was didn't suit the leading hitters at all.

Only a few of the leading regulars in either league managed to improve their averages during the week which ended with Friday's games and some of the losses were surprisingly large in view of the few games.

Floyd (Arky) Vaughan, of Pittsburgh, National league pace setter, took a 15-point drop from last week's high mark of .406 as he hit safely only twice in 14 trips to the plate. His leading rivals, Joe Medwick of St. Louis and Bill Terry of New York, lost one point apiece but Vaughan's long lead wasn't seriously damaged as he remained 30 points above Medwick's .361 mark.

In the American league the leader, Bob Johnson of the Athletics, continued his downward progress for another six points to .352 with seven hits in 25 times up. His teammate, Wally Moses, who was second last week, skidded to eighth place, losing 13 points while Charley Gehringer of Detroit, who hit seven times in 18 attempts for a three-point gain, moved into second at .344.

Several changes were recorded in both circuits by those hitters whose averages defied gravitation.

ROEBUCK SIGNED TO MEET DAVIS IN MAIN EVENT

FAMOUS INDIAN ATHLETE TO TRY TO TAME OHIOAN

Davis Spots Tiny 55 Pounds In Feature Of Wednesday Mat Card

Tiny Roebuck, famous Indian athlete who turned to wrestling and became one of the top-notchers in the game, will be brought here Wednesday night to meet Karl Davis in the main event of the weekly mat show at Roosevelt stadium, Promoter Charlie Bruscato announced last night.

Roebuck has been one of wrestling's headliners for a number of years. After a scintillating athletic career, he capitalized on his fame and entered professional wrestling, where he won immediate success. He quickly won his way to the top and is still ranked with the best grapplers in the business today.

Roebuck is a Pawhuska Indian. He weighs 280 pounds and thus will be the heaviest wrestler ever to perform in Roosevelt stadium. He is one of the most powerful grapplers in the game. The Indian has met such stars as Jimmy Londos, Strangler Lewis, Jack Washburn, Pat McGill, George Zaharias, Dick Shikat and many other headliners, and he always puts on a good show.

Davis, who tips the beam at 225 pounds and will be giving away lost weight when he tackles Roebuck, made his local debut last week, severely trouncing Laverne Baxter. He impressed local fans as being about the best man ever to enter the local ring, including Dr. Karl Sarpolis, Leo, the Terror or anybody else. Has whirlwind style was reminiscent of Wild Red Berry, but the fact that he weighs some 50 pounds more than Berry makes him that much tougher. Rarely has one grappler dealt out such an unmerciful beating to another as Davis did to Baxter.

Davis wasn't impressed at all when Bruscato approached him to sign for the Roebuck match.

"I don't care if he weighs 380 pounds and is the champion of the world, I'll beat him," was his reply to the warning that Roebuck's reputation would make him the favorite. "I'll whip anybody you throw in there against me. What I did to Baxter last Wednesday night is only a sample."

Baxter asked Bruscato for another crack at Davis but the promoter refused to accomodate the North Carolina youngster. Bruscato said he thought Roebuck, who was available for Wednesday's spot, would have a better chance of taking Davis down a notch or two. Baxter immediately got in touch with Promoter Julius Sigel at Shreveport and closed for another chance against Davis in the Caddo arena Monday night.

"Davis is too dirty for Baxter," Bruscato said in explaining his refusal to re-match the pair. "I believe Roebuck will cool Mr. Davis off and even if it costs me more money, I'm bringing him here to do that very thing."

Davis boasts of being the roughest matman in the game today, and his antics have won him a measure of fame throughout the nation. He glorifies so plainly in brawling, that his array of science has been lost in a round of slugging, kneeing, kicking and elbowing. He delights in battering down his opponents, to say nothing of the referees—and sometimes even the promoter, if he happens to be handy, comes in for his share. The boos and hisses of the crowd are music to his ears.

Recently Karl wrestled Chief Chewicki, rasslin's King Kong and Frankenstein, for the "bad man" supremacy. The big Gypsy, riding on the crest of unpopularity, was enjoying the undisputed "old meanie" title until the big Swede swooped down and began stealing his thunder. As a result of the Davis-Chewicki warfare, the Chief, with all his thumb tacks, his tape and wire, stove lids and chloroformed rags, plus 235 pounds of beef, was maade pale and effeminate by comparison.

Among the victims of his assault and battery tactics, according to a recent edition of The Ring, Davis numbers Dick Daviscourt, Jim McMillan, Gino Garibaldi, Glen Wade, Jim Clinstock, Man Mauntain Dean, Marshall Blackstock, Dorv Roche and he had held Rudy Dusek, Karl Sarpolis, Abe Coleman and Everette Marshall to draws.

Davis is a graduate of Ohio State university and it isn't his intention to remain in the mat game for long. He plans to return to his Alma Mater as physical director and settle down to a quiet life with his family.

Bruscato said last night that the semi-final bout has not been completed but that he hoped to bring a couple of good men here in an effort to make it an all-star card.

REDS TRIM DODGERS

CINCINNATI, July 13.—(AP)—A pitchers' battle between George Earnshaw, veteran Brooklyn righthander, and Al Hollingsworth, Cincinnati's rookie southpaw, terminated disastrously for the former today when the Reds put over three runs in the eighth to gain their third straight victory, 5 to 2.

The triumph left the Reds only a half game behind the fifth-place Brooklyn club.

CUBS WIN PAIR

CHICAGO, July 13.—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs ran a winning streak to six games today by turning back the Boston Braves 10 to 2 and 3 to 1, in both ends of a doubleheader before 11,500 here. The twin wins extended their season's record over the Braves to 12 out of 14.

Charley Root's effective relief pitching, after Starter Roy Henshaw lost control in the third, and a 13-hit attack against Danny MacFayden and Bob Brown gave the Cubs the opener, while Bill Lee turned in his ninth victory in the nightcap by allowing only three Braves to reach second and himself batting in the winning margin by doubling after Frank Demaree and Chuck Klein had singled in the fourth.

BIG CROWD ATTENDS TRANSIENT PROGRAM

A record crowd of about 600 persons attended the wrestling and boxing show held Friday night at the Transient Bureau recreation field.

Manuel Lopez, 178-pound professional matman from Laredo, Texas, won the main event, from Troy Powell, 165-pound amateur. It was a handicap match and it was necessary for Lopez to win two falls in thirty minutes with punishing holds barred. He won the first fall in fourteen minutes and the second in eleven minutes.

In the semi-final attraction, John Achton and George Burns clowned through three rounds of boxing, and for a curtain raiser, Jack Proctor won a decision over Frank Schatte after three rounds of close fighting.

An exhibition boxing match featured Curley Jordan, contender for the featherweight championship from 1905 to 1909, and Joe Ackerman, promising youngster under the tutorship of Jordan. In two other preliminary wrestling bouts Dick Phillips threw Young Barksdale in four minutes, and Tom Moore battled to a fifteen-minute draw with Red the Terror.

Another wrestling and boxing show, free to the public, will be held at the Transient field Tuesday night.

New York City licenses approximately 1,000,000 chauffeurs and operators of motor vehicles.

who succeeded Stanley by appointment of Governor O. K. Allen, announced the dismissal of three assistants and the appointment of two new ones.

Those dismissed were: First Assistant J. Bernard Cocke, Michael E. Culligan, prosecutor in Judge William O'Hara's division of criminal court, and Archie Wagner, office assistant.

Herbert Christenberry, brother of Earl Christenberry, secretary to Senator Long, and Sidney A. Mitchell, staunch Long supporter, were named assistant district attorneys. No successor was named for Wagner.

Mrs. Margaret Connely, office telephone operator, also was dismissed.

Stanley resigned suddenly Thursday night after the legislature, a week ago, enacted a bill stripping him of the right to name his own assistants.

Stanley and Long have been bitter political enemies since the former defeated Byrne overwhelmingly for the district attorneyship in January, 1934. Byrne was Long's candidate for the post.

Following the council meeting Mayor Walmsley declined to comment on reports that in the event the legislature sought to address him out of office he would carry his fight into the federal courts. However, he again asserted his determination to retain his office "under any conditions."

Definite plans for the "Old Regulars" mass meetings will be laid at a caucus called for 10 a. m., Monday. Also at that time an effort will be made to swing into the Long ranks the four ward leaders who refused to leave Walmsley at yesterday's caucus.

The mayor announced today that all city employes except those receiving their salaries from the federal emergency relief administration on Monday would receive 50 per cent of their salaries for the first half of July.

The payroll, he said, would come from miscellaneous revenues of the city and would amount to approximately $70,000.

Among those who will receive half-salaries are city policemen and firemen, who are controlled by the Long forces.

timated by army engineers for the Markham plan.

"After hearings and discussions from all sides and continued executive sessions, this is the only course to pursue with any prospect of final results," Wilson said in a statement.

"The work in the Atchafalaya basin (the Morganza floodway) presents the emergency feature and we are assured of cooperation on the part of the people and the local interests.

"The increased carrying capacity and more rapid discharge through the Atchafalaya channel will bring relief to the lower section of the Tensas basin which is not provided for in the plan for the Eudora floodway. On the other hand flood damages there would be increased and without compensation since it is designated as a backwater area.

"All admit that the Eudora floodway as recommended would never be undertaken and no compensation paid to anyone since the positive provisions are that flowage rights, easements and waiver of all damages must be complete before any work will be undertaken; also the fuse plug would never be raised as that was not to be undertaken until the work was completed.

"A floodway constructed by condemnation proceedings is opposed and is impossible for many reasons:

"First, that the cost is estimated by the chief of engineers to be from four to five times that estimated in the review report.

"Second, if purchased, and controlled by the United States government the annual cost of six dollars per acre each year would have to be expended for upkeep, not to mention railroads and highways.

"So my conclusions, after careful study of every phase of the problem, is that we should adopt a program of legislation that can be enacted and that will be effective for definite results."

Wilson offered his bill as a reply to charges made early this week by Harry Jacobs, assistant state engineer, that the committee chairman was holding up action upon uncontroverted features of the flood control program through opposition to the Eudora floodway.

He said today that the best answer to Jacobs was to quote his own testimony before the house committee last April when Jacobs declared:

"I would like to see the consideration of the committee given to nothing being done or referred to as a floodway in the Eudora. It should be excluded, taken out of the recommendation, because we cannot expect those people, under a recommendation of that kind or under a bill of this kind, to be singled out and to have all of their land made subject to that condition, which would affect them so seriously."

Here's Real Boy's Job ---Busting Toy Balloons

CLEVELAND, July 13.—(AP)—For a boy—it's the world's grandest job.

Fay Csuri, head bus boy at a Cleveland hotel, spends a great deal of his time every day deflating toy balloons, and he does it by the good old hand sling-shot method of a rubber band and a pin.

It's an old custom of the hotel to present child guests with them in one of the principal dining rooms. Often the child lets go of the string and the balloon floats to the ceiling and, eventually, is forgotten.

That's where Csuri enters. After the guests have departed he "shoots" the balloons down.

was heard at Rodriquez, 3,000 miles away, as though a New York explosion should be heard in San Francisco and London.

Batavia, a city 100 miles distant, was made dark as night by falling ashes, and lava dust, blown high into the atmosphere, drifted across the Pacific and affected weather here. A tidal wave caused by the explosion drowned thirty-six thousand persons in the Malay Archipelago, and the effect of that tidal disturbance was seen in long ocean waves at Cape Horn, 7,818 miles away, and in the English channel, 11,040 miles away.

Atmospheric waves set up by volcanic power "were reflected back and forth around the earth, seven times." How much "better" could nature do if she did her best.

In old days, two armies, drawn up for battle, went home in a hurry, when a solar eclipse began. They took that as a hint from above. What sort of hint would be needed to make Mussolini change his plans. No mere volcano could produce it.

WOMAN CONVICTED IN KIDNAP CASE

encouragement given to the fugitive William Dainard, otherwise known as Bill Mahan, will be followed by indictment and prosecution to the full extent of the law."

The contention of Mrs. Waley that she was under the domination of her husband had brought a denouncement from government attorneys, who said she thus had been trying to hide behind the Mormon religion to escape punishment.

Judge Cushman instructed the jury that a person's religious creed could not be recognized as a defense.

Waley recently pleaded guilty to similar charges and was sentenced to 45 years in prison.

Assistant United States Attorney Owen P. Hughes in his summation pictured the blonde Mrs. Waley as a cold blooded gangster "moll."

John F. Dore, former mayor of Seattle and chief defense attorney, defended the young wife's religion claim and her witness stand statement that she feared to interfere with the kidnaping because of threats by Mahan.

The defense attorney brought Mrs. Waley's family and economic background into his argument when he declared she was the child of a father "who has no occupation other than filling up the house with children he can't support."

Publisher Of Newspaper On State Board 16 Years

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 13.—(AP)—A quiet, middle-aged Frederick, Okla., newspaper publisher who has watched governors come and go in a politically strife-torn state, has won the distinction of serving longer than any other state board member in Oklahoma.

J. L. Newland, whose chief hobby is education, is serving his sixteenth continuous year as a member of the state board of education.

GEORGE HOOKER

The funeral of George Hooker, 55, who was found dead in a hotel room in Shreveport early Friday, due to a stroke of apoplexy, will be held this afternoon at Bonita, after which the body will be taken to Crossett, Ark., for interment.

Mr. Hooker was a former Monroe resident, having been line superintendent for the Monroe municipal light plant up to a few years ago, when he went to Shreveport to enter the employ of an electrical company as salesman. He was well known in Monroe, where he had a wide circle of friends.

His only child, a son, was drowned in the Ouachita river while swimming on July 4, 1933. His only immediate surviving relative is a sister residing in Crossett, Ark.

INDUSTRIAL--REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES

Sales Manager Issues Optimistic Statement After Long Trip

Production of Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks will continue at peak schedules throughout June, and probably considerably longer, W. E. Holler, vice president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor company, announced this week, following his return from a coast to coast trip through the territory, where he discussed with dealers and the wholesale organization in the field, the outlook for the next 90 days.

June output projections, Mr. Holler said, are higher than in June of last year, and full capacity of the manufacturing units and the company's 10 assembly plants will be required to carry out the program. This assures a wide spread of employment at a period when production normally begins to taper off. He added that it is the company's hope to maintain sales at such a level as to repeat the unprecedented achievement of last year, when Chevrolet sales in the second six months eclipsed those in the first.

"Several factors noted in the field justify optimistic predictions," said Mr. Holler. "In the first place, Chevrolet dealers have on hand a large banks of orders, which the plants are now working hard to fill. Deliveries are coming through much more promptly, and this fact is naturally having a favorable effect on the number of orders received.

"More than a dozen executives from Detroit are now out in the territory, addressing Chevrolet wholesale and retail personnel in all parts of the country. They are in constant touch with us, and the reports they have relayed in all point to continuation of business at or near its present peak.

"In the final analysis, the improvement can be traced clear back to the farm, which of course is fundamental in any picture of national prosperity. Farm income in most sections of the United States has shown a substantial gain over 1933 and 1934. The outlook for business from farmers would be good even without the addition of the government benefit moneys which have been pouring into rural sections.

"For the first time in several years, the farmer is in a position to rehabilitate himself. Federal aid is helping him to improve his home and his buildings. Higher prices for his produce—with hardly a single item excepted—are leaving him something over and above his actual living requirements, for investment in the commodities he needs. And the supplemental income derived from government sources is enabling him to include such major items as farm implements, cars and trucks, in the list of urgently needed articles he can now afford to buy.

"Chevrolet banks on its ability to obtain its share of this business, because farmers are thrifty buyers by habit. Particularly after a period when scarcity of funds forced them to 'play close to the belt,' they may be expected to attach full value to such important qualities as the durability and economy which are bywords with the product we sell.

"Reports from the field lead us to believe that a hundred million dollars would be no exaggerated value to place on the rainfall received in May. It could hardly have arrived at a time when it would do more good. Thousands of farmers were holding back on their spring seeding, apprehensive over the possibility of a second summer drouth. The psychological effect of the heavy rains was, therefore, greater, perhaps than their actual physical effect upon crops already in the ground, important as the latter benefits were, on their own account."

Chevrolet's expectation of sustained summer business, Mr. Holler explained, also takes into account the stimulus which urban communities are feeling as a direct result of the improvement so general on the farm.

"There is not line of business where the flow of money will not be favorably affected by the rising income on the farm," he said. "Our dealers will share in the increase, too, through the sale of the new cars, used cars and trucks."

An especially favorable sign, he added, is the unusually high percentage of trunk models among the passenger cars ordered this season. This condition confirms the prediction made by hotels and tourist agencies, to the effect that 1935 would see a resumption of motor touring on a scale so great as to surpass the highest previous record.

"This resumption of touring by the public is a good omen for business," he said. "It is one of the most reliable 'telltales' regarding the status of the public purse. When every other car encountered on the highways bears a license from some other state, you can write it down without fear of contradiction that things are decidedly looking up."

ARMATURE WORKS HAS LARGE PLANT

Concern At 2019 DeSiard Specializes On Industrial Motors

An important Monroe industry with which the general public is little acquainted is the Monroe Armature Works, Inc., of which M. S. Harrison is president and general manager.

This firm caters largely to industrial electrical work, although they repair any kind of motor, large or small. Repairs on electric motors, motor winding, control apparatus and supplies and power equipment are the specialties of the Monroe Armature Works. The plant does not solicit house wiring and automobile electrical work.

There isn't a better equipped plant of its kind in the state of Louisiana. There are larger plants in New Orleans, Mr. Harrison pointed out yesterday, but there are none of its size in other cities in the state and not even the large New Orleans plants are better equipped to turn out efficient work than the Monroe Armature Works.

The local concern employs only thoroughly skilled men and the class of work turned out is the highest. Mr. Harrison has operated the local plant for eight years, and in all, he has had 15 years of experience in the electrical field. At present he employs two other experienced assistants.

Often the Monroe Armature Works is called upon to enter the engineering field, such as rewinding motors for new speeds and changing motors to operate under new conditions, speed, etc. They are thoroughly capable of handling such jobs, as their many satisfied clients will testify.

The installation of industrial motors and wiring of large industrial plants, sawmills, etc., are done by the local concern.

The Monroe Armature Works carries a alrge stock of supplies, such as parts for motors, generators, switches and other items required in such work.

The concern is often called upon to overhaul, rewind and condition enormous motors and the public is invited to call at the plant and watch this interesting work. The address is 2019 DeSiard street, and the telephone number is 98. Mr. Harrison welcomes any inquiries concerning electrical work. He will gladly furnish estimates for any job and there is no obligation. Owners of industrial motors will find the prices charged by the Monroe Armature Works most reasonable.

SMART SHOWING OF BETTER CARS

Hudson And Terraplane Cars Are On Display At Adler's Showroom

The new Hudsons and Terraplanes for 1935 have arrived and are now on public display for the first time in the showrooms of Adler's, Inc., local distributors. Featured by lower, longer lines with more power, even finer performance and two of the latest developments of the industry, the new cars are expected to create a tremendous amount of interest. The two developments which are entirely new to the industry are the steel-roofed body which incloses the passengers in a silent, solid steel compartment with perfect ventilation and the new electric gearshift which entirely clears the front compartment and gives real finger-tip control of the car.

For 1935 the Hudson Motor Car company will build a special and deluxe series Terraplane 6 on 112-inch wheelbase and a complete series of Hudson cars on three wheelbases, namely, 116, 117 and 124-inch wheelbases. New for 1935 is the Hudson Big Six with a 93-horsepower engine mounted on 116-inch wheelbase chassis. There are five models of the Hudson standard 8 on 117-inch wheelbase with 113-horsepower, and three models of the Hudson DeLuxe 8 on the 117-inch wheelbase with 113 horsepower. In addition there is the big 8 which will be produced in two models —custom club sedan and custom brougham on 124-inch wheelbase, also with 113 horsepower.

From a performance standpoint, the Hudson and Terraplane models all offer improvements for 1935 over 1934. Detailed advancement in engineering and construction in the engine has resulted in increased power without any change in the basic dimensions. As a result of these improvements the power-weight ratio of the new cars is considerably more advantageous than for 1934 with a resulting increase in acceleration, hill climbing ability and top speed.

AUTO SHOULD BE CHECKED OFTEN

Boyce-Kendall Garage Stresses Point For Greater Economy

Many firms operating a fleet of automobiles and trucks have a repair garage of their own, employing an efficient mechanic and helpers. These repair plants are usually very well equipped so that the fleet might be kept in good repairs. It is usually the policy of the firm to have every truck and automobile checked at frequent intervals so that any trouble might be ascertained before it becomes serious and costly to remedy. This is efficient and economical.

As an individual owner of one automobile, you would not think of operating your own repair and service garage merely to repair and maintain your one car. Your problem, then, is to seek out a good auto repair shop where you feel that you will get efficient service and will be treated right. Following the practice of fleet owners, you will find it a good idea to have your car checked from time to time, regardless of how well it might be performing.

The Boyce-Kendall garage, the efficient and popular garage located at 111 North Third street, invites you to drive into their station at any time and they will be glad to go over your car with the idea of locating any defects that might be apparent at the time.

Boyce-Kendall have been in the automobile repair business in Monroe for several years. They have devoted their entire time to this field and have made a study of every problem pertaining to automobile and truck service and repairs. Through this conscientious and diligent application, Boyce-Kendall have gained the reputation of being one of the best-posted service companies on all makes of cars in Monroe and this territory.

Realizing that unless they equipped their plant with the proper equipment they would be sacrificing efficiency, Boyce-Kendall have installed in their North Third street garage practically every facility and convenience which they thought would improve and expedite working conditions there.

As a result, Boyce-Kendall company is one of the most modernly equipped repair shops in Monroe. A visit to this plant will convince anyone that investing capital has not been spared in providing this equipment for better service to Boyce-Kendall customers.

And remember—you don't have to have all cash to have your automobile repaired or overhauled at Boyce-Kendall's. They will be pleased to discuss their easy payment plan with you.

MAXIMUM SAFETY IN NEW NASH CAR

All-Steel Body And Seamless Top Help To Protect Passengers

Maximum safety for driver and passengers has been incorporated in the new 1936 Nash "400" recently announced, according to H. H. Benoit, local Nash-Lafayette dealer.

"In these days of higher motor car speeds, too much attention cannot be given to the development of greater safety factors in automobile construction," said Mr. Benoit. "Nash engineers have recognized this in designing the new '400' with the result that chassis and body of the new car represent the last word in safety construction.

"Nash '400' bodies are all steel—floor, sides and top. The top is a seamless, steel canopy, welded to the steel side pillars and panels of the body, and together with the all-steel floor, forms an armored compartment giving passengers complete protection. The structural members of the body are so designed and placed as to provide the utmost safety in any kind of an impact. This method of construction, it is claimed, has increased passenger protection 200 percent in the event of accidents occurring.

"Oversize super-hydraulic brakes of latest design and having 176 square inches of braking surface; an exceptionally low center of gravity, solid steel wheels and the use of safety glass also contribute materially to the safety in operation of this newest product of the Nash Motors company."

NEW COLOR FOR OLD AUTOMOBILES

The Duco Shop, 1111 DeSiard Street, Tells Of Modern Trend

It is fortunate that, with so many old cars on the roads as there are this year, the whole matter of refinishing has now undergone a tremendous change, according to the Duco shop, 1111 DeSiard street. Back in the days when many automobiles were still painted, it was a major matter to renew the apparent age of a car by the use of a Duco finish. First, the old paint had to be scraped off, and then, after a clean surface was secured, the modern lacquer could be used. Those days, happily, are gone. Practically all cars, nowadays, are finished in Duco and the imposing of a new Duco finish is a more economical job. It ought to cost less than a man pays for a new suit of clothes for a small car and not over twice as much for the big fellows.

This puts the matter of refinishing on a new basis. It has become something that more people than ever are going to undertake this year, particularly as it is also now possible to get just the exact shade of color desired, provided that shade is durable. In other words, at last a complete range of colors is to be had.

This year the tendency, following the idea of simplicity, is to minimize or eliminate mouldings, to use a single all-over color, to have the radiator shell, cowl band and head lamps finished with Duco instead of using so much glittering material. For example, a purple blue car may be embellished, not only with its complementary hue, yellow, but also with yellow red, yellow red yellow, yellow green yellow, and green yellow, besides the durable hues from neighboring colors.

The use of a single all-over color and the increased tendency to make the embellishments as simple as possible, is likely to put cars on the road this season with a new distinction as to color and more appealing to the eye than ever before. The new color trend has been apparent in various automobile shows throughout the country, the New York show, earlier in the year, having not less than forty cars by many representative manufacturers finished after the new manner.

Bad Vision Ends Career Of U. S. 'Alien Bouncer'

DENVER, July 13.—(AP)—One of Uncle Sam's best "bouncers" has shooed his last alien across the international boundary.

Credit with having escorted probably more aliens out of the country than any other federal officer, Brown McDonald, 66, has retired from duty because of the loss of vision of his right eye.

In 30 years McDonald placed more than 3,000 aliens of nearly every nationality on ships outward bound or watched them step across into Mexico or Canada.

No prisoner ever escaped from him and he rarely had to use force.

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, July 13.—(AP)—Cotton ended a week of dull and featureless price movements today by declining off 11 to 13 points in quiet trading.

During the major part of the session prices held close to their previous final prices, but in the last few minutes of trading offerings became plentiful and price recession occurred as the market absorbed the contracts. Needed rains in the belt were considered the main reason for the late decline. Most sections of the cotton growing region have had plenty of hot dry weather and rains today were considered bullish as far as the new crop was concerned.

Active months closed around their lows for the day in most instances, generally finishing at 11.91, Oct. at 11.59, Dec. at 11.56 and Jan. at 11.55.

The government report on consumption during June showed a sharp decline from the previous month but an increase of approximately 22,680 bales over June, 1934.

Exports totalled 466 bales.

Cotton futures closed steady at net declines of 11 to 13 points.

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—Cotton was lower today under week-end liquidation and scattered selling in response to easy cables, and favorable weather reports. October cotton sold off from 11.76 to 11.62 and closed at 11.65 with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 10 to 13 points.

Cotton futures closed barely steady 10 to 13 lower.

New York Stocks

By Victor Eubank
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, July 13.—The stock market ended the week today in a fairly optimistic frame of mind.

While there was no buying rush during the brief session, the rails picked up a friendly following and a number of new highs for the year were registered in other divisions. The close was steady. Transfers approximated 550,000 shares.

Although motor and electrical equipment equities were in demand, price changes, generally, were narrow. Important stimulus seemed to be lacking for the list as a whole. The customary week-end evening up operations were also evidence.

Wheat was again in a selling position, but corn was hesitant. Cotton was a little behind most of the time. Secondary rail bonds rallied. The leading gold currencies improved in terms of the dollar.

Shares registering gains of fractions to around a point included Santa Fe, New York Central, Union Pacific, Great Northern preferred, Westinghouse Airbrake, Timken Roller Bearing, Pullman, Westinghouse, Schenley and American Tobacco "B." Both General Motors and Chrysler made new 1935 tops, but they were about unchanged at the end. The steels, aircrafts and utilities did virtually as much. United States Smelting, Cerro De Pasco and American Smelting eased.

The better showing of the carrier stocks was attributed partly to technical influences—they have been backward for some time—and to reports that the president would insist on the passage of the motor bus and truck regulation bill at this session. Rail officials have claimed that unlicensed truck competition has seriously affected the earnings of many roads.

The utilities were at a standstill as financial observers studied the senate lobby committee disclosure that power interests had thrown a $300,000 fund against the holding company bill. At the same time financial quarters were cheered by the renewed attack of bus business on the administration's wealth-tax program.

Another drop in world silver prices did not do silver mining shares any good. Some selling in the group was attributed to fears that the treasury may alter its plans for the extensive purchase of the white metal. Silver was quite heady in London and Montreal. Imported bar silver in New York was reduced 1 cent an ounce to 67 3-4 cents.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, July 13.—(AP)—Clear, cool weather in the northwest, a condition militating against black rust in spring wheat, led to fresh downturns of grain values early today. Opening 3-8 to 1 1-4 cents lower, Sept. 81 to 81 1-2, wheat then held near to this range. Corn started at 3-8 decline to 1-4 advance, Sept. 74 1-2 to 5-8, and subsequehtly altered little.

Wheat closed nervous, 1 3-4 to 2 3-8 under yesterday's finish, September 80 1-4 to 3-8, corn at 1 cent decline to 1-4 advance, September 74 3-8 to 1-2, oats 3-8 to 1-2 down, and provisions unchanged to a loss of 10 cents.

BOAT RIDE IS SCHEDULED BY KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

Stonewall lodge No. 8, Knights of Pythias, will hold their annual boat ride on Wednesday, July 17. The boat will leave the dock at the foot of Plum street at 7 p. m.

Every member in good standing is asked to participate in the outing. Each member is asked to bring his wife or lady friend, but due to the fact that a large number is expected, each Pythian is asked to limit the guest to one person.

The entertainment committee is making all arrangements for refreshments, and in order to give an idea of the number expected, each knight is asked to phone J. Arthur Smith or Barney Oakland and make arrangements by Tuesday night.

Thursday evening, the rank of esquire will be conferred on five candidates.

MODERN METHODS USED IN BAKING

Ouachita Firm Has Most Modern Equipment; Employes Well Experienced

One of the most sanitary bakeries to be found anywhere is that of the Ouachita Baking company, 2519 South Grand street. At any hour of the day or night, the place is open for inspection and always the same care is taken to make the output as sanitary as is humanly possible.

The equipment comprises the last word in baking perfection and includes moulding machines which far surpass the antiquated method of moulding by hand, a dough mixer which is equipped with automatic scales to assure that each and every "mix" has the exact amount of flour, and a scaling machine which weighs each loaf of bread so that they will all be uniform.

All employes of the bakery are skilled workmen in their respective lines. Salesmen and saleswomen are courteous and ready to oblige in the smallest detail and they are of great help in planning special orders for weddings, birthday celebrations and social affairs generally.

All northeast Louisiana is served by the trucks of the company and these are kept in order by the mechanical staff which is maintained by the bakery to provide service at all times.

J. W. Rohr, manager of this company, has had years of experience in his line and he is striving through an advertising campaign conducted by the leading bakeries of the city in the columns of the Morning World and News-Star to better acquaint the public with some of the salient facts that pertain to the baking business.

PROMINENT NEW ORLEANS BUSINESS MAN SUCCUMBS

NEW ORLEANS, July 13.—(AP)—Walter Cott Ayres, 73, widely known in the south and middle west for his real estate colonization and industrial development, and a former member of the national house of representatives, died here yesterday.

At the time of his death he was representative of the federal housing administration in Louisiana.

Mr. Ayres, a native of Paris, Tenn., was elected to congress in 1891. He later served for 12 years as chief examiner of the bureau of pensions in the department of interior.

He took charge of the sale, development and settlement of lands and towns for the Rock Island and Frisco railroad along its lines. He came to New Orleans in 1918 as industrial commissioner for the New Orleans and Great Northern railway company.

Among his survivors is a daughter, Mrs. Brown Pierce of Highland Park, Ill.

PAYLESS PERIOD ENDS IN PARISH

East Baton Rouge Employes Hail Close Of 'Financial Drouth'

BATON ROUGE, La., July 13.—(AP)—East Baton Rouge parish employes, payless for six months, tonight hailed the end of the parish's financial "drouth."

Dr. C. A. Lorio, president of a group of 17 Huey Long supporters who have been functioning as the parish police jury with partial recognition, announced arrangements for borrowing up to $225,000 from local banks against 1935 revenues to pay the parish's governmental expenses for the first six months of this year.

Loans against the anticipated revenues have been delayed during contest over the authority of 13 appointees named by the governor to the police jury and four pro-Long elected jurors to act as the parish's governing body.

The authority of the Long group has never been recognized by nine elected anti-Long jurors.

The issue is before the East Baton Rouge district court.

The 13 appointees were named under an act Senator Huey P. Long drafted to gain control of the parish government.

FIREMEN ENTER BURNING HOUSE AND RESCUE MAN

HOPE, Ark., July 13.—(AP)—Firemen saved the life of J. R. Heard, automobile company bookkeeper, today when fire swept through his home.

Alone and asleep when the blaze started, Heard was found unconscious from suffocation when the firefighters entered the smoke-filled house. The residence was almost destroyed before the fire was controlled.

Heard's wife and two daughters, Daisy Dorothy and Alice Loraine Heard, were visiting relatives at Winnfield, La., at the time.

Folk School Is Expected To Draw Large Attendance

RUSTON, La., July 13.—(Special)—The opening of the Lincoln parish folk school on the Louisiana Tech campus, Tuesday afternoon, is expected to sound the signal for four days' vacation for many farm families of the parish and also for a large number of the business and professional people in the towns of the parish. The school will open each afternoon promptly at 2 o'clock with 45 minutes devoted to mass singing under the direction of John P. Graham, supervisor of music for the school.

Mr. Graham will be assisted by Rodney Cline, Tech faculty member, and A. E. Wilder, Jr., one of Ruston's prominent song leaders. Miss Mable Walker will be accompanist. All singing will feature southern ballads, "heart" songs and patriotic songs.

The actual class room work of the folk school will consume but two 45-minute periods each afternoon, and will be followed by a general session at which some able platform talent will be heard. Among the guest speakers will be Pat M. Neff, president of Baylor university. Before becoming president of Baylor, Mr. Neff served two terms as governor of his native state. He is widely and favorably known as statesman, orator and scholarly gentleman. He will speak Friday at 4:30 p. m.

Dr. George Sexton, well known as minister and former president of Centenary college, will speak Tuesday at 4:30 p .m.

Judge Camille Kelley, judge of juvenile court of Memphis, will speak on Wednesday at 4:30 p. m. She is one of the first women judges to preside over a court in this country. Her popularity is based as much on her ability as a platform speaker as it is on her ability to deal out justice to youthful offenders.

J. A. LePrince, senior sanitary engineers, U. S. Public Health service, Memphis, will speak Thursday at 4:30 p. m. Mr. Le Prince was with the late General Gorgas of Panama Canal fame.

BRAKEMAN'S LEG HURT

WINNFIELD, La., July 13.—(Special)—Charles Long, brakeman on the rock quarry train here, is in a local clinic suffering from injuries received when his leg caught on a spike on the tracks. He sustained painful lacerations on his leg and other leg injuries.

MURPHY FINISHES DUTIES IN CITY

Licenses Taken Out By Realtors; Local Board Will Meet Shortly

J. H. Murphy, of New Orleans, in charge of the license bureau of the Louisiana Real Estate board, completed his work here Saturday after having signed up a large number of real estate men in Monroe and vicinity with the proper licenses required by state law. Luther Reed, president of the Monroe Real Estate board, stated Saturday night that Murphy's visit had been successful and that members will enroll with the board here as a result.

It had been planned to hold a meeting Monday afternoon of the Monroe board but this has been delayed for a few days, stated Mr. Reed. This is necessary for the making of arrangements desired before the meeting is held.

He stated that the outlook for the board is bright and that realtors in Monroe, Rayville, Bastrop and Ruston look with favor on the new organization.

SWARTZ CLUB MEMBERS HOLD REGULAR MEETING

The Swartz Demonstration club held its regular meeting at the clubhouse with ten members present. Mrs. Jewel McQuiller, parish home demonstration agent, gave a demonstration of drying fruits and vegetables. The members agreed to pay a small sum each for a canner which has been ordered.

The members decided to charge each non-club member who uses the canner, one can out of every eight they used.

Mrs. Allen Coates was elected secretary due to the resignation of Mrs. Fred Morrison.

TO APPOINT DELEGATES TO STATE LEGION MEET

The regular meeting of the L. B. Faulk post, American Legion, will be held Monday at 8 p. m. at the post home. The meeting will be of importance as delegates to the state convention at Baton Rouge will be named.

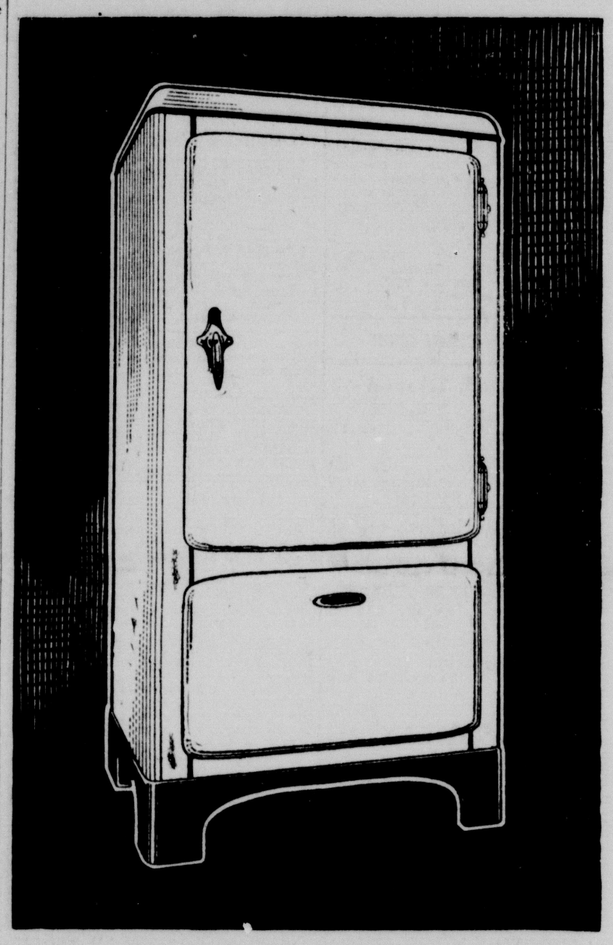

Plans for sending the junior baseball club to New Orleans for the state championship play-off will be discussed. Every member is urged to attend the meeting and aid in giving the team a "big send-off." The juniors are said to have a real baseball team and need the moral support of every legion member at this time.

The team will play the first of a three-game series with Springhill at Brown Paper mill park Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

The hydrax is the nearest living relative of the elephant. It is a little animal no larger than a rabbit and is erroneously designated in the King James Bible as a coney.

Monroe Girls Acquiring Coats Of Tan As Summer Advances

Boating On Ouachita Increasingly Popular

By Eve C. Bradford

July advances. The lutes of summer blow and the golden hours that vanish like magic are being stored away that they may live again another year. "God's in His Heaven and all's right with the world." Especially so with those gay, light-hearted young moderns who leap from crag to crag, as it were, jamming as much of summer joy into the fleeting days as is humanly possible. Life is now at its freest and best with the river, the golf links, the tennis courts and the shining dance floors offering constant allure.

Tanning hides usually suggests a business, but in the case of Lillie Thompson and Clara Virginia Terzia it is a creative art. Saw these two beautiful blondes comparing their mahogany-colored skin in the gardens of the E. G. Calvert home the other day. There seemed to be some rivalry, but for the life of us we couldn't determine which looked the best, as old Sol, in this case, was quite impartial and gave them both a glorious coat of tan.

Elizabeth Kennedy is another whose skin has been subjected to the sun in large doses. You can see her almost any day striding hatless along the fairway nonchalantly swinging a brassie.

Kitty Morrison is one of those delectable blondes who never tan. Spending the fourth of July under the glaring sun in a boat with a stalled engine in the middle of the Ouachita, she arrived home without even a freckle. Other members of the party spent the night administering soothing lotions.

Caroline Stubbs walks hatless through the summer days but simply refuses to acquire a coat of tan. By the way, we heard the most exciting and romantic news the other day about Caroline. It seems that a celebrated movie actor, dining in the Blue room at the Roosevelt in New Orleans, saw her and begged an introduction. Caroline, so lovely, so talented, so charming and yet so very modest, would not enlighten us on this subject, but nevertheless we got it from good authority.

Imagine Happy Hudson's chagrin when a certain party came all the way from New York city to pay his respects and found her in a sanitarium. One consolation, she will be sufficiently well Wednesday night to tap the boards on the Cherokee terrace at the Frances hotel, where Vincent Lopez, famous orchestra leader, will wave his baton. When he plays "Nola" even an invalid leaps for joy. Some one who saw him recently told us to watch that enormous diamond on his third finger send forth tongues of flame whenever he waves his famous hands. It may take more than one swallow to make a summer, but it takes just one enchanted night, such as the one we are looking forward to Wednesday night, to make the summer unforgettable.

Going down to the sea is our most popular pastime these days. The nautical ripple has swelled to tidal-wave proportions. Local voyagers, however, are spared the trials of mal de mer, as boats on the placid Ouachita are never storm-tossed. So nautically-minded have we become, we catch ourselves using aquatic terms in our homes. Kitchens have become galleys, beds are berths and the dining room the mess hall. Windows have become port-holes. All signs, if we continue river-ward, will soon read "starboard and port," rather than "turn right or turn left." Not "how many more miles" but "how many leagues." Stop signs will read "Drop anchor." Scarcely a week passes without a new boat flaunting the stars and stripes along the water front in the north end of town.

Sea Dart the second is now in possession of the Travis Olivers, and is being renovated from stem to stern. It is a sea-going craft, so we can expect to hear of them sailing over the bounding main at any time.

The Victor Sacketts will soon step aboard their handsome new house boat that is all shining white with silver trimmings. Friends are eagerly anticipating the christening.

Marion Learned and son, Alvah, paddle their own canoe. Saw them paddlnig home at sundown the other day with their faithful dog, Scottie, perched in the prow like a sentinel.

One rarely sees mother and son such pals these days. Their devotion to one another is a beautiful thing.

Brunswig Sholars and Edwin Theus are suffering from a severe case of "angleritis" (the deadly fishing fever). They are casting longing eyes toward the gulf, the fisherman's paradise. Cut off from the world, they will be restfully lulled in the cradle of the deep by the only crooner worth listening to, the waves singing their perpetual song of solace as they lap against their fishing craft. Several boon companions, also suffering from this fishing fever, will accompany them to the coast.

Alwine Mulhearn is home from New Orleans quite radiant—and why not? She successfully passed the bar examination and is now ready, like the Portia of old, to claim her "pound of flesh," if need be.

Sue Graves is off for Alexandria next week to add her personality to Nancy Stack's wedding entourage. When she returns she is going to settle down and study journalism, so we hear. Once the printer's ink stains your fingers and the roar of the press is in your ears, there is no escape. There will be no more little jaunts for Sue into the world of society once she starts on a journalistic career. If you love your work, the sacrifice is worth it; but if not, it is indeed a life of slavery. Like the circus, the paper must go on regardless of life and death.

Fishing Trip Planned

A group of ardent anglers, prominent business and professional men of this city, will close their desks next Saturday and leave for a week of unalloyed pleasure, deep-sea fishing in the Gulf of Mexico. Motoring to Grand Pass, they will occupy a clubhouse on Lake Borgne, where all the comforts of home will be provided. In the party will be Messrs. Edwin Theus, Brunswig Sholars, Mike Winberry, George Pipes, Jake Dorman, H. F. Madison, Thomas Leigh, Decker Moore, Murray Hudson and son, J. W. Kilbourne and Allen Davenport. Others from Bastrop will be Messrs. H. I. Seligman, Webb Madison, J. Dalton, Jr., Frank Hawthorne and Dr. V. H. Reitzell.

Pinching Explained

The Monroe Garden club is composed of a group of women who have not settled into the customary summer lethargy. There is always a fund of valuable information to be had from Mrs. T. C. Rowland, Mrs. Elmer Richards, Mrs. J. R. Wooten, Mrs. John Breard, Mrs. Manning McGuire or Mrs. Fred Hanna. They are all enthusiastic gardeners and ever on the alert for new ideas.

Now is the time, according to these successful gardners, to assure beautiful gardens in the fall. "A pinch in time makes flowers sublime" might well be made an adage of the amateur gardner.

Pinching is a form of pruning. It refers to cutting the soft growth of the plant and accomplishes several purposes. It keeps the plants in bounds, it makes them better shaped, produces larger flowers in some cases and a greater abundance in others.

Pinching flowers is not subject to hard and fast rules, except that it takes a definite length of time for a flower to form from the time the stem is pinched. One can time roses or snapdragons or chrysanthemums and have them at their best at a set date if he desires. Or one may pinch to secure height, to secure dwarf spreading shape, to secure quantity of bloom or to secure extra large blooms.

Planting asters close together and taking off all side branches will certainly increase the size of the blooms. Picking off the side buds from the dahlias greatly increase the size of the remaining flower. Pinching may be used as an aid when transplanting. When digging a plant to be transplanted many roots are lost. Pinching back the top helps the plant to survive the shock of transplanting.

Most annual flowers need to be pinched now and the pinching should be continued from time to time all summer. When the snapdragon plants are four to five inches high they should be given a hard pinching. That is, they should be cut back until only two sets of leaves are left on a stem about two inches tall. This pinch will cause from four to six side shoots to start and each side shoot will produce a nice heavy-stemmed bloom. When these blossoms begin to fade they should be removed, cutting them back almost to the parent stem. Again the new side shoots will produce sizeable flowers on stems long enough to be attractive. Such treatment will improve the appearance of the bed of snapdragons over the entire summer. If the plants are not pinched each would produce one large bloom and from then on an abundance of every short-stemmed small blossoms unfit to use as cut flowers and not very attractive as garden flowers.

Chrysanthemum plants should be given their first pinch this month and should be kept low and bushy until mid-summer. After that the side branches can be allowed to grow until buds have set. Then all side buds should be pinched off. Such treatment will produce more and better flowers than can be produced by letting the plants to unattended.

Now that the hybrid tea roses are blooming, cutting the blooms can take the place of pinching. When cutting a rose take enough of the stem, so that the new breaks will have to come out reasonably near the ground. This treatment may sacrifice some rose buds that one hates to lose, but it will result in longer-stemmed and better roses and will keep the bushes low and spreading.

The evergreens, too, need pinching, and this is the time of the year to shape them properly. A sharp butcher knife is an excellent tool for this purpose. With short upward strokes it is easy to shear them to a uniform shape. This will improve their appearance and cause the growth to thicken and make a tight, heavy tree.

Some plants in the nature of things send out so many side branches that pinching is unnecessary. Marigolds, larkspur, cosmos, nasturtitums and salvia need pinching only to keep them from becoming too tall. When any plant has reached the height desired it may be stopped without injury by removing the tip.

Party Suggestions

Do you want to give a party that will be a sure success—perfect food, perfect service and a grand good time? But something easy and not too expensive. Well, here's your answer. Give a buffet party. Outdoors of course. Such a party permits you to turn even your most distinguished guests loose among paper napkins, gingham tablecloths, big dishes of homey, tasty foods. It says, as plain as the dancing moonbeams, "Let's have a good time!" By all means have candles under glass containers on the table. Flowers, of the common garden variety, are always delightful for decorations.

Suppose, for example, you had a snowy angel food cake in the center of the table and around the base of the cake bright red roses, marigolds or any other flower of vivid hue. It is never too hot for coffee. So be sure and have plenty regardless of the weather. Here are some popular ideas for the rest of the menu: Baked macaroni and cheese served right from the big oven dish. A mixed salad of vegetables, sliced cucumbers and onions, plenty of French dressing. Olives and pickles and buttered rolls and sandwiches. The barbecued steaks, chickens or ribs will, of course, form the piece de resistance.

Even though you serve coffee, be sure and have a copious supply of iced punch. Here is an inexpensive recipe: Boil four cups of sugar with eight cups of water ten minutes. When cold, add juice twelve lemons, four cups pineapple juice, two cups canned crushed pineapple. Chill. Just before serving, add twenty-four maraschino cherries (quarterded) some lemon and orange slices and four pints carbonated water. Makes six quarts.

About The Zoo

Summer time at the zoo in Bernstein park is the happiest time of the whole year. The animals like it, the children like it and the keeper likes it because the animals do.

Not so long ago, when the animals were removed from their home near the salt water natatorium, there were rumblings of discontent. However, in an incredibly short time, they commenced to enjoy their new home in the park, where the sunlight trickles through the leavy branches of the giant, century-tossed trees. The cages are all new and roomy and the wire netting permits wider roaming and vision than heretofore.

Of course, it is rather difficult to establish by direct observation that the inmates at the zoo are more cheerful. They are still generally bored, as only zoo animals can be. But their health is excellent, and that is always a good indication.

The zoo is a sort of hotel, with table d'hote meals and no bills. Many there are these days who envy the permanent guests their square meals each day, their friendly companionship and expert attention given them when sickness comes.

Feeding time at the zoo is the most interesting time of the day. The Louisiana timber wolves and the lions are fed raw meat; the soft-eyed deer are given grain. The bears are vegetarians and are fed plenty of green stuff with milk and bread to balance their meals. The hawks, eagles and various species of Louisiana birds, get a potential salad—a slab of lettuce, bits of apple and other fruits. Andy, the buffalo, consumes quantities of grain. His appetite, by the way, hasn't decreased since the loss of little Chester and the death of Min. The alligators are only fed three times a year—once in the summer once in the winter and when they come out of hibernation.

Life at the zoo is not always one long round of pleasure. Sickness comes, not only as a result of surreptitious peanuts and shells that gullible animals will eat just because visitors throw them in their cages, but because of the bits of cardboard, candy wrappings, paper and buttons tossed to them. Animals eat things when they are sick that they will not eat when they are well.

Sitting in the shade of the oaks at Bernstein park, we discovered some interesting facts about the idiosyncrasies of animals from George Lowery, keeper-philosopher of the park. He has made a study of their habits, their likes and dislikes and regards them all as friends. Bird life has also come under his close observation. He knows the names, the habits of every bird that wings its way among the leaves of the trees that make life a perfect paradise for them at Bernstein park. "What do animals do at night?" That's one of the favorite questions. Mr. Lowery informed us that it seems certain they don't just sleep, because they doze off during the day when boys and girls are yelling all over the place. The animals at night are very much like the animals by day. These nuances, however, have been observed. The monkeys, who seem definitely to react to crowd-stimulus, are somewhat subdued. The foxes pace restlessly up and down. The eyes of the wildcats dilate in the dark and glow with mysterious fascination. The alligators, who share the pool at one end of the zoo, are said to be ten times as lively at night as they are by day.

There is gaiety at the zoo. There is intrigue. There is solemnity. Sometimes you can almost sense by the far away look in the eyes of the timber wolf the longing for freedom, for the great open spaces. When the deer pause, head held high, and nostrils distended, you feel sure the far away call of a mate has reached their sensitive ears. The monkeys never cease to hold the interest of visitors, as they are quite the most human creatures in the zoo. Jiggs, the little black monkey, would win in a walk in a popularity contest. He is not only curious but very friendly and carries on an animated conversation with visitors all hours of the day.

Monroe Represented

Monroe will be represented at the Business and Professional Women's national convention in Seattle, Wash., beginning the fourteenth of July, by Miss Maible Hood and Mrs. Dora Anish, who left the city Wednesday night.

Dr. Mabel F. Hood, state president, will head the state delegation attending the convention, which will be presided over by Mrs. Geline MacDonald Bowman of Richmond, Va., national president. Mrs. Bowman has often visited Louisiana and has attended several state conventions. The election of new officers will claim much interest at the sessions and Miss Charl Williams, who visited Louisiana last November, will be a candidate for the national presidency. Mrs. Bowman, too, is being urged to be a candidate to succeed herself.

"Women, unite for effective democracy, security, opportunity" will be the theme of the sessions. The keynote will be sounded on July 16, when the national president will deliver her biennial message. Mrs. Bowman, an authority in the field of public affairs, is scheduled to give a call to action to business women. Headquarters of the convention will be the Olympic hotel and a number of social events have been planned for the convention.

At the convention Dr. Wood will present a complete report on the three projects of the state federation. These include the establishment of a vocational guidance bureau at some university in the state, preservation of the old state capitol at Baton Rouge as a state museum and supporting of the old-age pension bill.

Miss Leocadie Amis, Baton Rouge, has been appointed state custodian of the Agnes Morris Loan fund, a position she has held for several years, Dr. Wood announces. The important post of state finance chairman has been awarded to Mrs. Womack, while Mrs. Jessie Norton, Shreveport, is the chairman of education.

Mrs. Alida Fontana, New Orleans, has been made state chairman of publicity and Mrs. M. K. Doughtie, of Shreveport, is the state membership chairman. Miss Mathilde Powell, of Baton Rouge, is the state historian and Miss Monita Goldsby, Baton Rouge, is the state organization director.

Presidents of clubs in the state were announced as follows by Dr. Wood with the Opelousas club yet to be heard from: Mrs. I. Distefano, Bogalusa; Mrs. Carrie Coll, Baton Rouge; Miss Eva Kustenmacher, Covington; Miss Kate Smith, DeRidder; Miss Maude Reid, Lake Charles; Miss Mary O'Kelley, Monroe; Miss Garnett Baker, Natchitoches; Miss Amelie E. Buchmann, New Orleans; Mrs. E. O. Morgan, Ruston, and Mrs. Charlotte A. Barney, Shreveport.

Misses Armandine Renaud, Irene Quinn Renaud, Alverne Noble, Fabol Powell, Mary Ann Wilder and Mrs. Douglas Hahn will form a congenial motor party leaving this morning for New York City. Misses Renaud will take a course of study in dancing under Madame Serova and other dancing masters during their stay in New York. En route home, they will visit in Niagara Falls, following the Lake Erie highway to Detroit, Mich. They will also spend several days in Chicago, where Miss Armandine Renaud will attend the convention of the dancing masters of America.

Mrs. Abe Arent and Mrs. D. I. Hirsch have returned from Galveston where they attended the Texas State Florists' convention and school of instruction. They were guests in the home of Mrs. John Meathe during their stay in Galveston. Mrs. Meathe will be remembered as Miss Esther Stein.

Friends are welcoming Mrs. E. A. Chumney of San Antonio, Texas, who is enjoying her first visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Stubbs, since her marriage. Several interesting social affairs planned in her honor will bring old friends together during her visit in the city.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Miss Frances Lavice Davis, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gleaves Davis and popular member of the younger set whose engagement to Mr. William Richard Hammond has just been announced.

LOVELY JUNE BRIDE

Mrs. Stein Baughman of Farmerville, La., who before her marriage on the sixteenth of June was Miss Mary D. Gunter of Delhi. Mrs. Baughman was introduced to friends in Farmerville and in this city at a beautifully planned reception in the Baughman home last month.

Weddings Continue, Although Month Of Brides Has Passed

Falcon Ray Foster Weds Florence Page

Paris Johnson Goodnight And Doyne Buffington Married In Clarks; Ray Rogers And Bernice Jayroe Take Vows In Mobile

The following announcement claims the sincere interest of friends in this section of the state:

Mr. and Mrs. William Andrew Page, Sr.
their daughter
Florence
to
Mr. Falcon Ray Foster
on Thursday, the twenty-seventh
of June
nineteen hundred thirty-five
Ruston, Louisiana

The ceremony was performed in Ruston, with Rev. J. D. Carroll officiating. Only the members of the immediate families were present.

Mrs. Foster is a graduate of Louisiana Polytechnic institute and is connected with the home economics department of the Ouachita parish high school.

Mr. Foster is a graduate of L. S. U. He is a member of Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity. He holds a responsible position with the Brown Paper mill.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster spent a brief honeymoon touring the gulf coast and are now at home to their friends at 1012 Jackson street.

Goodnight-Buffington Wedding

A wedding characterized by lovely simplicity and impressiveness was solemnized when Miss Doyne Buffington, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Z. L. Buffington, of Clarks, and Mr. Paris Johnson Goodnight were united in marriage at 10 o'clock in the morning Thursday, July the eleventh, at the home of the bride's parents.

A tall white lattice intertwined with trailing green vines and pink Radiance roses, placed in front of the fireplace and flanked with ferns and baskets of pink crepe myrtle, created an ideal background for the ceremony. The Rev. Paul Jones, pastor of the Clarks Baptist church, and a close friend of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of the immediate families and intimate friends.

A pre-nuptial piano solo, "Liebestraum," was rendered by Mrs. C. L. Moore, Jr., of Monroe. The bridal party entered to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus.

The bride, walking with her father, who gave her in marriage, wore a Viola ensemble, in the new shades of light navy blue. It consisted of a silk cable net dress mounted over a taffeta slip and a three-quarter length taffeta coat in moulded lines, which added great charm to her slender, blonde type. Her accessories were navy blue, and she carried white bride's roses and valley lilies.

Miss Louise Buffington, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was becomingly dressed in an ashes of roses crepe model with plaited georgette trimming.

The groom and his best man, Mr. F. B. Wisinger, were smartly attired in white linens.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Buffington entertained the bridal party and wedding guests with a breakfast. The three-tiered wedding cake, a confection of great artistry, ornamented in pink and white, the color theme of the breakfast, graced one end of the table and was cut by the bride.

Before her departure the bride tossed her bouquet from the steps of her home. I twas caught by Miss Lois Goodnight. The young couple left by Motor for a visit in New Orleans and on the Mississippi coast.

After August 22, Mr. and Mrs. Goodnight will be at home to their friends at Hotel White, where a suite of rooms is being remodeled for them.

Mrs. Goodnight is a member of one of Clarks' oldest and best known families. She graduated from the Clarks High school and from the Meadows-Draughon Business college of Shreveport. She is a member of Sigma Phi Gamma sorority. For several years she has been employed in the office of the Louisiana Central Lumber company.

Mr. Goodnight is the son of Mrs. H. A. Steed of Oakdale. He is a graduate of the Oakdale High school and of Louisiana State university. He is a member of Theta Kappa Nu fraternity. For the last eight years he has been employed by the Louisiana Central Lumber company and is now assistant sales manager of their hardwood mill in Clarks.

The handsome wedding gift received and the numerous pre-nuptial courtesies extended the young couple attest to their popularity.

Out-of-town wedding guests were Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Steed, Miss Lois Goodnight, Miss Ruth Goodnight and Mr. Harry Steed of Oakdale and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Moore, Jr., of Monroe.

Rogers-Jayroe Wedding

Of interest to friends in this city is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Bernice Jayroe, attractive daughter of Mrs. E. W. Jayroe of Monroe, and Mr. Ray Rogers Sunday, July the seventh, at the Methodist parsonage in Mobile, Ala., with Reverend Ellison officiating in the presence of a few intimate friends.

Immediately following the ceremony, an informal reception was held at the home of Mrs. Talbert, where friends were permitted to extend their well wishes.

The bride, formerly of this city, is a graduate of L. P. I. and for the past year has been a member of the Lufkin, Texas, school faculty. Mr. Rogers is also a graduate of L. P. I. and is a member of Theta Kappa and Delta Alpha Phi fraternities.

Engagement Announced

The following announcement of special significance comes today to break the social calm of mid-summer:

Mr. and Mrs. Gleaves Earl Davis
announce the engagement of their daughter
Frances Lavice
Mr. William Richard Hammond

The affectionate interest of friends is centered in this announcement, which concerns one of the most charming members of the younger set. Miss Davis, granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ivy I. Davis, substantial citizens of this community during their lives, graduated from Randolph Macon college. She won the junior scholarship for making the highest scholastic average in her class. Quite a distinction was her election to Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic fraternity. She is also a member of the Alpha Omicron Pi sorority and an active worker in the Monroe chapter of the Junior Charity league.

Mr. Hammond, son of Mrs. A. M. Hammond of Louisville, Ky., is a member of the faculty of Northeast Center of Louisiana State University. He received his bachelor's degree from Western Kentucky State college and his master's degree from Peabody college.

The marriage of Miss Davis and Mr. Hammond will take place early in September.

Eason-Bassett Wedding

The following announcement appearing in the Arkansas Gazette will be of interest to friends in this city:

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bassett of Conway announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Gladys, to Herman Edward Eason of Fayetteville, the ceremony having been solemnized Sunday afternoon, June 30, at the First Methodist church by Dr. Charles J. Greene, vice-president of Hendrix college. Mr. and Mrs. Eason are now on a motor trip to Colorado, Wyoming and California at the conclusion of which they will be at home in Fayetteville. The bride is a graduate of Hendrix college and Peabody college for teachers, while the bridegroom received his degree at the University of Arkansas.

Miss Bassett was head of the English department of the Parish High school, this city.

Taffeta Gowns Rustle At Smart Gatherings

Taffeta gowns are rustling at many smart parties this summer. This black one sprinkled with white flowers is designed by Mainbocher, Paris, on "grand dame" lines with a decollete rimmed with a frill and a sweeping train, otice the fan of the same fabric and the long black gloves.

By Adelaide Kerr

PARIS, July 13.—(AP)—Crisp taffeta—flowered or plain—rustles through many a smart drawing room here this summer season.

Mrs. Jesse I. Straus, wife of the American ambassador to France, wears a pale green taffeta frock buttoned down the center of the back to the hipline. Another fashionable American wears one of a flowered pink and gray pattern.

Jeweled, gold-bordered Indian saris, flower trimmed gowns and coiffures and flashing gems add brilliance to dinners and soirees.

With the coming of warm summer nights, Parisians have adopted colorful mousseline and crepe gowns topped by the glamorous saris (head veils) borrowed from the maharanees of the east. Most of the saris (always fashioned of the same material as the dress) are bordered in gold or silver braid and many are worked with plastrons of gems or flowers which cover the top of the head.

Lady Mendl Wears Sari

At a recent gala party appeared a rose one bordered in silver and a mauve one rimmed with gold braid, while Lady Mendl wore a dark blue crepe gown whose head veil was embroidered on top in gold, corals and turquoises. Many women are wearing such gowns with gold or silver kid sandals sometimes without heels.

Frocks of sheer mousseline, tulle or organdy with rather full skirts are worn by other women. Most of them are accented by a colorful flower cluster at the waistline or a belt of another hue.

One crisp pink lace gown worn by an American brunette at a recent gala was finished with a girdle of blue-violet and a cluste rof pink and blue violets caught at the front of the waist, while a white organdy was accented by a green suede belt studded with a motif of sparkling strass.

Flowers Tucked Under Curls

Flowers appear on heads too, tucked under the curls at the nape of the neck, worn in a cluster on the side of the coiffure or even perched right on top of the head.

Jewels gleam from ears, wrists and coiffures, adding brilliance to the ensembles. One Parisian wears diamond stars in her dark hair, another adds ruby earrings to a white satin gown and a third wears emerald bracelets with a frivolous black tulle frock.

Billie Carolyn Turnage, the lovely little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Turnage, of Swartz, celebrated her second birthday anniversary on July 7. To commemorate the happy event a number of her little friends were privileged to attend a birthday party given in her honor Monday afternoon.

Many delightful games were participated in by the children. Interesting contests helped to fill the hours with pleasure. At the conclusion of which lovely gifts were presented to Naomi Spillers, Eugene Rowe and Lucretia Wederbrock.

Favors of tiny American flags and gay colored balloons were given to all the children.

Billie Carolyn was the recipient of many lovely gifts. Delicious refreshments of ice cream and cake were served to the children.

In addition to the little guest of honor the others who enjoyed this happy occasion were Billie Hammett, Frankie Bryant, Joy Leigh Douglas, Johnnie Turner, Carolyn Bagwell, Jamie Smith, Lily Marie Speir, Elinor Glynn Evans, Macelle Spillers, Evelyn Spillers, Billie Maxine Takewell, John Scarf, Jr., Naomi Spillers, Virginia Lee Speir, Frances Speir, Lucretia Wederbrock, Ray Reneau Ruth Reneau, Marie Takewell, Gloria Hare, Maurice Reneau, Kirby Reneau, Stanley Dyer and Eugene Rowe.

Mrs. B. H. Byar and little daughter are now at home to their friends at 1107 Trenton street, West Monroe.

Noted Orchestra Coming

The celebrated Vernie Cummins 14-piece orchestra, the New Yorkers, will play at the Lakeside Country club for a membership dance Friday, July 26, from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m.

The orchestra comes direct from the Blue room at Hotel Roosevelt in New Orleans, and is regarded as one of the best in the country.

Business, Professional Club Names Chairmen

Monroe Women Represented At Convention In Seattle; T. E. L. Class Holds Meeting; Birthday Party Given

Unlike the majority of women's clubs, the Monroe Business and Professional Women's club does not disband for the summer. The cool, comfortable clubhouse where these women meet is the stimulus for continuous endeavor throughout hot summer months.

The regular monthly business session was held Tuesday night, with Miss Mary O'Kelly, the newly installed president, officiating. Reports were read by retiring officers and chairmen which told of much activity during the fiscal year just ended, in which the Louisiana Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs was entertained.

An interesting fact revealed was the addition of 25 new members during the year. These new members will be "put into harness" at once by Miss O'Kelly, who contends it is necessary to give new members something to do in order to engage their interest.

The financial report was also of interest. The two divisions of the club membership, "Purple" and "Gold'," were rivals in raising funds to be applied on the debt of the clubhouse. The Purple division, the winners, will be feted by the Gold division.

Mrs. Goldie Copes was elected a member of the board of governors and emblem chairman to succeed Miss C. Mae Johnson, whose resignation was accepted, due to her departure from Monroe at an early date.

Amendments proposed for action at the northwest biennial convention in Seattle, Washington, July 14 to 20, 1935, were read and approved.

Committee chairmen for 1935-36 were announced as follows: Agnes Morris loan fund, Mrs. Dora Anish; education, Miss Wilma Pace; finance, Mrs. Johnnie S. Birthday Party Given

Terri Sue Tidwell, beautiful little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Tidwell, reached the interesting age of one year on the twelfth of July, and to commemorate the occasion, her grandmother, Mrs. Arthur Tidwell arranged a garden party in her honor.

When twilight settled over the garden, the guests arrived and were presented with gayly colored carnival hats and balloons.

Favors attached to blue and white ribbons were also drawn from the immense Jack Horner pie.

The three-tiered birthday cake, with its beautiful embossing and one shining candle, was cut by the clebrant in cunning party frock of pink mousseline. Pink ices and little cakes embossed in pink were also served.

Summer's Fashion Recipe Calls For 'Dash Of White'

This is the way Paris accents dark frocks with white this summer. To a dark blue talleur Chanel adds a blouse of white linen with petal collar and cuffs and a little toque of white pique. The mode of white with dark is what might be termed a "prevailing fashion." White hats or black hats trimmed with white flowers or ribbin are much in evidence. Black or navy blue frocks are sprinkled liberally with white flowers, figures, ribbon bows or scrolls. White blouses frequently are used to give the contrasting touch.

PARIS, July 13.—(AP)—"Add a dash of white" is the fashion formula for summer chic.

White accents around throats, wrists and waists, on hands and on heads give zest and piquancy to black and navy blue frocks worn in town on hot days.

White carnation cape collars, daisy garlands and anemone clusters are favorite floral neckline accents. Besides these there are any number of white fabric collars of all sizes and varieties—pique models cut to resemble a chain of petals, ribbed organdy frivols and pleated linen jabots—often accompanied by cuffs of the same design. Nearly all the white touches are detachable so that they may be cleaned and kept fresh.

Big white gauntlet gloves of pique, linen or doeskin are other smart summer accents, as are tailored linen and leather belts. To wear with dark taffeta suits there are dozens of organdy blouses of tissue paper crispness with ruffles rippling down the front or short sleeved georgette blouses trimmed with edgings of fine valenciennes lace.

White hats appear in models which vary from small toques to wide brimmed designs. Flower caps with deep visors covered entirely in white violets and broad brimmed white straws finished with a dark band about the crown appear on warm days, while many black straws are trimmed with a white grosgrain ribbon or white pique flower.

Many black or navy blue printed crepes for afternoon wear are peppered with white figures such as stars, leaves, birds or ribbon scrolls, while a number of black afternoon outfits are brightened by some such touch as a white lining in the cowl collar of a short black satin afternoon coat topping a dress of the same material.

White steps out at night too. White capes of organdy, linen or fox top colorful evening gowns; printed chintz dresses are splashed with white figures and printed linen dance frocks finished with white organdy hems. Even old-fashioned white petticoats appear, one black organza gown being worn over a white organdy petticoat trimmed with narrow lace edging.

Clarks

A trousseau tea was the fascinating affair enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Z. L. Buffington, with their daughter, Miss Doyne Buffington, a much feted bride-elect, whose marriage was celebrated Thursday morning, July eleventh, as the gracious hostess.

Receiving with the hostess were her mother, and two sisters, Mrs. F. B. Wisinger and Miss Louise Buffington.

The handsome wedding gifts viewed by the guests included a dinner set of white wedgewood china, monogrammed silver table service, fostoria crystal, a hand crocheted bedspread, a hand-quilted bedspread, linens for each room of the house, dainty lingerie, and a check from employes of the Louisiana Central Lumber company.

Among the wardrobe models attracting attention were an aquamarine blue chiffon dinner dress with silver accessories, a pastel blue crepe tailleur with broad lapels of white ruffled organdie, a white corded silk sports frock with nautical trim, a lilac lace model, the beautiful navy blue wedding dress and accessories, exquisite white and colored lace trimmed gowns and a pale blue chiffon negligee.

Miss Buffington was becomingly dressed on this occasion in an afternoon model of navy figured chiffon.

In the dining room, Miss Dora Cooksey welcomed the guests, and assisted in the refreshment courtesies. Mrs. C. L. Moore, Jr., of Monroe, charmingly presided over the punch service. The table was overlaid with a beautiful lace cloth. Salvers of open faced sandwiches and tiny cakes were placed for the convenience of guests.

Throughout the afternoon a concourse of friends filled the hospitable home, among whom were: Mrs. T. W. Beauchamp, Mrs. S. D. Howard, Mrs. Eugenia Bush, Mrs. Henry Mitchell, Mrs. W. O. Case, Mrs. V. ELECTROLUX that guarded the food supply of the famous Dionne
QUINTUPLETS

ON DISPLAY HERE ONE WEEK ONLY—The Original Electrolux that was used in the Dafoe Hospital for the Dionne Quintuplets.

ON May 28, 1934, the world was electrified by a message flashed from the remote Canadian village of Corbeil. Quintuplets were born . . . and living . . . for the first recorded time.

Though their birthplace was almost beyond the reach of civilization, these babies have received during the past year the utterly dependable food protection that only modern automatic refrigeration can provide. Forty-eight hours after orders were given in New York, a New Air-Cooled Electrolux, operated with kerosene, was at work cooling the human milk rushed from Toronto and Montreal to feed these newborn babes.

This kerosene-operated Electrolux is the same nationally advertised refrigerator that is already serving more than half a million modern American families. In the cities it is run by a tiny gas flame . . . in the country, beyond the gas mains, by a wickless glow-type kerosene burner. Listed at the left are some of the vital advantages of this most modern of refrigerators.

CHARPTER XIX

Katharine was in the hall, curled up on a window seat. She brushed her hand across her eyes as the doctor appeared.

"Oh, John, I think I must have dozed off just for an instant. I had the most awful dream . . ."

His face startled her. It was so drawn. "Johnny, she isn't—she hasn't . . .?"

He could not speak. Katharine crouched low, as if to ward off a blow.

Dr. Kaye spoke slowly, as one who is deadly weary. "We pulled through," he said. "She's going to get well."

Katherine crumpled against the window frame. Her creamy silk evening frock was wrinkled. Her eyes had great hollows under them. "Oh, John, thank God! You did it—we owe it all to you."

He shrugged his shoulders. "It was the least I could do."

"You mean because you took us to the club and she saw Gibbs there? Why, that was fate—"

"Not exactly," said John Kaye, rather dryly. "You see I happened to know he was one of the habitues . . . I hear gossip around town."

"It's taught me something," Katherine said, on a long, shuddering breath of exhaustion. "It's taught me never to interfere with human destiny That, after all, is God's business . . ."

If only we could all learn that lesson so early," said the man wryly. "Come along now. Time for you to get some sleep. Zoe is resting quietly."

"Does her mother know?"

"I sent the nurse to tell her five minutes ago."

"Then I must have been asleep," marveled Katherine. "And I thought I'd never sleep again till I was sure. What weak creatures we humans are, John! You must have thought so when you came out of that room a moment ago and saw me dozing."

"I thought . . ." he paused and smiled that peculiarly winning smile of his. "Never mind what I thought."

Katherine went home again, tiptoeing through the quiet house, through the dew-soaked garden. The morning seemed new-minted for her especial pleasure. It was a fresh gift. Never before had she realized how divinely sweet a morning could be.

Zoe's convalescence was slow. No one but John Kaye and Katherine knew what really had happened that terrible night. Some columnist from the city printed an item to the effect that "Gibbs Larkin took it on the chin from a certain prominent medico at the Blue Sky club." Katherine, reading it, trembled. But there were no further repercussions from the incident. Gibbs evidently had not been seriously hurt and, wherever he was, he had the sense to keep out of Zoe's path now.

Later Katherine read his name in the sailing lists. Bound for Plymouth and Havre. She wondered if Cissy Malotte the blues singer, were on board the boat also.

The day came when Zoe was allowed to walk in the garden. She seemed thinner, more thoughtful than before. Her close brush with death had sobered her, changed her from the laughing, rather frivolous girl she had been into a quieter woman. Katherine was conscious of being drawn to her as to a younger sister.

For the moment thoughts of Michael Heatheroe were pushed into the background of Katherine's mind. She saw him almost daily. Sometimes he rode at her side; sometimes not. But their relationship was now on a firmer basis. Katherine no longer felt it necessary to be stiff and offhand with him. Every day she saw about him some quality that she liked and admired more.

"Who says men and women cannot be friends?" she demanded of Dr. Kaye one rainy Sunday. Bertine and her father were at the country club for tea. Katherine was exquisite in soft country tweeds, her fair hair curled about her face in a nimbus of ringlets.

"I don't know. Who does?" John Kaye returned lazily. Ellen had kindled a fire in the library grate, for the afternoon was cool as well as damp—a curious day for August—and Katherine sat on a low hassock, poking idly at the embers with one of the fire tools.

"Oh, I don't know. Everybody!" Katherine offered vaguely, smiling to herself. The man watched her with interest, balancing a teacup in one hand, the other occupied with a cigaret.

"Generalizations are always stupid," the doctor said idly.

"I love this," Katherine went on, with animation, including the fire and the tea tray in the wave of her hand. "It's pleasant to be shut in like this, with rain pounding against the windows and beating at the door." She smiled a secret smile thinking of the day she and Michael Heatheroe had been sheltered in the wayside cabin. Michael had been angry at her that day. Why? Some day, perhaps, she would know. He had never spoken to her in that way since.

"Pleasant, indeed. You never can get this feeling in a city apartment," mused Dr. Kaye. "You have to have the noise of tree branches bending in the wind and the sweep of water pounding on rocks and maybe the lighthouse bell tolling occasionally to give you a taste of real drama, in the storm. Katherine," he digressed suddenly, putting his cup down, "you have been happier of late, haven't you? Or do I imagine it? Somehow you and Bertine seem to be hitting it off better than you did."

"Oh, yes. Bertine is all right," Katharine said politely. It wouldn't do to tell John that the reason she was able to bear her stepmother's irritating ways, her trick of whining and "fussing" at everything was because she had found a new outlet for her energies and affections. The Merser house was open to her now whenever Bertine made home unbearable. Violet Merser was her confidante . . . and Katharine loved the children, too, as she hadn't dared to love anyone for years. But if Bertine knew how often she sought out the little white house in the hills behind Innicock, she would be sure to interfere.

How grand it would be, Katharine thought, if Michael Heatheroe were to come walking in that door this very instant. She would say, "Tea, Michael?"

She would say, "I'm sorry, but do you take sugar and cream? I don't seem to remember . . ."

But she could never ask Michael Heatheroe to her home. Her stepmother would never allow it. Bertine, for all her smiles and apparent amiability, ruled the Strykhurst menage with a rod of iron. Her portly husband did exactly as she wished; in fact, he often thought, said Katharine rather contemptuously to herself, exactly what his wife told him to think.

Michael Heatheroe did not "belong."

"Who is he?" Bertine would say, with a lift of the eyebrow. "Where did he come from and who are his people?"

Well, some day Katharine would have a place of her own. She could ask her own friends there, as often as she liked. No one would dare to criticize then; or, if they did, she would not listen.

"Wool-gathering, Princess Kitsy?"

She smiled at the lean, ascetic-looking man across the hearth.

"I guess so. You used to call me that when you first came here, John. 'Princess Kitsy.' You were a very grand young man and I was in pigtails."

"A funny child you were, too," said John Kaye. "Just like a prickly pear. I tried so hard to make you smile."

"Was I that bad?" cried the girl.

"Well, you were afraid of people. Shy—no, it wasn't exactly shyness. Distrust, I'm afraid. Poor little girl!"

Her throat tightened, her voice thickened as she said, "Don't, Doctor John. You'll have me bursting into tears."

"Well, you've changed a lot, any how," said the man. "You're not afraid of anyone any more. That's the stuff, Katharine. Look life in the face and tell 'em all to go to hell."

"Good advice," said Katharine, smiling.

Lights flashed up in the overhead fixture and Bertine Strykhurst bustled in.

"What are you two doing, mooning here in the dark? You ought to get into your things and take a brisk walk," cried Bertine. "Katharine doesn't take enough exercise. That's why she droops around so half-alive."

Angry words sprang to the girl's lips and were suppressed. Dr. Kaye looked at her warningly.

"I played three sets of tennis in the broiling sun yesterday," Katharine said, keeping her tone good-humored with an effort. "And I rode horseback in the morning. Doesn't that count?"

Bertine gave her own superior little laugh.

"Oh, I guess we know why all the young ladies in town have taken to riding of late. I guess we could tell a thing or two about that."

Katharine clenched her hands. With an effort she controlled her voice. "Really!"

Bertine turned to Dr. Kaye as if for understanding and sympathy. "You wouldn't believe how silly the girls are nowadays about the first decent-looking male creature in breeches. Why, I heard today that Sally Moon is going to marry the fellow."

"Marry whom?" the doctor asked.

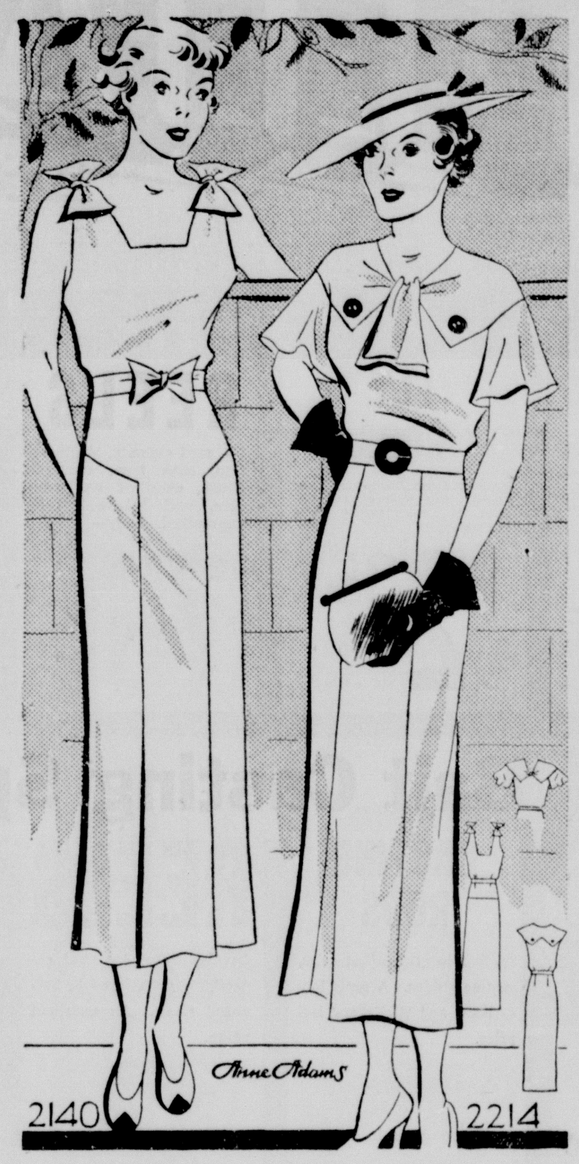

"Why, that young man who runs the riding place," cried Bertine, in triumph. "That chap who calls himself Heatheroe."

John Kaye, glancing at Katharine, was shocked by the drawn look on her face.

"Why, there's something here," he said to himself, in surprise. "This means something to her."

Terminology Of Clothing Dictated By Screen City

HOLLYWOOD, July 13.—If you've been used to calling your newest dress "an amusing little number" better stop it. Orry-Kelly doesn't approve.

Dresses, says the big Irishman who does designs for Warner Brothers, First National and Cosmopolitan pictures, may be smart, beautiful, unusual, or ugly, but they are never "amusing." The word, in connection with clothes, is one of his major pet peeves.

Orry-Kelly was picking out his materials for fall. The salesmen stood up and tossed swatches of lovely fabrics at him, chanting their praises, while the designer, lounging in an arm-chair, selected some, tossed others aside, and soon became half buried under a shimmering pile of silks, satins and brocades the while he nonchalantly condemned or endorsed each sample with a terse Orry-Kelly phrase.

"Everything is going to be very shimmering for fall," he confided, as he picked out a black and gold brocade for an evening wrap for Claire Dodd. ("No, that one's too 'Pasadena'—and that one's too 'Winter Garden,'" he interrupted, tossing two more condemned fabrics aside) and then went on. . . .

"But don't say they're metallic—that's been done before. The new materials, rather, have gold and silver threads, shot through other fabrics . . . glistening . . . radiant . . . but no, not metallic."

In illustration, he held up a blue metalasse interwoven with silver, that he had bought for Ruby Keeler; a metal and silk combination that looked like red-plaid gingham; and a lovely, heavy crepe interwoven with cellophane. And it was true . . . they were a world apart from the old, stiffened metal clothes, and yet they did glisten . . .

Taffeta With Metal Threads

"Many of the newer materials also have an old-fashioned note," Orry-Kelly went on. "Every house has brought out a taffeta for fall, expecting the bouffant silhouette to continue. But they're more supple; won't crack; are often two-toned; and come in heavenly colors mixed with gold or silver threads—and pure gold, at that.

"How are these names for bringing back memories?—Noiseless chenille taffeta . . . alpaca . . . velour-woven silk . . . cashmere . . . moire . . . silk twill . . . and tricotine? They're all back in exciting new forms. And the velvets, printed, raised, even changeable . . . yes, we're having an old-world revival in fall materials, and no mistake.

For Marion Davies, the designer has purchased a lovely blue velvet with a taffeta-back in yellow that seeps through the pile with shimmery effect. For himself, for a summer suit, he took a cloth called "Samoural" . . . pure silk that looks like heavy, non-crushable linen, in desert sand color, that would be well combined with brown for a shirt-maker dress.

Add to new hair styles . . . the Genevieve Tobin bob . . . hair flat on the crown, like a monk . . . edges curled forward in a Roman-wreath effect . . . and the long, turned-up bob of Jean Muir . . . hair swept off the face and caught at the temple with two flat, silver-filigree clips.

"Where did you get that hat?" is the refrain everybody's shooting at Ann Dvorak . . . Ann designs her own . . . and the latest, believe us, is "sump'n." She cut the pleating off a dress . . . cut the brim off a hat . . . and then put the pleating round the crown that was left, finishing off with a clump of flowers in front . . . and voila! a hat to make an entrance in!

Marian Marsh, in a white frock with a bandana-blouse and wide collar of navy blue with raised wool stars . . . hat slanting from a high peak and trimmed in navy print . . . June Travis, in a printed dress under a navy redingote with wide patent leather belt and navy sailor hat . . .

At Elissa Landi's for tennis, Sunday afternoon . . . Jean Muir forsaking her Grecian modes for a navy blue sleeveless sweater, white silk pique blouse with Tuxedo front, white skirt, and blue plaid taffeta scarf . . . Elissa herself all in white, sweater, skirt and hair ribbon . . .

Anita Louise wears a robin's egg blue sports dress of coolie cloth, with brown rope belt, carved brown wooden buttons, and bandana collar of brown, tan, yellow and tangerine stripe, tied in back under the small collar . . . a Jean Carol model . . .

For evening wear . . . anyway for little brunettes like herself . . . Olivia de Haviland favors bright red . . .

LOCAL MAN FILES SUIT AGAINST FUNERAL HOME

Right to continue operating the Roseneath Funeral Home of Shreveport, pending the outcome of a suit, was obtained in the Caddo district court this week by Lonnie B. Kilpatrick and Mrs. N. Kilpatrick, both of Shreveport, who were made defendants in a sequestration action filed by C. S. Brown of Monroe, president of the Co-operative Undertakling company.

Judge Cecil Morgan of the Caddo district court, signed the order granting to the defendants the right to operate the funeral home upon the posting of a $25,000 bond.

The business was seized by Deputy Sheriff J. A. Wynn of Caddo parish and Mr. Brown was placed in active charged several days ago. The judicial writ was issued on petition of Brown who in a suit directed against the Roseneath Funeral Home, Inc., Lonnie B. Kilpatrick, his wife, Mrs. N. Kilpatrick and Maude J. Taylor, alleged that he was the owner of the physical properties of the company and also of the lease on the premises on Marshall street in Shreveport, where the home is located.

Claudette Colbert Plays Different Role In 'Private Worlds'

Karloff And Lugosi In 'The Raven' At Capitol

Thrills Abound In Adaptation Of Edgar Allen Poe's Classic

IF you can picture the monster of "Frankenstein" and the vampire of "Dracula" vieing with each other for horror honors, you can anticipate the chills and thrills that are packed into Universal's "The Raven," opening today at the Capitol theater.

Suggested by Edgar Allan Poe's immortal classic, this film boasts the combined master mystery talents of Karloff (Frankenstein) and Bela Lugosi (Dracula). These two chill chasers are co-starred in a story adapted to the screen by David Boehm and featuring in the supporting cast Irene Ware, Lester Matthews' Samuel Hinds, Inez Courtney and many others.

The plot concerns the mental flights of a famous surgeon who is a Poe addict and who, like the great poet is of a morbid, brooding turn of mind. "The Raven"always fascinated him, to the extent of having a stuffed replica of this bird standing beside him on his desk. The shadow of this bird of ill-omen predominates the theme of the story, which actually begins when its principal character, a notorious criminal hiding from the police, comes to the doctor to have his face changed.

Promising to perform this difficult operation, the mad doctor betrays his patient and holds him in his grip until he does his bidding in a diabolic plan he has conceived. Into their lives comes a beautiful girl, over whom the raving doctor casts a spell, while her father and sweetheart attempt to save her. The story builds to heights of terror culminating in a most amazing and thrilling climax.

Fraught with danger and mysticism, "The Raven" abounds with intense suspense from beginning to end. It is indeed a worthy successor to "Frankenstein" and "Dracula."

DOG LOCKED IN BUILDING SOUNDS BURGLAR ALARM

CHOUDRANT, La., July 13.—(Special)—A burglar alarm in the store owned by J. A. O'Neal here sounded shrilly in the afternoon and the community came to life with a start.

Residents hurriedly gathered about the store, ready to nab the burglar when he came out of the store.

Someone peered through the glass front door and got a glimpse of the intruder.

It was "Moms," pet bulldog owned by C. L. Mondart.

Mr. O'Neal unknowingly locked the dog in his store Friday noon when he left on a business trip to Monroe.

Later the dog decided it about time to return home and sought about for a means of escape. In doing so it evidently pulled one of the alarm wires.

"Moms" seemed to enjoy the excitement she had created and paid no notice to the confusion of the moment.

(Bottom left) Gloria Stuart, Ross Alexander and Ruth Donnelly have the featured roles in the rollicking comedy of young love and its jealousies "Maybe It's Love," coming to the Capitol Tuesday and Wednesday. Frank McHugh, Helen Lowell and Phillip Reed are also cast prominently.

Star's New Picture At Paramount

Charles Boyer, Joan Bennett And Joel McCrea In Big Cast

IN her first motion picture appearance since she won the Motion Picture academy award for 1934, Claudette Colbert proves her right to that prize and again demonstrates her startling versatility in a role entirely different from her past ones. The picture is Walter Wanger's psychological love drama, "Private Worlds," which opened at the Paramount theater yesterday.

Cast in the leading role of a daring and intelligent picture that sweeps aside all the old illusions about love to show the inhibitions, complexes and repressions that are the true villains of romance, Miss Colbert appears as a trimly efficient, cool and capable woman doctor; a woman seemingly without personal affections but with a great love for the suffering.

Miss Colbert and Joel McCrea are carrying on important scientific work in their posts at a hospital for the insane when the appointment of a new doctor, Charles Boyer, as head of the hospital, disrupts their little world.

McCrea is attached to his quiet and dependent little wife, Joan Bennett, but he is lured from her by Boyer's vampire sister. The antagonism between Miss Colbert and Boyer flares up. Changes in hospital routine causes riots in the danger ward and a serious situation.

Finally, Joan Bennett, who has learned of her husband's infidelity, collapses and is faced with a possible loss of her mind. In her desperate and successful efforts to unsnarl the tangle of all their lives, Miss Colbert reveals herself in her true colors. She learns that she has taken refuge from love in the memory of a dead sweetheart and that her apparent hatred for Boyer actually conceals a growing love for him.

Phyllis Bottome's successful novel of the same name furnished the original for "Private Worlds," which was skillfully directed by Gregory La-Cava.

Joel McCrea and Joan Bennett render particularly praiseworthy performances in roles that give them ample opportunity for real display of their talents. Sam Hinds, Jean Rouverol and Big Boy Williams stand out in minor roles.

Screen Life In Hollywood

By Dan Thomas

HOLLYWOOD.—A generous portion of America's entertainment next winter will be grand opera. From Broadway to Main street you will hear more classical music than ever before. And you will hear it in the flicker theaters.

It seems a bit incongruous to be thinking about winter while the thermometer outside soars to dizzy heights. But that's a part of the movie racket. The films being produced now are for fall and winter release. And there will be many grand operas among them.

Spurred on by the phenomenal success of Grace Moore's "One Night of Love," the film industry has become decidedly opera-minded. Virtually every good looking grand opera star in America has been corralled by the movie makers.

Personal appearance has been made a vital factor by the film moguls, however. While voice quality is important, it must be accompanied by good looks.

Long Line Of Talent

Miss Moore already has another picture, "Love Me Forever," ready for a fall release. This production also will introduce Michael Bartlett, who came to Hollywood fresh from an engagement with the Philadelphia Opera company.

Preparation is being rushed on "Rose of the Rancho," which will star Gladys Swarthout.

Lily Pons is here to make "Love Song."

Nino Martini already is at work in "Here's to Romance."

Lawrence Tibbett and Marion Talley are due soon for pictures as yet untitled.

And don't forget Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, the stars of "Naughty Marietta." They'll be at work on another operetta soon.

Whether Mr. and Mrs. Public will accept such a large dose of grand opera is still to be determined. The movie bosses believe they will—if all of them are as good as "One Night of Love."

Furthermore, it is predicted that these films will reawaken the public's interest in opera as presented behind the footlights—an interest that has been waning for several years.

Joker Accommodated

They tell this story on Roger Pryor. A few nights ago Roger started home from a party very late. En route to his house he got sleepy, so he pulled off the street and parked in front of what looked like a shabby hut.

Prompted by a strange sense of humor, he wrote a note, "Wake me at 9—with orange juice, coffee, fried eggs and toast," and stuck it in the car door before going to sleep. Promptly at 9 o'clock he was awakened by a cheery voice, and a tray with his complete order was shoved at him. He had parked in front of a drive-in lunch stand.

Believe In Signs, Now

Jeanette MacDonald wanted to give a swimming party, but, having moved into her new home just two days earlier, she was short of towels. So when she issued the invitations, she added, "Bring your own towel." Nelson Eddy and Gene Raymond thought it was a gag, so they arrived towelless. And did they howl when, after spending most of the afternoon in the swimming pool, they discovered Jeanette had meant what she said!

Incidentally, you should see Nelson give an impersonation of a monkey. It's a yell.

Drummer's Lass

Since Betty Grable acquired a yen for a drummer in one of our local night spots, everyone around town has been kidding her about learning to play the drums. Every time one of the younger fellows sees her he says, "I'm learning to play the drums, Betty."

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

HOMER, La., July 13.—(Special)—Officers of Pate-Thomas post here of the American Legion have been elected for the ensuing year. They are C. B. Kitchens, commander; Chris Lay, first vice-commander; O. M. Kerlin, second vice-commander; Otts Ford, adjutant; Claud White, service officer; Brodie Pugh, chaplain; and B. E. Nelson, membership chairman.

NEW WINN PARISH AGENT BEGINS DUTIES JULY 15

WINNFIELD, La., July 13.—(Special)—H. E. Crawford, new Winn parish agricultural agent, has arrived here to begin his duties on July 15. He succeeds Carl E. Kennedy, who has been transferred to East Baton Rouge parish after three years in Winn parish.

Mr. Crawford has been connected with the Montgomery high school as agricultural teacher for the past three years.

More BUILDING Necessary for Entire Nation!

SURVEY SHOWS NEED FOR HOME MORTGAGE CASH

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—From a survey of 36 counties in northern Ohio, with over 100 cities and towns reporting, 5,836 prospects for new buildings have been found involving a need for approximately $30,000,000 in mortgage money, according to E. H. Blair, district director for the Federal Housing administration.

The results of the survey in the Cleveland area are said to be typical. In that city 17 architects have 103 new building prospects who need $3,547,000 to carry out proposed construction. Fourteen building materials dealers have on hand 160 prospects who propose to spend $615,000. Fifty-one contractors and builders have accumulated 853 prospects for work involving the expenditure of $2,963,000. Eighty-nine real estate firms have 1,664 prospects on file representing possible transactions amounting to $7,891,000. Architects believe that possibly 70 per cent of the appraised value of proposed new building requires financing. The high average of $35,000 per prospect is based on their past experience of ratio of inquiries to new business possible. Cleveland architects' prospects run in a higher price bracket and indicate a market for $25,000 homes.

Building material dealers report a demand for $6,500 homes, contractors and builders for $5,000 homes, and real estate firms for homes in a $7,000 class. In smaller cities a genuine demand for homes ranging in cost from $4,000 to $5,000 is indicated, according to Mr. Blair. The greatest demand, he stated, is from the moderate income group for homes ranging from $4,000 to $6,000.

Find Attic Play Rooms Are Useful

When renovating or building a new home, one of the most sensible uses for waste space in the basement, attic, or other portion of the house is to install a sanitary playroom, according to welfare authorities.

A playroom can be inexpensively built in practically any home where space is available. Nothing gives more pleasure than planning for the comfort, joy, well-being, health, and education of children.

It is important, of course, that the space allotted for the playroom be dry, comfortably heated, well ventilated, properly lighted, and have windows for the entrance of the health-giving rays of the sun.

The finish of the room and its furnishings are the most important from the children's standpoint. Sometimes it is possible to install a fireplace for added wormth, cheer, and comfort. There should be built-in book shelves where books suitable for children of various ages may be kept. Then seats may be built under the windows on both sides of the fireplace. They may have drawers under the seat, or the seat may be so constructed that the top may swing upward on hinges, thereby providing space beneath the seat for use in storing toys and equipment.

Wall decorations should be chosen with great care. The color scheme should be bright and cheery. Pictured wallpapers are available.

A blackboard of suitable size should be available on a well-lighted wall space. On another wall space may be painted the alphabet and numerals, or the letters and numerals may be on blocks which can be removed and inserted in slides. Some space may be devoted to a large wall map of the United States, or the state in which the child lives.

The floor should be warm and smooth so that the children can play on it. It may be outlined in paint in different places for playing games, such as sand-bag, hop-scotch, and the like.

Loans for medernizing a portion of a home into a children's playroom are available through private financial institutions approved by and cooperating with the federal housing administration, which is insuring such loans under the national housing act.

PINKHAM HAS NEW BOOKLET ON HOME

Ten Million Free Copies To Be Distributed Throughout Nation

Working in harmony with the federal government's effort to revive the heavy industries, the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine company is encouraging home renovating and building by printing and distributing ten million booklets entitled "Let's Fix Up the House."

This is a 32 page booklet with many illustrations and an attractive cover in two colors. The first page explains briefly how home owners may borrow money for repairs under the federal housing act. The rest of the booklet contains practical suggestions for the spending of this money to the best advantage. Surely every home owner can find some new and usable idea among the many listed.

Nor is the value of this booklet confined to those who own their homes. It also contains helpful suggestions for home decoration arranged under such captions as "Seven Ways to Make a Room Look Larger," "Color in the Home," "A Room for a Boy," "Lighting Your Home," "Your Bedroom Closet," etc. All these ideas are just as useful to tenants as they are to home owners. The Pinkham Medicine Company, which has published thirty million booklets a year for many years expects this to be one of its most popular numbers.

"Let's Fix Up the House" will be distributed from door to door in every city of the United States and most of the towns. Approximately three thousand local distributors will be employed and the completion of the campaign will take about four months. If you cannot wait for the distribution to reach your town, you may obtain a free copy by writing direct to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. at Lynn, Mass.

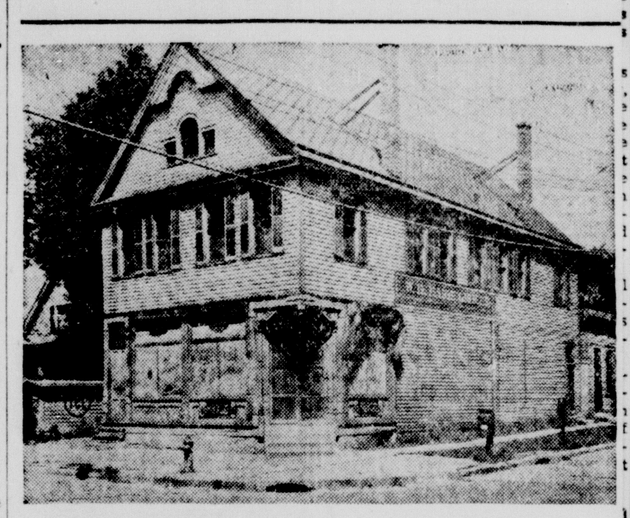

BUILT-IN MIRRORS FOUND CONVENIENT

Built-in mirrors are valuable aids in maintaining personal appearance, and, properly placed, they contribute to the decoration of a home and tend to give the impression of added size to a room.

In bedrooms or dressing rooms, if a mirror does not fit in with the general scheme of decoration or surroundings, it may be attached to the inside of the closet door.

They are very essential but must be used with discrimination.

For Better Business

Good Start

Total Of $90,000 Has Been Pledged By Hawaiian

HONOLULU, Hawaii.—Pledges for modernization projects totaling $90,000 were obtained in Honolulu within the first 7 days of the program, according to Ray Semmes, associate director of the Federal Housing administration for the Hawaiian Islands.

The program began April 8. By noon April 15, according to Mr. Semmes, the total had been reached.

"I believe this to be a unique record of achievement for any section of the United States," the message continued. "Due to coorporation of the chamber of commerce and other substantial citizens, was able to launch the campaign within 5 weeks after arrival. Honolulu officially extends appreciation to the Federal Housing administration program available here."

Joseph B. Poindexter, governor of the islands, and Mayor George Fred Wright, of Honolulu, each issued proclamations to commemorate the opening of the modernization program. Both the Democratic central committee and the Republican central committee are supporting the movement, it is reported, and legislation is being drafted favorable to the mutual mortgage insurance plan.

Four approved lending institutions are participating in the modernization activity in Honolulu: The Mutual Building and Loan Association of Hawaii, Bank of Hawaii, Bishop National Bank, and the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Honolulu.

MONTANA REPORTS MANY APPLICANTS

HELENA, Mont.—Rapid development of applications under the mutual mortgage insurance plan of the Federal Housing Administration is shown in the records of the state better housing headquarters here.

One hundred applications for insured mortgages have been received since January 21. "It required approximately 130 days to reach the one-hundredth application. During the 10 days in January and throughout February and March," said the state director, "this office received but four applications for insured mortgage loans. We received 37 in April and 59 in May. This increase is quite encouraging, and we are set for 100 applications during June."

HOUSING HEAD GIVES AIMS OF FHA PROGRAM

Early Revival Of Private Building On Sound Basis, McDonald's Theme

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The principal aim of the home-financing program of the federal housing administration is to bring about an early revival of private-home building activity on a healthy, enduring basis, according to Acting Administrator Stewart McDonald, who considers that increases in building during the first months of 1935 indicate a "splendid improvement."

The acting administrator pointed to first-quarter increases of 131 per cent over 1934 in the number of families housed in new buildings as shown by building permits for more than 700 cities. He also considers it significant that contracts awarded for residential building in April 1935 were higher than in any other month since 1931.

"We have reached the point at last," Mr. McDonald said, "where the pent-up demand has pushed open the gates of the abnormally low residential building of the last four or five years, which has been inadequate to take care of the needs of increasing population or to take the place of old and obsolete structures which have been passing out of use."

Other indications of improvement are mentioned by Mr. McDonald: General improvement in the home-financing situation; virtual elimination of usurious and unsound mortgage practice by the establishment of the long-term, fully amortized mortgage as provided in the mutual mortgage insurance plan of the federal housing admiinstration; the institution of sound methods of appraisal valuation; and the application of certain elemental standards in site planning, design and construction of new buildings.

It is the opinon of Mr. McDonald that private capital to a degree has become convinced that residential mortgages, particularly with the protection afforded by the mutual mortgage insurance lan, offer a unique field for the profitable and secure investment of funds.

"Through the activities of 7,900 local better-housing campaign committees the American public is becoming more and more 'housing conscious'," Mr. McDonald said. He approximates the national housing deficiency at more than a million homes, which he describes as a potential market for building and repair stimulus in the future, with attendant benefits to the construction industry, architects, building constructions, and thousands of related lines of human effort.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—Is there any sort of covering for basement pipes to keep them from sweating which will take paint readily?

A.—Yes, indeed; one of the most popular types of pipe covering has an aluminum finish especially made for painting. This covering may be painted any color to harmonize with the color scheme of the basement. Thus there is a triple advantage in insulating pipes—conservation of heat, prevention of the formation of condensation, and improved appearance.

Q.—How large an area is needed for a tennis court?

A.—The official outside dimensions for a double tennis court is 120 by 60 feet. Many private courts are made 110 by 50 feet, but they will be found to cramp fast play.

Q.—What is a septic tank?

A.—It is a specially designed tank which is buried in the ground and into which domestic sewage is discharged from the house. Decomposition takes place in a chamber so designed that air does not come in contact with the sewage, harmful bacteria are destroyed, and the affluent filtered and discharged into a tile field through which it seeps into the ground. The tank should be of a design that has been approved by the state or local board of health and it should be installed in a manner that complies with their regulation.

The liquid discharged from a properly designed septic tank is harmless and will not contaminate the soil.

Q.—Are water-pump systems for a summer cottage and electrical and gas equipment eligible under the conditions governing loans made by commercial banks and others under the regulations of the federal housing administration? I am thinking principally of automatic water heaters, but also of some incidental lighting fixtures.

A.—Yes—all three—provided they are installed as integral parts of the building and could be considered as non-movable or permanently installed. Water heaters and domestic systems may be financed through the low-rate modernization credit plan of the federal housing administration.

FARMERS COMPLY WITH HEALTH LAW

LOS ANGELES, Calif.,—Farmers are being forced to comply with health ordinances in order to insure a healthy meat and milk supply to this city.

As a result, many buildings will have to be repaired and many others will be moved. Two-room milk houses, which will involve the expenditure of between $125 and $500 per farmer, will be required.

The city veterinarian has requested copies of better housing literature to be furnished to inspectors of his department and will, in turn, urge the farmers to take advantage of the modernization credit plan.

Step Saving Theme In New Kitchen Idea

Housewives can save many steps every day by modernizing their kitchens. A general rule for efficient kitchen planning is to group as closely as possible the sink, range, and refrigerator, with working surface adjacent to each. This is best done by having a narrow kitchen with all floor space used to its best advantage. Wall space is best utilized for built-in cabinets which are most necessary in an efficient and modern kitchen.

Doors should be arranged in such a way as to allow persons to pass through the kitchen without hindering work being done there. Make sure that there is a table near the exterior door for the incoming groceries.

The desired location of a sink is directly below a window. This arrangement conserves wall space so necessary for built-in cabinets. It also gives the housewife a view of the exterior which greatly relieves the drudgery of her work. If a small playground is placed directly in front of the window, the housewife may watch the children at play, saving time and worry.

The cooking range is most convenient near the sink and a working surface. Since most cooked foods move directly to the dining table after dishing, it is advisable to place the range near the dining room door with a working surface for serving cooked foods adjacent to the door.

A refrigerator is best located near a working surface and the sink, since most groceries must be washed before storing, and foods in storage must be prepared before serving.

Broom and mop closets are very convenient near exterior or basement doors. Built-in ironing boards should be located so that the board is free from the shadow of the worker.

The knights of old were not physical giants. Museum collections of armor show very few steel suits large enough for the 20th century man of average size.

Location Is Important In Home Plans

The modern home buider recognizes the value of a good location and is becoming much more careful in its selection. Given a good sound structure, honestly built and well designed, its location will largely determine its value. Located in one place where properly protected by zoning regulations and adequate deed restrictions, its value will be protected, maintained and possibly enhanced. Located in another, where nuisances and other hazards are liable to encroach upon it, to make it undesirable, it values will be materially reduced. The federal housing administration recognizes these factors in its mortgage risk rating, and properties located in those neighborhoods which are suitably and adequately protected will receive higher ratings accordingly.

In this connection the prospective builder should consider the following: Stability of neighborhood; protection from adverse influence; adequacy of transportation; appeal of the neighborhood; sufficiency of utilities and conveniences; level of taxes and special assessments; proximity of civic, social and commercial center; the topography and special hazards of the neighborhood.

The home builder or buyer also will do well to remember that in addition to the characteristics of the property itself or of a neighborhood as such, the stability of the investment in a property depends upon an appropriate relationship between the property and its environment. A property, therefore, must be in harmony with neighboring properties.

While it is not advantageous to a property to be distinctly at variance with the standards of a neighborhood, it must be borne in mind that mere conformity is not a positive quality, and that conformity to low neighborhood standards does not justify favorable consideration.

Location exerts an extremely important influence in preserving the value of a home, a fact which is recognized by the system of appraisal utilized by the federal housing administration. Its system weighs these factors, affecting stability of value for residential properties, one against the other, to determine the probable stability of neighborhoods and for the particular site within it, for residential purposes. Careful thought concerning this matter by the prospective home builder will prove of great benefit in preserving his investment.

START BUILDING AFTER 20 YEARS

ANAMOOSE, N. D.—The first home to be built in this town in more than 20 years was recently begun. Population of Anamoose is 500. Its construction is said to have been suggested by the activity of the better housing program.

LABOR SHORTAGE HALTS CANVASSING

PHOENIX, Ariz.—An unprecedented situation has grown out of the modernization canvass here.

The house-to-house solicitation has been so successful that it has been, of necessity, stopped temporarily, as not a man in the building trades is available to do work, all being already employed, according to the associate director of the federal housing administration.

The largest building program since 1928 is now under way in Phoenix, according to the director.

CATHOLIC ORDER PLANS BARBECUE

Knights Of Columbus Will Be Guests; Bishop Is Invited Here

M. J. Cosgrove, grand knight of the local lodge of Knights of Columbus, plans an unusually interesting barbecue at 1919 DeSiard street at 8 p.m. Tuesday. The event will mark the opening of a campaign for membership for the local order. It will comprise "lady's night," the wives, daughters and sweethearts of members being entertained.

Mr. Crosgrove has sent a special invitation to the Most Reverend Daniel Desmond, bishop of the Alexandria diocese, to attend, together with District Deputy Matthews, of Shreveport, and priests from the surrounding country, including Rev. Father J. C. Marsh of Hodge and Rev. John Vandegaer of Monroe.

There will be an abundance of barbecued meats, soft drinks and a generally good time will be had by all, it was announced.

Those in charge state that the program will be one of the most interesting of its nature given here for a long time.

MASONIC CLUB BANQUETS AT HOTEL IN WINNSBORO

WINNSBORO, La., July 13.—(Special)—The Past Matrons' and Past Patrons' club of district No. 5 held a banquet at the Franklin hotel here recently. Mrs. Maude E. Wooten was toastmistress.

The following members were present: Miss Blanche Wilson, Sicily Island, president of the club; Mrs. Willie Lee Stodghill, Rayville, district deputy grand matron; Mrs. Arcadia McCoy, Rayville; Mrs. Wooten, Mangham; Mrs. Hattie Faye Walter, Winnsboro; Mrs. Arline Evans, Winnsboro; Mrs. Christine Broadway, Gilbert; Mrs. Leon McLelland, Sicily Island; Mrs. Katie D. Kemp, Sicily Island; Mrs. Zelia Cornick, Sicily Island; Charles Cornick, Sicily Island; C. R. Wilson, Sicily Island; E. D. Walter, Winnsboro; Jesse E. Stodghill, Rayville; and J. B. Evans, Winnsboro, past grand patron.

Musical selections were given by Mrs. Virginia Chapman, Mrs. Ruth Biggs and Mrs. Sunshine Logan.

Mrs. Matt Boughton, Mangham; Mrs. Biggs, Alto; Mrs. Logan, Archiband; and Mrs. Chapman, Archibald, were guests of the club.

RAMSAY'S HEIR PICKS UP TORCH

Malcolm MacDonald Makes His Own Career In British Politics

By Milton Bronner
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, July 13.—Malcolm MacDonald has beaten the curse. And all Britain is talking about it. At 34 he has his foot firmly placed on the ladder of preferment and seems fairly on the way to a career of his own, despite the fact that he is the son of a four-time prime minister of Great Britain.

It is the more usual fate of sons of British premiers and of American presidents to be so completely overshadowed by their famous fathers that they sink into comparative obscurity.

In the reshuffle of the cabinet which occurred after Stanley Baldwin succeeded Ramsay MacDonald as prime minister, Malcolm MacDonald was advanced from parliamentary under-secretary for the Dominions to fullfledged secretary for the Colonies. This was done partly because the new premier wished to have a certain representation of the Labor party in the national government, partly out of compliment to MacDonald the elder, but also very largely because the young man has really earned his own spurs.

Easier Road Than Father's

Life has treated him far more kindly than it did his father up to the time he was 34. The senior was born of poor Scotch peasant folk up in Lossiemouth and had to fight his own way up to the top. Malcolm had the preliminary advantage of being the son of a famous political leader who could afford to send his boy to Oxford university.

There at Queen's college he quickly made himself felt as student, as debater, as writer, as football player and as golfer. He was one of a debating team of three sent from his university on a trip to the United States, Canada, Australia and New Zealand. On this journey they engaged in 67 debates with college teams of those countries. Malcolm MacDonald also made talks on the side, preaching the Socialist faith that was in him. All in all, he made 250 speeches on that trip.

Graduated from Oxford, he acted as secretary to his father during the naval conference at London and as liaison officer with the press during the London imperial conference. Entering politics now for good, he ran for parliament as a Socialist in Nottinghamshire in 1929 and won. It was one of the first times that a candidate of his party gained a seat there.

Sympathetic parliamentarians noted a marked contrast between Malcolm and Ramsay Mac. The father is tall; his son is on the short side. The father rolls his r's with a delightful Scotch accent; the son employes the mellower tones of Oxford.

When MacDonald's Labor cabinet resigned in 1931 to be followed by a coalition and later by a national government, both headed by himself, the son followed his father, breaking with the Labor party. Challenged by his constituency, Malcolm boldly said that, for one thing, blood was thicker than water. The great decision made by his father had required nerve and caused pain. The son did not want to add to the father's embarrassments. But, aside from that, he said he would have followed the premier because of the great issues confronting the country. He was re-elected.

Spoke For Government

In November, 1932, he was given a very great parliamentary honor. The debate was closing on the bill embodying the agreements made at the imperial conference at Ottawa. The measure had been under attack by the best speakers the liberals and socialists could muster. Malcolm MacDonald made the closing speech for the goernment. He had the joy of a packed house and a big affirmative vote for the bill. While his father, deeply moved, sat quietly in his seat, famous old stagers like Stanley Baldwin and Sir Austen Chamberlain rushed up to congratulate the young man. He had won his spurs.

In 1934 he went to Austrlia to attend the centenary celebrations as a delegate of the Empire Parliamentary association. He showed he had a wise head on young shoulers, delighting the Australians by saying:

"I am keeping my eyes open and my mouth shut."

It is predicted that this policy may mark his new career.

HONEYMOONERS LOST POINT

Niagara's roar was momentarily challenged as this man-made blast tore a 5,000-ton slice off Table Rock at the Canadian tip of Horseshoe falls and sent it crashing into the gorge below. Fifty thousand holiday visitors watched spellbound as a second blast reduced the ledge, often called "Honeymoon Point," to half its former size. The dynamiting was undertaken to guard against possible rock slides from a crack extending 200 feet along the table.

CANNING CENTERS OPENED IN WINN

Seventeen Projects Sponsored By FERA Have Started Operations

WINNFIELD, La., July 13.—(Special)—Seventeen canning centers sponsored by the federal emergency relief administration have started operations in Winn parish. Fifteen are for white persons and two for negroes.

A leadership meeting was held in Winnfield recently, when instructions in canning were given managers of the centers by Miss Sue Ballance, Winn parish home demonstration agent, and Mrs. A. E. Gaar, ERA food adviser.

The centers will be operated from two to six days a week. Tomatoes, string beans and soup mixture will be the principal items canned during the first few weeks.

Managers who attended the meeting here are Mrs. Ethel Waller, Dodson; Mrs. Hilton Hammons, Gaar Mill; Mrs. Floyd Beavers, Sikes and Hebron; Miss Ruth Jordan, Hudson; Mrs. Macey O'Neal, South Winnfield; Mrs. J. W. Wilkerson, Joyce; Mrs. Florence Lay, Jordan Hill; Mrs. Cora Allen, Atlanta; Mrs. N. R. Bishop, Mount Zion; Mrs. Ethel Teddlie, Mars Hill; Mrs. Dena Kennedy, Cypress Creek; Miss Myrtle Bice, Calvin; Mrs. Ena Higgs, Hodge Mrs. Phein Huddleston, Huddleston; Letha West, Cedar; and Winnie Blackwood, Union Hill.

Five other centers are expected to be opened at an early date.

Work Relief Program

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Federal Works Progress Administration, under which projects for unemployment relief will be directed, has issued a general circular giving details of the program and the procedure which must be followed by local governing bodies in order to avail themselves of federal cooperation in carrying out public works projects. Copies of the circular are obtainable at the office of A. P. Lassiter, district director of the W. P. A., on the second floor of the postoffice building, Monroe. Contents of the circular will be printed in installments in this newspaper to acquaint the public with its provisions.)

Section 1. Purpose of Circular.—This circular is issued as a preliminary statement to acquaint prospective sponsors with the principles and procedures to be followed in selecting works progress administration projects under the emergency relief appropriation act of 1935. Information contained in this statement, and the forms included with it, are of a preliminary nature and subject to revision.

Section 2. The Work Relief Program.—It is the basic purpose of the work relief program to take persons off the relief rolls and put them to useful work in the shortest time possible. It is intended, as far as possible, to have such persons engaged at their usual occupations. Accordingly, the program of employment embraces many fields of activity, and covers all parts of the nation.

Public resolution No. 11, seventy-fourth congress, the emergency relief appropriation act of 1935, provides for the financing of the program and establishes rules, regulations, and penalties for violations. The president is granted broad powers in its execution.

Section 3. Works Progress Administration.—On May 6, 1935, the president issued executive order No. 7034, establishing the division of applications and information, the advisory committee on allotment, and the works progress administration. This order provides that the works progress administration shall be responsible to the president for the honest, efficient, speedy, and coordinated execution of the work relief program as a whole, and for the execution of that program in such a manner as to move from the relief rolls to work on projects or in private employment the maximum number of persons in the shortest time possible.

The works progress administration has the following powers and duties: (1) To establish and operate a division of progress investigation and to coordinate pertinent work of existing investigative agencies of the government, so as to insure the honest execution of the work relief program. (2) With the approval of the president, to require uniform periodic reports of progress, recommend appropriate measures for eliminating delay, and recommend termination of projects if they do not economically afford the amount of employment warranting their continuance. (3) With the approval of the president, to prescribe rules and regulations to assure that as many persons employed on all work projects as is feasible shall be persons receiving relief, and to govern the selection of such persons. (4) To formulate and administer a system of uniform periodic reports of the employment on such projects of relief and non-relief persons. (5) To investigate wages and working conditions and to make and submit to the president such findings as will aid the president in prescribing working conditions and rates of pay on projects.

This executive order further provides that the works progress administration shall recommend and carry on small useful projects designed to assure a maximum of employment in all localities.

The order also assigns accounting, disbursing, and purchasing functions to the United States department of the treasury, and control over all allotment of funds for administrative expenses to the bureau of the budget.

(Another installment will appear Monday.)

Parish And City Employes Assured Of No Immediate Discharge

BATON ROUGE, La., July 13.—(AP)—Thousands of Louisiana state, parish and municipal employes brought under state civil service by one of Senator Huey P. Long's latest acts, were assured today there was no immediate prospect of their losing their jobs as a result.

Along with the assurance, conveyed through civil service commission resolution disclaiming intention of any immediate employment shake-ups, went an injunction that they would be governed by "efficiency and honesty, not politics."

The commission's secretary, Representative Lorris M. Wimberly of Bienville parish, saying the civil service office had been besieged by inquiries, announced a commission resolution stating that the sole objective "for the present" was the prevention of "abuses in employment and dismissals."

The resolution said the commission would require notice of dismissals or substantial pay reductions, and that any employe affected by either might appeal to the commission.

The period in which an appeal may be taken was given as ten days, but it was stated that additional time might be allowed if the commission saw fit.

The act giving the civil service commission authority over all public employes in the state goes into effect July 28.

"The cardinal rule to be observed is that efficiency and honesty, not politics, shall govern public employes," the resolution declared.

CHOUDRANT WATERMELON CROP SHORT THIS YEAR

CHOUDRANT, La., July 13.—(Special)—The watermelon crop in this section is much shorter than in the past, according to C. L. Mondart, local agricultural instructor.

This was learned when Mr. Mondart made a recent survey to determine whether or not enough melons were being raised to ship them in carload lots. He found that farmers were able to dispose of their surplus melons to local buyers at a good price and that there was not a sufficient number to ship them away.

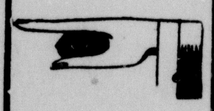

Last year five or six carloads were shipped from Choudrant.

OFFICERS ARE NAMED

FARMERVILLE, La., July 13.—(Special)—Officers for the ensuing year have been elected by the Union Parish Police jury. They are G. E. Lindsey, president; L. J. Jarmon, vice-president; and Oscar Baughman, secretary-treasurer. The same standing committees that served last year were renamed.

DICK TRACY

DICK TRACY'S FRANTIC SEARCH FOR THE CAPTIVE TESS TRUEHEART, TAKES ON NEW IMPETUS WHEN THE LATEST CLEW IS ACCIDENTALLY UNCOVERED BY A TELEPHONE LINEMAN..

YOU SEE, MR. TRACY - I'M JUST A TELEPHONE LINEMAN - A "TROUBLE-SHOOTER"! MY PARTNER AND I KEEP ON THE GO ALL THE TIME, TESTING THE COUNTRY LINES AND CHECKING UP.

IT WAS AT THIS VERY POST THAT I WAS FISHING FOR A CROSS CIRCUIT WHEN I PICKED UP A DOT-DASH NOISE ON ONE OF THE WIRES - ...I THOUGHT NOTHING OF IT AT FIRST - UNTIL...

RECALLING SOME OF MY MORSE-CODE TRAINING - I LISTENED AS THE SIGNALS WERE REPEATED AND HEARD - "S O S.. FAIRGROUND STABLES - TESS."

HOW COULD SHE HAVE SENT SIGNALS LIKE THAT?

UNDER THE RIGHT CONDITIONS, A SHORT CIRCUIT ACROSS TWO LEAD-IN WIRES WOULD DO IT! OF COURSE YOU CAN'T TELL.

THE FAIRGROUND STABLES ARE OVER THAT WAY.... CAN YOU TRACE WHICH WIRE THE SIGNALS CAME OVER.

WE'VE ALREADY DONE THAT.

MEANWHILE - HELD PRISONER IN THE STABLE LOFT, TESS CONTINUES SENDING SIGNALS WITH THE CROSSED WIRES. UNAWARE THAT ALREADY THE TINY DOTS AND DASHES HAVE ATTRACTED ATTENTION.

MY FINGERS FEEL LIKE THEY'RE TORN TO SHREDS FROM UNTWISTING THE JOINT IN THIS WIRE - BUT IF THIS SIGNAL BRINGS HELP IT WAS WORTH IT.

TOUCHING ONE WIRE TO THE OTHER, SHE REPEATS THE MESSAGE OVER AND OVER. DOT DOT DOT..DASH DASH..DOT DOT DOT. WITH JUST A RAY OF HOPE THAT SOME SORT OF SIGNAL IS BEING SENT.....

TEN MINUTES LATER - IN THE POLICE RADIO BROADCASTING ROOM.....

CALLING BOOKIE JOE.. ..CALLING BOOKIE JOE... TRACY TALKING...

GREAT SCOTT, JOE, THEY'RE TALKING TO YOU!

WE HAVE CONCLUSIVE PROOF THAT YOU ARE THE CAPTOR OF TESS TRUEHEART. WE KNOW SHE'S ALIVE, AND WE KNOW WHERE SHE'S BEING HELD - AND WE'RE WILLING TO COMPROMISE WITH YOU TO SPARE THE GIRL'S LIFE.

WE PROPOSE TO HAVE TOBY TOWNLEY ACT AS OUR INTERMEDIARY AND MEET YOU WHEREVER YOU SAY WITH A SEALED LETTER CONTAINING OUR OFFER CONCERNING THE DRIVE AGAINST YOUR GANG. IF THIS MEETS WITH YOUR APPROVAL, HAVE ONE OF YOUR MEN CALL POLICE HEADQUARTERS. THE CALL WILL NOT BE TRACED.

IF YOU REFUSE OUR OFFER, WE WILL CLOSE IN AND ANNIHILATE EVERY MAN OF YOU - REGARDLESS OF CONSEQUENCES.. ..KILL EVERY LAST ONE OF YOU!

TOBY - COME UP TO THE OFFICE. YOU'RE GOING TO GET A CHANCE TO PROVE WHICH SIDE YOU'RE ON. YOU'RE GOING TO GET A CHANCE TO SAVE A WOMAN'S LIFE.

WHAT DO YOU MEAN, MR. TRACY? WHAT CAN I DO?

Bulging Country Banks
How Powerful Is Nature

MR. J. P. MORGAN, selling old masters recently, is said to have got more than half a million for one picture. The late Mr. Huntington, of California, paid one million, or more, for a painting known as the "Blue Boy," and very pretty. These prices are respectable, but small compared with the cost of a portrait of King George, presented by the British ambassador to President Roosevelt.

That modern portrait cost the taxpayers of the United States, five thousand million dollars, a new record.

MARC A. ROSE writes for Vincent Astor and Professor Moley a sad story about "the small town banker." He sits at his desk all day, looking at traffic, outside the window and that is all his occupation. The foolish 1929 modern bank across the street folded up more than two years ago. Spiders ornament its costly bronze fittings. The surviving banker's "vaults bulge with cash—but will the borrowers ever come back?"

THEY WILL, if and when the banker, big-town or small-town, decides that it is safe to come out of his "liquidity," borrow and lend. The borrowers are there and eager, like anxious spirits at the gates of paradise. But their collateral, once acceptable, is acceptable no longer. The banker must protect his bank, stockholders, and cash. Six years ago, he would have lent half a million on that new bank. Now he would not dare lend fifty thousand. He would have an empty building on his hands.

Borrowers will return and be able to borrow when this country returns, with reasonable restrictions perhaps, to the methods that created it. These methods did create depressions occasionally, but they all passed and prosperity was greater than ever. We are now trying to invent a better prosperity, guaranteed never to wear out, or to buy our way back to prosperity with tax payers money. Perhaps it can be done: The small-town banker and his customers must wait and see.

NIKOLA TESLA, who did important work in harnessing Niagara power, things he knows how to transmit power, without wires, to any desired distance. He may not actually do it, for he is seventy-nine years old and few great material tasks are accomplished at that age. Even Edison, at eighty, could talk better than he could perform.

But Tesla may point the way for others. Long before the modern talk about "releasing the power in the atom," Tesla sitting in the old Delmonico at 26th street and Fifth avenue, holding a claret glass in his hand —he never drank—said to this writer "If I could release and harness the power that holds together the atoms in that glass it could run half the machinery of the United States."

Men will eventually transmit power through space without wires: and flying machines in that day will pick up the power of hydraulic or other power plants as they fly over them: no heavy load of fuel to carry, no landing to refuel. That will be the beginning of a new flying age.

HOW BIG and powerful could a volcanic or earthquake disturbance be if nature did her worst? What surprises does earth reserve for us, to shake our smug self-approval?

You read of a recent eruption of Krakatoa: Do you remember details of the biggest effort of that volcano within historic times. It came just fifty-two years ago in August, 1883. Two-thirds of the rocky island were blown away, the noise of the explosion

JACKSON, Miss., July 13.—(AP)—Hinds county's sheriff was served with a writ of replevin by a federal court officer here today directing him to "surrender" into custody of the federal court 205 cases of bonded whisky, valued at $4,000, which was seized by county officers here several days ago.

At the time of the seizure, Constables Joe Shurden and C. H. Newman arrested Carey Beasley and charged him with violating the state prohibition laws.

The writ of replevin was issued by U. S. District Court Clerk Ben Todd on application of Robert C. Denham who said he acted for the United States Liquor Importers and Distributors, Inc., of New Orleans. The writ was issued on the ground that the liquor was being moved in interstate shipment, and that it had not reached its destination. The raiding officers said they found the liquor stored in a building on Beasley's premises.

Sheriff John W. Roberts refused to surrender the confiscated liquor today, and was advised by his attorney, he said, to await an order from the district judge.

WILSON SUBMITS BILL ELIMINATING EUDORA FLOODWAY

Urges Measure As Substitute For Markham Plan For Boeuf Basin

Congressman Asks Action By Committee During The Coming Week

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(Special)—Representative Riley J. Wilson, chairman of the house flood control committee, was today prepared to press for action on legislation designed to modify the 1928 flood control program through elimination of the proposed Eudora floodway and substituting for it a series of flood reservoirs in the Arkansas and White river basins.

In the face of opposition of Major General Edward M. Markham, chief of army engineers, Wilson offered the new plan because, he declared, "This is the only course to pursue with any prospect of final results."

Under the terms of the Wilson bill, which he will ask his committee to report next week, the provisions of the Markham plan for the Atchafalaya and Morganza floodways in lower Louisiana and other protection works for the rich sugar bowl area remain intact. Likewise, his measure proposed continued straightening and deepening of the main channel of the Mississippi river to aid in its flood carry.

Principal changes in the Markham plan proposed by the Louisiana representative are elimination of the Eudora floodway east of Macon Ridge; construction of 26 reservoirs in the Arkansas and White basins; and raising of the fuse-plug levee at the head of the Boeuf Basin to the 1928 grade and section.

Wilson estimates that his program would cost approximately $275,000,000, in comparison with the $265,000,000 es-

MAN WANTED HERE IS APPREHENDED

Escaped Convict Arrested In New Mexico After Robbery There

Sheriff Milton Coverdale was notified late last night that Harold Holmes, escaped convict of the Louisiana State penitentiary and wanted by the local sheriff's department for house burglary and the theft of an automobile at Calhoun, has been arrested at Tucumcari, N. M., where he is accused of holding up and robbing attendants of a filling station.

Holmes is also wanted by the Caddo parish sheriff's department for the robbery of a filling station, with a firearm, in Bossier City.

Charges against Holmes in Louisiana and New Mexico arose from offenses committed following his escape from the penitentiary last June 27. He had been sent to the penitentiary from the Ouachita parish district court in 1933 to serve a sentence of from 6 to 9 years for larceny of an automobile.

Previously, he had served a term of one year in the penitentiary for larceny in Jackson parish.

Holmes is accused of robbing the home of H. G. McIntosh at Calhoun, a quantity of clothing and a single-barrel shotgun being taken in the robbery. He is also accused of stealing an automobile owned by Robert Watson of Calhoun.

At Bossier City, Holmes was said to have used the shotgun in robbing a filling station. He was said to have used the same weapon in the filling

SEAMEN RECRUITED FOR TANKER JOBS GIVEN BIG ESCORT

HOUSTON, Texas, July 13.—(AP)—Eleven non-union seamen en route to Galveston to man the Cities Service tanker the Missouri, today were given an escort of eighty deputy sheriffs and special officers to the Galveston county line.

When the sailors, recruited in New Orleans, reached Houston last night, they were met by a "committee" from the international seamen's union, which is striking against Cities Service tankers. The union men tried to dissuade them from going on to Galveston, but only one of the original twelve quit. The remainder were marched to a hotel where they spent the night while union men in automobiles cruised around the exits.

Verbal Duelists In 'Liar' Outburst At Lobby Inquiry

Brewster's Epithet Climaxes Corcoran's Testimony About Utilities Bill Electioneering

You're a liar!"

"We'll see if I'm a liar. Ernest Gruening was there . . ."

WOMAN CONVICTED IN KIDNAP CASE

Mrs. Waley Found Guilty Of 'Lindbergh Law' Conspiracy Charges

TACOMA, Wash., July 13.—(AP)—Nineteen-year-old Margaret Waley was convicted swiftly of both "Lindbergh law" and conspiracy charges by a federal jury here today for her allegedly unwilling participation in the $200,000 kidnaping of curly-haired George Weyerhaeuser.

In four hours and forty-five minutes a jury of ten men and two women waded through legal technicalities to reach the decision:

1. The 9-year-old timber fortune heir had been taken across the Washington-Idaho line by his kidnapers, thus warranting application of the "Lindbergh law."

2. She assisted actively in transporting the boy across the state line.

3. She actively conspired with her husband, Harmon M. Waley and the fugitive William Dainard, alias Mahan, to snatch the boy and collect $200,000 ransom.

The plump young woman, described by her attorney as a child of abject poverty, took the verdict without a flicker of emotion.

Federal Judge E. E. Cushman set next Wednesday morning for pronouncement of sentence. The jurist sentenced Waley to 45 years in prison on a plea to guilty to similar charges.

Life sentences are possible on both charges. The law sets no minimum.

Mrs. Waley said in a statement:

"I am satisfied with the verdict as I told the truth and tried to plead guilty. I did not know I was in a criminal conspiracy until my husband was involved in it, after which I went through with it rather than betray the man I love."

Earlier, sitting in the courtroom waiting for the judge to enter, she had bitten her lips nervously as she talked with United States Marshal A. J. Chitty and kneaded a green-edged handkerchief in her fingers.

Chitty quoted her as saying:

"My goodness, I hope that jury doesn't acquit me."

Her attitude in this respect had been described by her attorney, John F. Dore, the result of warnings by federal agents that she would be tried under a state law providing the death penalty unless she subjected herself to federal jurisdiction.

Thrice she had attempted to plead guilty, but Judge Cushman rejected that and ordered the trial which ended so swiftly today.

Judge Cushman was called upon twice by the jury for additional instructions to lead them through the legal conceptions of conspiracy and the transportation of the youth in interstate commerce.

United States Attorney J. Charles Dennis issued a statement saying:

"On behalf of the department of justice, I hereby serve notice upon each and every member of the underworld that any assistance, aid, or

LIGHTNING IN PRANKISH MOOD SPLITS MAN'S PANTS

TALIHINA, Okla., July 13.—(AP)—Lightning split the seat of Bill Dixon's pants and used his backbone for a conductor when it struck a tree under which he and five other persons were seeking protection from an electrical storm.

Dixon, 60 years old, was seated on a box leaning against the tree trunk when the bolt struck. He said he could feel it course down his spine. When companions picked him up, the seat of his trousers was missing.

Dixon was knocked unconscious, as was Mel Armstrong, another of the party. Both are recovering.

Orleans Water Board Issue Goes To U. S. Supreme Court

NEW ORLEANS, July 13.—(AP)—Efforts of Senator Huey P. Long's state administration to seize control of the New Orleans sewerage and water board, a $60,000,000 unit, was blocked today pending a decision of the United States supreme court on the constitutionality of a legislative act reorganizing the board.

Chief Justice Charles A. O'Niell of the Louisiana supreme court, today granted attorneys for the old sewerage and water board, who unsuccessfully attacked the validity of the reorganization act in the state courts, an appeal to the high U. S. tribunal.

The new board, composed of a majority of appointees of Governor O. K. Allen, political ally of Senator Huey P. Long, has been striving to take control of the New Orleans sewerage and water facilities by ousting the old board through litigation, knotted in state and federal courts.

A federal court injunction against the new board has kept the old board in power.

Justice O'Niell, one of the dissenters against the constitutionality of the act empowering the new board, at the same time today ordered a supersedeas to stay judgments and rulings of state courts against the old board until the U. S. supreme court has acted on the question.

Justice O'Niell, as head of the state supreme court, is the only member of that tribunal with the power to sign such an appeal order and grant a supersedeas.

Attorneys for the state administration insisted that the old board be made to post a bond of not less than $400,000 pending the United States supreme court's decision but Justice O'Niell held that a bond of $25,000 was sufficient, and he named that sum.

The old board has been directed by Judge Wayne G. Borah in federal court to show cause Monday morning why his temporary injunction restraining the new board from interfering with its functions should not be dissolved.

If the injunction is retained, it is expected that Judge Borah will act also Monday on the old board's petition to include Governor O. K. Allen and State Attorney General Gaston L. Poterie among those restrained by the injunction.

AUSTRIAN WOMAN KILLED IN CRASH

Chancellor Narrowly Escapes As His Wife Is Fatally Injured

VIENNA, July 13.—(AP)—Wreckage of the motor car that almost cost the life of Austria's chancellor today, killed his wife and thrust new power into the hands of militant Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, tonight yielded evidence of a defective steering gear.

Experts who conducted an examination of the death machine said they were convinced the steering gear was defective, but added they were unable to determine what had caused the condition.

Acting swiftly upon reports of the injury to Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, the cabinet tentatively decided to place von Starhemberg, chief of the heimwehr, Austria's Fascist "private army," in the post of chancellor.

In the tragic accident, near Linz, Frau Schuschnigg, 34, was killed and their son, Kurt, Jr., 9, seriously hurt.

Then he returned to the Brothers

FILLING STATION OPERATOR FATALLY SHOT BY OFFICER

VAIDEN, Miss., July 13.—(AP)—Alfred Shelton, 35-year-old Durant, Miss., filling station operator, was shot and killed by Officer Herman Miche while resisting arrest here today, the sheriff's office reported.

Miche said he had received complaints that Shelton was intoxicated and creating a disturbance about the streets of Vaiden. The officer said he approached Shelton as he was seated in his parked car and attempted to place him under arrest.

Miche said Shelton reached for his gun, and the officer fired. One bullet entered Shelton's abdomen, resulting in his death.

No charges had been made tonight against Miche.

Cross-Fire Of Criticism And Praise Marks Work On Program

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—A cross-fire of vigorous criticism and hearty praise—but with criticism sounding the louder—today rushed the president's tax plan to the bill-drafting stage.

In order to finish hearings today, the house ways and means committee met earlier than usual and sat later, giving up its usual Saturday recess. The sum and substance of what it heard was this:

A demand from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for a reduction of expenditures if not a balanced budget through economy.

Insistence from the merchants association of New York that the projected new levies be deferred until they can "be duly considered and enacted as a part of a properly coordinated plan for balancing the * * * budget."

An assertion that the general conference of American rabbis "heartily approves" the president's plan.

The Chamber of Commerce argument was presented by three witnesses, objecting to the tax plan in general and its four points in particular.

TWO KILLED AS RIOTING MARKS IRISH OBSERVANCE

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, July 13.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and twenty injured in a second night of rioting that began yesterday with the celebration of the 245th anniversary of the battle of the Boyne.

In two days fighting between Catholics and Protestant Orangemen four have been killed and 66 injured.

Tonight's outbreaks were in York street, scene of the first day's disorders. The rioters defied curfew restriction and a triple guard of Belfast and provincial police.

Authorities immediately sent out a call for more police from adjoining counties. One district was ordered surrounded.

NEGROES HOLD UP YOUTHS ON TRAIN

One Victim Of Robbery Shot, Another Reported Thrown From Car

One youth was shot in the leg, another was either shot or knocked off a speeding eastbound freight train, and 18 others were held up and robbed by three armed negroes on an Illinois Central freight train Friday night about a mile and a half west of Holly Ridge, La., according to a report received here Saturday.

A wide search was made Saturday by members of the force of Sheriff A. A. Abell of richland parish for the missing youth along the tracks where the holdup occurred, but no trace could be found of him.

Witnesses said that after the man had fallen from the train, one of the negroes fired a shot at him but it was not known whether the bullet took effect. The train was going at a rate of about 40 miles an hour at the time of the robbery.

The negro bandits waited until the train slowed down at Rayville before making their escape, fleeing through the negro section of the town. Deputy sheriffs combed the district, but the negroes had disappeared.

According to the report, the bandits came upon the group of white youths riding on a flat car of the train. Branishing revolvers, the negroes forced their victims to one end of the car, where one of the trio searched their pockets for valuables, while the other two held the white men at bay with their revolvers.

When he attempted to thwart the robbery, Monroe Johnson of Liberty, Miss., one of the transients, was shot through a muscle of the left leg. He was taken from the train at Rayville, where his wound was dressed. His condition was not considered serious.

Apprehension was expressed in Rayville as to the fate of the man who fell from the train. Witnesses said that at the speed the train was making, the man was certain to have been seriously if not fatally hurt in the fall.

Since the section along the track where the robbery occurred is filled with swamps, it was feared that he might have fallen into the water and in a dozed or unconscious condition, drowned.

The search for him was to be continued Sunday in an effort to locate the body. It was said that the missing man became frightened during the holdup and started to walking along the car. When one of the negroes fired, he was seen to tumble from the car and disappear as a second bullet was fired, it was reported.

ARBITRATION MOVE IN BILOXI LABOR DISPUTE REJECTED

BILOXI, Miss., July 13.—(AP)—Governor Sennett Conner's proposal to arbitrate the Gulfport longshore dispute was turned down late today by officials of the Gulfport Benevolent association.

"We have nothing to arbitrate," they said. "We have a two-year contract for loading and unloading the boats at the Gulfport harbor."

The International Longshoremen's association, now picketing the Gulfport waterfront and preventing the loading of ships by the local benevolent association unions, accepted the arbitration plan.

Members of the benevolent association said that four ships had been diverted from Gulfport as a result of the picketing, resulting in a loss of $6,000 per ship, the approximate cost to load and unload them.

Mayor Denounces Old Associates For Their Desertion Under Fire

"You Can't Deal With Men You Have Called Thieves And Crooks And Then Uphold Your Honor," He Declares

SPURNS "TAINTED PEACE" OFFER

Crowded Council Room At New Orleans Resounds With Cheers Of Applauding Citizens As Mayor Attacks His Foes

NEW ORLEANS, July 13.—(AP)—The city of New Orleans shook today under the thunder of the political strife between Senator Huey P. Long and Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley.

In a back to the wall stand, Mayor Walmsley defied the Louisiana dictator and his hosts and rallied his shattered forces for the onslaught Long has directed for his removal from office. The sound of battle in the city echoed throughout the state with anti-Longs rallying to the standard of Walmsley as a last resort.

The mayor was given a wound, designed to be mortal, when most of his city political lieutenants, deserted his ranks for Long's on the plea the step had to be taken to save New Orleans from financial ruin. Three of his four city commissioners requested his resignation and 13 of his 17 ward associates made the same request.

Denouncing his former associates for deserting him, and refusing to resign, Walmsley shouted to the city commissioners:

"You wouldn't want to deal with Al Capone. You can't deal with men who have been called thieves and crooks by each and everyone of you and then uphold your honor. * * * There is nothing that I will do that will bring back 'Banquo's ghost' to haunt me and make the members of my family hang their heads in hame. Peace, I want peace, love peace, but never peace on the terms that have been offered."

As Walmsley was lambasting the commissioners and Long's "dictatorship," Norman Thomas, national leader of the Socialist party, threw down a new threat to Long by announcing he would come to Louisiana and stump it with a sound-truck caravan against the "demagoguery of Huey Long's share-the-wealth program."

Long, visibly irritated over Thomas' plan, charged that President Roosevelt, with whom he has broken politically, was sending Thomas to Louisiana.

"Anyway, Thomas won't get three people in Louisiana to listen to him," the senator said.

Today's commission council meeting, wrought with drama from start to finish, was interrupted by an enthusiastic citizen who identified himself as William B. Golden and asked to be heard. Gaining the mayor's consent, Golden said:

"Huey P. Long was not elected governor of Louisiana. He was elected to the United States senate. His duty is at Washington. He should go back to the United States senate where he belongs and if he can't pass laws for the people of his state and the nation then let him take a back seat and let Pat Harrison or some other able senator do his duty."

Before Golden could proceed further, the "deserting" commissioners demanded adjournment and the meeting dissolved in an uproar of applause for Walmsley.

Meanwhile, the "Old Regulars," Walmsley's political organization went forward with plans for a series of city-wide mass meetings next week to circulate petitions demanding the mayor's resignation.

Senator Long has promised the "Old Regulars" to call a special session of the legislature to address Walmsley out of office "within 24 hours" after the signatures of a majority of the voters of the city are attached to the ouster petitions.

MAN BECOMES FATHER OF STEP-GRANDCHILD

HAMMONTON, N. J., July 13.—(AP)—Thomas D. Delker, 65, Hammonton newspaperman, today became the father of his step-grandchild.

Last winter, Delker married Miss Emma Messner, 22, daughter of Joseph Messner, who is the husband of Delker's daughter.

The marriage made him the son-in-law of his own son-in-law. His daughter became his step-mother-in-law, while his bride became her own step-grandmother.

Now a baby, Emma Mae Delker, has arrived. She is her step-grandmother's step-sister, her mother's step-aunt, and her father's step-sister-in-law.

MOVES FOR PEACE GAIN 'SPOTLIGHT'

Secretary Hull Issues Statement Supporting Kellogg-Briand Pact

(By Associated Press)

Moves for peace gained a portion of the Italo-Ethiopian "war" spotlight yesterday as Secretary Hull of the United States issued a statement in support of the Kellogg-Briand pact.

His action evoked comment in London circles that a "united front" with Great Britain against war in Ethiopia was possible if the United States joined Great Britain in opposition to such a war.

In Rome, Italian authorities declared they had "in no way" violated the Kellogg-Briand pact.

Military preparations on the part of Italy moved forward with unabated intensity. Massaua, the leading seaport in the Italian colony of Eritrea, was described as a city of soldiers and stevedores, laboring strenuously to move men and supplies into the zone where hostilities are expected in September.

Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia was reported moving crown jewels and religious relics out of the holy city of Axum to a safer place high in the interior of Ethiopia.

ADEN, Arabia, July 12.—(AP)—From this Persian gulf port, on the historic route to India, Great Britain is anxiously watching Premier Mussolini's massing of troops in Italy's east African colonies of Somaliland and Eritrea.

Observers said today they considered the Italian army the most scientifically equipped as well as the largest ever sent into Africa. The preparations now under way indicate to military experts that an early assault on the 5,000-year-old independent

TOWN IN ARKANSAS CLEARS DEBRIS OF VIOLENT WINDS

JASPER, Ark., July 13.—(AP)—Tornadic winds that ripped along a narrow path in northwest Arkansas left this Ozark mountain city the task of clearing away an estimated $100,000 worth of damaged property today.

The windstorm did its worst damage, here destroying buildings, uprooting trees and injuring several persons, two seriously. Its path continued south to Dardanelle where minor damage was reported and a negro woman injured.

Scattered rainstorms, accompanied by strong winds and electrical disturbances were reported in other sections of Arkansas but no serious damage resulted.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., July 13.—(Special)—Now they find that Italy is after the trade of Abyssinia. The Japanese are in there, they are underselling everybody all over the world. Well, a few years ago when we thought we had a "patent mass production" we was underselling everybody. England wants Italy to lay off Abyssinian territory, yet look at the map. They control three sides of Abyssinia themselves. They have already got theirs, so you see there is two sides to every argument, and it's all a matter of "whose dog is bit."

EUROPEAN VISIT IS MADE BY NUNS

Sister Patrick And Companion Enjoy Interesting Trip Abroad

Sister Patrick and a companion, both members of the Franciscan sisters of St. Francis sanitarium, have just returned from an extended trip to Europe. They witnessed some of the events held in connection with King George's jubilee which was one of the most interesting events of the journey.

They arrived in Havre, France, April 18, after a stormy crossing, and went at once to the Mother House in Calais, where they rested for a few days. They visited Belgium, Holland and some of the beautiful cities of France, including Paris and the seaside town of Berck.

After a few days they crossed the English channel to Dover and passed through London with its streets all decorated for the silver jubilee of King George and Queen Mary.

At Fishguard they took the boat for Ireland, landing in Cork, and spent a month visiting the beauty spots of Ireland.

They returned to Calais June 13 to witness the golden jubilee of the superior general of the congregation, which was presided over by the bishop of Arras. Over 50 priests attended and also 200 delegates from the different convents of the order from North and South America, Asia, Africa, Belgium, France, Holland, Portugal, Turkey and Ireland. Three days later they boarded "The Washington" at Havre and arrived in New York after a pleasant trip at sea.

RAILROAD EMPLOYES GO ON TRIP TO ARKANSAS

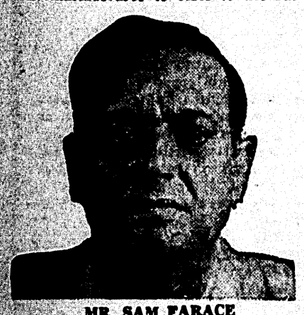

Missouri Pacific railroad employes and their friends were to leave by special train for Lake Village at 7:15 o'clock this morning. The special picked up passengers from Alexandria and way stations before reaching Monroe and also from stations en route to Lake Village.

From Lake Village, the party was to be conveyed to Lakewood, on Lake Chicot, where a big program of entertainment has been planned.

Tremendous Sale of Gly-Cas Enables Public To Profit

fering public through the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard Street, this city, this new advanced medicine at the price of the ordinary medicines of today, within the reach of everyone. Never has there been an equal of Gly-Cas here before.

Read what Mr. Sam Farace, 316 North Seventh St., Monroe, many years a resident of this community and a well known and respected local gentleman, said recently in talking with the Gly-Cas Man at the Phoenix Drug Co.:

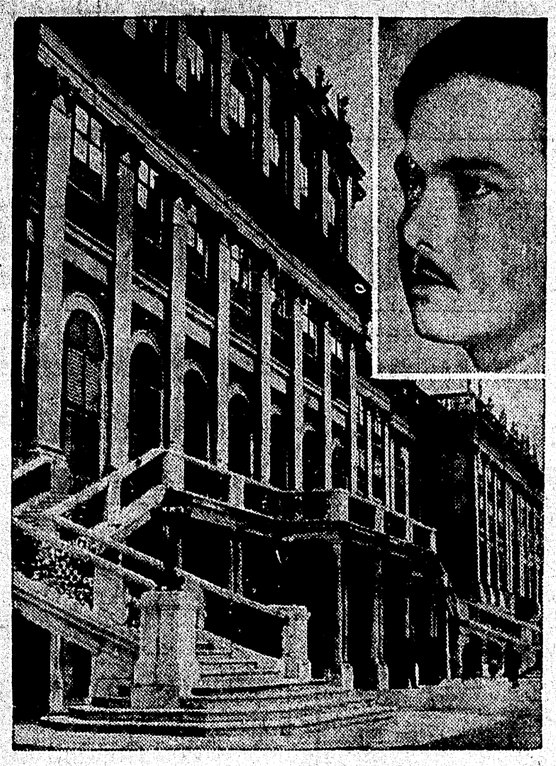

"For the past twenty-two years I had suffered dreadfully with rheumatism in the worse form," said Mr. Farace. "I had to use CRUTCHES TO GET ABOUT and at times was CONFINED to my BED with unbearable suffering with such aches and pains. My limbs were so affected I thought they would surely break, a good night's rest was impossible and the strongest sedatives even failed to relieve my pain. I spent more than THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS on many different kinds of medicines and treatments—doing my best to find relief—but always met with failure. Had decided that my case was beyond help and thought it would surely be too stubborn and of too long standing for much help soon. But when I began to hear so much praise for Gly-Cas here in Monroe and everyone seemingly was telling how DIFFERENT it was—I decided to put it to a REAL TEST on my own case—and it was wonderful."

"Poisons of the worse kind were easily removed from my system by this new Gly-Cas—and almost at once too," continued Mr. Farace. "Those severe pains were soon relieved until I began to get a natural sleep each night. My stomach and bowels were easily regulated too, and I now eat foods I had not dared touch before. But best of all that dreadful rheumatism that caused me such continual suffering has been so relieved I am seldom if ever bothered with any pain at all. I am now able to get around the best I have in 20 years and I am feeling better in every way. I KNOW from actual experience that Gly-Cas gets to the very source of the troubles—removing the cause for the wonderful results this new remedy has given me are nothing less than miraculous."

The Gly-Cas Man is daily meeting crowds of local people at the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard Street, where he is introducing and explaining the merits of this new vegetable medical discovery.

Gly-Cas is now here; 8 boxes for $5.00. Regular or prompt price.—Adv.

ADLER'S AWARDED AGENCY FOR CARS

Local Firm Appointed Dealer For Hudson, Terraplane Automobiles

Adler's, Inc., located at the corner of South Grand and Grammont, has recently been appointed dealer for Hudson and Terraplane automobiles in northeast Louisiana.

The firm is under the direction of Sam and Saul Adler who are well known in the local automobile field. Although Sam Adler has made his home in Alexandria since 1930, Saul Adler has remained in Monroe as manager of the Hotel Monroe garage and serice station. Adler Brothers formally operated the Oakland and Pontiac agency here.

The new showrooms of Adler, Inc., have just been remodeled. Four large plate glass windows have been installed and a pleasing effect has been brought about through flood lights.

Sam Adler is one of the oldest automobile dealers in the country and has been actively engaged in the automobile business since 1905. As an employe of the assembly department he helped to build the first Hudson car which was manufactured in 1907. Later he was made district manager, covering the entire south for seven years. For six years Mr. Adler was district manager for General Motors, Pontiac division.

INDIAN CAN NOW RELIEVE THIRST

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 13.—(AP)—More than 400 retail liquor stores in Arkansas but not one drink for an Indian.

So the Indian complained to Attorney General Carl E. Bailey. He said he had tried to buy liquor at Rogers and other northwest Arkansas towns and had been refused, the store owners telling him sales to Indians was against the law.

Assistant Attorney General Tom Fitzhugh, to whom the letter was referred, said the Thorn legalization law had repealed an ancient law which provided that it was illegal to sell or give whisky to an Indian.

Fitzhugh said the Indian could legally buy liquor at any liquor store.

DECREASE SHOWN IN RELIEF CASES OF URBAN CENTERS

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—A decline of 249,897 in the urban relief population between May and June was announced today by Harry L. Hopkins, the relief administrator, along with a $4,450,459 decrease in relief costs.

The figures, covering 140 of the largest cities, showed a 3.3 per cent decline in the number of relief cases, and a 6.6 per cent decline in expenditures—from 2,070,640 families and single persons in May to 2,003,073 in June, and from $67,384,249 to $62,933,790.

Of the 140 cities, 123 were reported to have shown declines in the number of cases.

"Reports received from widely scattered areas," Hopkins said, "indicate increased private employment as the principal reason for these declines.

"The continued absorption of relief cases by the automotive industry in Flint, Mich., and the decline in the number of cases receiving relief in Winston-Salem, N. C., as a result of the reopening of a large textile mill, may be cited as noteworthy instances."

GETS BOAT JOB

CHICAGO, July 13.—(AP)—Lieut. Commander Louis B. Olson, former commander of the coast guard cutter "Seneca" at Mobile, Ala., will be sworn in July 20 as commander of the coast guard ice-breaker "Escanaba," Capt. LeRoy Reinburg, head of the Chicago division of the U. S. coast guard, announced today.

CANDIDATES OPEN ORATORICAL FIRE

Mississippi Race For Governor's Chair Enters Final Stretch

JACKSON, Miss., July 13.—(AP)—Entering the final stretch of the first primary campaign, with only three weeks remaining until Mississippi's Democratic voters go to the polls to register their choices for public office, the five candidates for governor are concentrating their oratorical fire in central and south Mississippi next week.

Seventy-four campaign speeches have been booked by the candidates themselves, while scores of "proxy" speakers will address crowds of voters in practically every school district in the state during the coming week.

Lester C. Franklin has the most ambitious itinerary of the gubernatorial candidates for the week, having booked 24 engagements, speaking four times each day.

Paul Johnson of Hattiesburg speaks 18 times during the week, while Hugh White of Columbia and Lieutenant-Governor Dennis Murphree will each make 16 political addresses during the week. Dr. E. A. Copeland, another of the gubernatorial candidates, does not announce his speaking itinerary.

In addition to the candidates for governor 28 candidates for nine other state offices, and 31 for the offices of railroad commissioner and district attorney in the various districts, and hundreds of county and local candidates will be exceptionally busy from now until the first primary balloting August 6.

Three weeks later, August 27, the second or "run-off" primary will occur.

Political campaigning was more intensified during the past week following the official certification of candidates last Monday by the state Democratic executive committee. The executive committee found only one state official unopposed for reelection, Supreme Court Clerk Tom Q. Ellis, who is serving out his first term.

Two of the gubernatorial candidates held state-wide rallies in Jackson during the past week, Paul Johnson and Lester Franklin addressing the voters at Poindexter park. Another of the candidates, Dennis Murphree, held a state-wide rally here two weeks ago, while Hugh L. White has his Jackson rally set for Friday night of the coming week.

Election officials are anticipating a record vote in the first primary balloting, with predictions that the 315,000 total of four years ago will be exceeded.

Relaxation of the primary election laws, making the payment of poll taxes the only tax-paying requirement for voting, is expected to substantially increase the state's total voting strength.

TO BATTLE TICKS

FARMERVILLE, La., July 13.—(Special)—The campaign for the eradication of cattle ticks in Union parish is expected to get under way August 1 under the supervision of W. J. Gill of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry. Mr. Gill, who has been designated supervisor of the drive, will be assisted by 32 persons. Dipping of all cattle will be enforced. There are now 170 dipping vats in the parish and several more will probably be constructed before the drive is launched.

Iron constitutes 40 per cent of the earth. The next most abundant element is oxygen, comprising about 28 per cent. Then come silicon, magnesium, nickel, calcium, aluminum and the rest.

GAS REPORT FOR WEEK IS ISSUED

One Well Completed In Morehouse Parish; Other Tests Are Made

One completion and progress made in a number of tests for oil and gas are reported by the Monroe office of the conservation department, minerals division, for the week that has just ended.

The completion is that of a test in Morehouse parish, section 33-21-4 east, of the Southern Carbon company, Ten Del No. 15 which was gauged as making 7,020,000 cubic feet of gas, rock pressure 875 pounds, total depth, 2,148 feet.

The drilling wells are reported as follows:

BATHS IN SPINACH APPARENTLY PROVE JINX TO RATTLER

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—Miss Beebe de la Fontaine today apparently had vindicated every faith the spinach branch of a vegetarian cult had lodged in the efficacy of greens as a protection against venom of a Florida rattlesnake.

Allegedly bitten Thursday night in an exhibition before paying customers in Dr. Lloyd Shanklin's 48th street spinach show, Miss De la Fontaine today was "in fine shape."

According to Dr. Shanklin, who vouches she actually was bitten by the rattler, Mlle. De la Fontaine trained for her ordeal by taking spinach baths.

A couple of off stage squeals was the only manifestation of her "agony" as the rattler coiled and struck.

Further today's announcement said Miss De la Fontaine ate a hearty breakfast, though unconfirmed reports had it that she had fumbled the check due to a persistent swelling of the fingers on which the rattler scored bulls eyes.

Miss De la Fontaine's press agent, a gentleman of serious mien, reiterated formally that she had received no medical attention and ascribed her post-bite health solely to her immersion in spinach baths.

Now Representing Hudson-Built Cars In MONROE and Vicinity

"No wonder you chose Hudson and Terraplane to sell!" That's what our friends are telling us as soon as they try these 1935 Hudson-built cars. Here are some of the features that made us decide that these cars—above all others—offer MOST of what this year's buyers want in a car. Come in and see these features for yourself. Drive these cars. Before you buy, compare them with what other cars offer. Special showing all this week.

America's FIRST Bodies ALL of Steel! — Floors, sides, sills, pillars, doors and EVEN ROOFS of solid steel, solidly welded to an inner structure also all of steel.

Police-Tested Brakes! — They always STOP you safely, in a short, STRAIGHT line. Tests by police in cities all over the country proved that Hudson-built cars stop 40% faster than police require for perfect stopping.

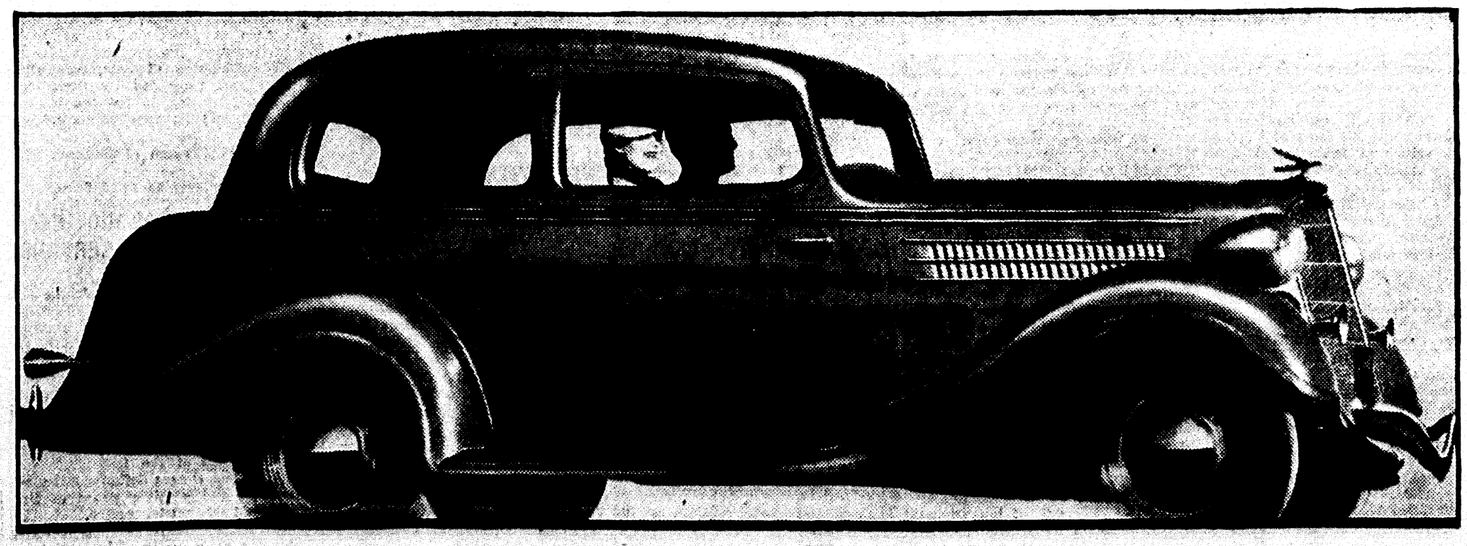

Record-Breaking Performance and Ruggedness! — In April, a Hudson stock car at Muroc Lake added 36 NEW official performance records to the scores already held by Hudson-built cars. 1000 continuous miles and more at over 85 miles an hour! One of the toughest tests of ruggedness ever given any car!

Proved Economy! 22.9 miles to the gallon for Terraplane—20.1 miles to the gallon for Hudson. Those are the AVERAGE mileages from scores of recent economy runs. And thousands of SWORN STATEMENTS from owners prove the remarkably low upkeep and operating expense of Hudsons and Terraplanes in day-by-day driving.

THE ELECTRIC HAND

AND LOOK AT THE PRICES!

$585 and up for Hudson-built Terraplane (88 or 100 horsepower) . . . Hudson Six $695 and up (93 or 100 horsepower) . . . Hudson Eight $760 and up (113 or 124 horsepower). All prices f.o.b. Detroit for closed models.

MOVES FOR PEACE GAIN 'SPOTLIGHT'

stronghold of Ethiopia is contemplated.

The military preparations at Massaua, Eritrea, across the gulf from here, are the most easily observed. That city now is a town of stevedores and newly-arrived troops, working without rest to unload the ships and clear the wharves already piled high with supplies.

Four or five Italian ships constantly are standing in the harbor waiting to disgorge their cargoes. Cranes creak and clatter throughout the day as tanks, armored cars, airplanes, horses, mules, artillery pieces, and the rest of the paraphernalia of war is swung overboard to start the journey into Africa.

The heat, frequently reaching 120 degrees in the shade, adds to the fatigue of the laboring men. The single railroad line to Wsmara, 120 miles inland, at the edge of the Eritrean plateau, is a jumble of confusion as engineers try to move the troops and material away from the burning seacoast.

The young Italian soldiers, arriving on the crowded troop ships, see a barren plain which stretches away into the distance, unrelieved by vegetation.

On account of the scarcity of water, the troops at Massaua are allowed only two pints a day for each man. With this amount he must do his drinking and washing.

Machinery now is being installed for distilling sea-water, but thus far it has been impossible for the engineers with their equipment to keep pace with the demand for the thirsty men. Meanwhile boats travel as far as the Sudan to buy water.

On top of the plateau, the main activity is road building, with the new highways pushing toward the Ethiopian frontier across ravines and mountains as fast as is humanely possible for the workmen brought from Ethiopia to labor. They, like the stevedores in Massaua, are earning the equivalent of from $3 to $5 a day.

Asmara is a beehive of activity with huge camps of men constructing dams and pipelines to care for the soldiers who are massing and who are on the way. Similar scenes are reported at Magadiscio, Italian Somaliland, although the bulk of the landing is at Massaua on account of the better harbor there.

Reports from Massaua say the Italians are combing Palestine, Cyprus and Syria for mules, donkeys and cattle for shipment into Eritrea.

ITALY INTERESTED IN BUILDING DAM

ROME, July 13.—(AP)—Italy is tremendously interested in the political aspects of constructing the enormous dam at Lake Tsana, Ethiopia, surveyed by an American company, the J. G. White Engineering corporation.

Lake Tsana is the source of the Blue Nile and subsequently the Nile, irrigating and fertilizing sections of Egypt. The dam is to guarantee a constant reserve for the Nile.

Negotiations which have been going on four years among the British, Egyptian, Sudanese and Ethiopian governments, have been brought to a sudden head, it is believed here, by the Italian military preparations in East Africa.

In effect, Italy does not favor the plan. It gives money to Ethiopia, with whom she will undoubtedly be at war this autumn. It gives Egypt, and therefore, England, vested rights in Ethiopia which will be embarrassing later on.

opposed the graduated corporation income tax to replace the present flat rate; Roy C. Osgood of Chicago objected to increases in inheritance and gift levies; E. C. Alvord of Washington spoke against higher personal income tax rates.

Clausen held that anything could "hardly be more inadvisable" than the new tax program which "may progressively diminish returns." He described the plan as "disturbing and harmful" and asserted it would "tend toward federal monopolization of revenues to the detriment of state budgets."

Alvord's argument was that higher personal income taxes would discourage individual incentive, that "funds will not be risked in new enterprises" and that the result would be a flight of capital from "producing activities into tax-exempt securities."

Osgood contended that if estate and inheritance taxes should remove the incentive to "thrift and endeavor, an economic injury, not a benefit, must result."

Dr. Sidney E. Goldstein of New York City, taking a shot at the Chamber of Commerce, said:

"What the president is endeavoring to do is to democratize our economic organization and income. What the Chamber of Commerce is striving to do is to maintain the autocracy in our economic life that is largely responsible for our economic collapse."

DEMAND EXPRESSED FOR ENDING SESSION

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—A bi-partisan demand that congress stop trying to legislate in sweltering summer heat and go home resounded today in a capital deserted by many New Dealers for a pleasure-business week-end.

While President Roosevelt, Vice-President Garner and other Democratic chiefs traveled to a rod and gun club retreat in Chesapeake bay, those who stayed behind fretted and fumed over the prospect of another month or more of bill passing and lobby investigating.

UNITED STATES, RUSSIA AGREE ON TRADE PACT

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—Ending 18 years of hit-or-miss commercial relations, the United States and Soviet Russia today concluded a trade pact under which the U. S. S. R. agreed to boost its American imports by 150 per cent over the average of the past three years.

In return for purchases of $30,000,000 of American goods during the next year, the United States granted wide tariff concessions to the Soviet. Experts here forecast privately, however, that the chief benefits to the Moscow government would be delayed, rather than immediate.

The Soviet is granted the benefit of all tariff reductions and other concessions made in the trade pacts with Belgium and Haiti, already effective, and in the Swedish agreement which becomes effective August 5.

CONFERENCES ENDED BY CANE PRODUCERS

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—Louisiana sugar cane growers seeking farm administration approval of an increased production allotment, completed conferences today with a call upon Rexford Tugwell, acting secretary of agriculture in the absence of Secretary Wallace.

Tugwell made no statement concerning the conference, but D. W. Pipes, Jr., Houma, La., head of the Louisiana group, said the under-secretary of agriculture was "very sympathetic" to the Louisiana sugar problem. Pipes added the delegation had been "very pleased" with its reception by AAA officials.

The group conferred with Secretary Wallace before he left the city and also had conferences with officials of the sugar section. Their hope has been to obtain an approximate two per cent increase in the annual quota allowed them under the Jones-Costigan act and a reduction of quotas to island importers.

LOBBY COMMITTEE BEGINS NEW PROBE

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—An effort to determine whether consumers must pay for the power industry's fight against abolition of its holding companies was begun tonight by the senate lobby committee.

Elaborate questionnaires went forward to all companies known to have participated. They asked the course of funds supplied for the battle as well as information on how, when and where and by whom it was spent.

Already the committee was in one public controversy over material taken by its investigators. Philip H. Gadsden, chairman of the committee of public utility executives, termed a "raid and an "outrage" the seizure of his committee's records.

But Chairman Black, Democrat, Alabama, expressed "astonishment at Gadsden's statement, issued after his return to Philadelphia. He noted Gadsden made no complaint when appearing before the committee but told it he would be glad to make all his records available.

British Columbia Adopts Forestry Training Plan

VICTORIA, B. C., July 13.—(AP)—Forestry training camps—a first cousin to American CCC—are beginning to flourish in British Columbia. Government sponsored, organized instruction in prospecting is in the offing.

The forestry plan was designed by George S. Pearson and 200 youths already are in the field under the guidance of British Columbia forest rangers. Additional camps have been projected to care for youths between the ages of 21 and 25, who have lived 10 years in the province.

Pearson is drafting a plan to divert a proportion of the recruits into practical mining field work and to obtain competent instructors in placer mining to tutor others.

REECE BEGINS TERM IN PRISON

Joseph I. Reece (left with glasses), former Tennessee insurance commissioner, is shown entering the state penitentiary to serve three to ten years. He was convicted for theft of $90,000 in bonds held by the insurance department. Reece was captured in Florida and returned to Tennessee after a futile protest against extradition. In a countrywide radio broadcast tonight, the Austrian public was told by Propaganda Chief Walter Adam that the chancellor escaped death literally by inches.

Schuschnigg, he said, was hurled from the car and struck head first on soft earth a few inches from a jagged stone at the side of the highway.

BLINDING DUST STORM HITS BERNICE FRIDAY

BERNICE, La., July 13.—(Special)—A dust storm, with a velocity of 75 miles per hour, struck this community late Friday afternoon forcing motorists to stop their automobiles on streets and highways to seek some relief from the blinding dust.

It was one of the worst storms of its kind in many months and lasted for about an hour.

WOMAN MINISTER TO FILL GOOD SAMARITAN PULPIT

Mrs. Nora Pruitt will fill the pulpit at the Home of the Good Samaritan this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Pruitt impressed her congregation the last time she preached at the home and a good attendance is expected today.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

It was thought likely that the first bullet struck him.

The negroes were believed to have boarded the train at Vicksburg, Miss., and planned the robbery while riding aboard the train. The leader was described as being heavy set, was wearing overalls and a straw hat.

The wounded man told Richland parish authorities that he was en route to Shreveport to secure employment. He said that the youth who disappeared from the train boarded it in Vicksburg. No clue was obtained as to his identity.

Sheriff's officers were unable to ascertain the value of the loot obtained in the robbery, although witnesses said it did not amount to much.

City Briefs

I. E. Reynolds, head of the music department of the Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth, Tex., and his daughter, Miss Lourane Reynolds, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Stulce. Miss Reynolds is a talented young violinist.

Earl Tate and Hessel Cahn are spending today in Jackson, Miss.

Two local persons passed the state bar examinations in New Orleans Friday. They are Howell Heard, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Heard, of West Monroe, and Miss Allwine Mulhearn, daughter of P. S. Mulhearn of Monroe.

E. G. Waring, division freight agent of the Missouri Pacific railroad, with his family, will leave today for Hot Springs, Ark., for a week's vacation.

A party of 30 persons will leave early Monday morning from the First Baptist church for Mandeville, where the state Baptist camp is located. They will remain there ten days. The party will make the trip in a specially chartered bus.

FINGER-PRINTING FOR MANY USES IS NOW WIDESPREAD

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—Finger-printing is constantly being put to new uses in this country, the public administration clearing house of Chicago finds.

Los Angeles now takes the prints of all suspects arrested on drunken driving charges. Denver finger-prints every person placed in the city jail, regardless of the offense.

New York, Rochester, Albany and Cincinnati are building files of residents' prints. Millbury, Mass., is finger-printing all local school children, and a year ago Okaloosa, Ia., instituted finger-printing of every one within the town's limits.

In Virginia and West Virginia the state police accept finger-prints for their civilian files.

Coming To Decisions

Some questions are easy to decide. They can be settled by anybody without delay. Other questions require more thought. Sometimes a problem entirely new to us commands our consideration; we work on it in our own minds, come to what seems to us a sound decision; we proceed to put this decision into operation, to find perhaps that we guessed wrong.

Some persons, when perplexed, go to others and ask: "What would you do under such and such circumstances?" And the person interrogated will reply that he would do so and so. Perhaps several intelligent acquaintances will declare themselves emphatically on one side of the question and others equally intelligent will declare themselves on the other side.

Some problems as thick as mud to us can be promptly solved if we go to the right sources of information. If you are wondering how many gallons of paint it will take to cover your roof, you do not need to puzzle your head over that problem. Any good paint man can give you the answer. Specialists of various kinds can instantly clear up technical problems that look black as night to the uninformed.

If you have a technical question to solve, the way to get the answer is from some one qualified to give it. Why worry yourself about what to do with the bugs that are eating your flowers and vegetables when contact with a dealer in insecticides or the parish farm agent will give you the immediate answer?

But every now and then you encounter a problem that is speculative. One person's guess is as good as another's. What are you going to do with such a question?

Unless you are willing to take a wild chance yourself, find out what other persons think about the same matter. Consult persons of intelligence who might be expected to have sound thoughts concerning the problem. Ask such persons: "What would you do?" Then, when they tell you, ask them, "Why?" When they explain why, make mental or written notes of their arguments.

After you have obtained all the reasons feasible from various types of persons capable of giving opinions on the subject, sit down quietly and analyze the reasons for and against; think them over with an open mind. Try to keep your own prejudices out of the picture. Sleep over the matter for several nights, if time permits. Ask yourself frankly, "Now just what do I think about this thing? Exactly what is my own opinion?" Then follow your hunch.

It is strengthening to our character to make our own decisions as soundly as we can after having heard arguments pro and con on questions that are debatable. We are supposed to use our minds to come to our conclusions. That is what our minds are for.

It is good for us to practice coming to decisions, and to develop the habit of coming to decisions. But we should not be obstinate and dogmatic about it. After we have come to a decision, should we plainly see that we have made a mistake, we should not hesitate to change.

On the other hand, it is harmful to permit ourselves to be wishy-washy and change our decisions with every wind that blows. The mind is a delicate, subtle, vital organ. One has to learn how to use it. Therefore, inexperienced, undeveloped persons should be careful about setting up their decisions against experienced, developed persons. That is something for children, especially, to learn.

BEHIND THE BATTLE LINES

One of the greatest services rendered by the department of justice in the war on crime is the work done by its bureau of identification. The exploits of its sleuths are widely known; less publicized but perhaps even more valuable is the way in which its files can provide any local police organization with swift and sure identification of an arrested person.

An example is provided in the arrest in New York of Merton W. Goodrich, who was wanted in Detroit for the murder of a child.

Goodrich was arrested in New York for disorderly conduct. The New York police had no way of knowing that he was wanted in Detroit for an atrocious crime. In the ordinary course of events he would have served a week or so in jail and then gone his way.

But New York sent his fingerprints to the department of justice—and Detroit's long hunt for him was over.

Here is a service any police or sheriff's force can use. It is one of the most valuable of all services in the fight against crime.

Ordnance officers fail to agree as to the efficacy of present anti-aircraft guns in a war. However, if it's going to take a war to answer the question we'd prefer to remain in ignorance.

A successful farmer is one who can pay enough taxes to enable the government to pay his losses.

That is, there's always a way to get what's coming to you—a lawyer half of it.

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

A SHATTERED DREAM

On learning that debts owing to the United States by individuals aggregate more than four hundred million dollars.

I rejoiced when I learned that your dear Uncle Sam
Has due him, in various loans,
A rather large sum,
Which I figured would come
To four hundred and five million bones.
"Why worry along?" I observed to myself,
"Why be troubled and anxious and blue?
No need to be sad
When the jolly old lad
Has such a fine prospect in view."

I figured out just what would be my own share
When my Uncle came into his own:
I would buy two new cars
And smoke dollar cigars
With my share of the government loan.
I would live in Miami two months every year
And sail a new, shining, white yacht;
I'd be a good scout
And scatter about
Quite gayly the coin I had got.

Despite the great news of my Uncle's good luck,
I sometimes am sad and dejected;
Although it is true
That the money is due,
It cannot for years be collected.
However, I thought I was rolling in wealth,
And even today I can smile.
Though I can't pay the rent,
Since I haven't a cent,
I was pretty rich, for a while.

African Affair No Picnic

By BRUCE CATTON

The very old and somewhat out-of-date empire of Abyssinia is about to fight with streamlined, modernized Italy, and if the sports fraternity were making book on the affair the odds would be at least 10 to 1, with practically no takers.

Yet the long shot does have a way of galloping home, occasionally, and, if the views of an anonymous military expert writing in the London Spectator recently are correct, Italy stands a very broad chance of coming an inglorious cropper in the fighting in Africa.

This writer makes the point that Abyssinia is apt to be an easy place to get into, but a hard one to get out of. The Italian army, he says, ought to be able to drive its way to Addis Ababa, Abyssinian capital, without trouble; once there, however, its troubles would begin.

All the Abyssinians need to do, he continues, is to retreat. To catch and defeat them the Italians would have to cross a rugged mountainous country larger than Morocco—and it took most of France's great colonial army many years to make the Moroccans knuckle under.

Meanwhile, Italian communications would be in danger, and the upshot of it all might well be the starvation and slow disintegration of the entire Italian expeditionary force.

All this is interesting chiefly as a reminder that wars are seldom fought according to the textbooks. On paper, a modernized and well-disciplined army like that of Mussolini's should have no trouble at all with a horde of semi-savage levies such as Haile Selassie can muster. In actual fact, such encounters often turn out differently.

Augustus Caesar of Rome discovered this 1,900 years ago, when Varus got the flower of the Roman army entangled in the Teutoberger forest in Germany, where the barbaric tribesmen annihilated it. Cortez met the same fate in his first drive at the Aztec empire.

The British regulars were no match for the Pennsylvania Indians when Braddock was trapped near Fort Duquesne. The crack cavalry regiment of the U. S. army was overwhelmed when the plains Indians got it in a blind alley at the Little Big Horn.

You could cull a column or so of similar instances from the military histories, but the examples that have been given so far are enough to make the point—which is that making war on a horde of poorly equipped barbarians is a much riskier business than it appears on the surface.

Mussolini's troopers will need all the good generalship and the good luck they can command, if the African campaign is to be the triumphal procession it is expected to be.

New Deal In Washington

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Frequently at critical moments in the continuous drama of Capitol Hill, the careful observer catches the bare whisk of a coat-tail from behind a piece of scenery, indicating intense activity on the part of a character who never gets out to the footlights.

This gent, as is no mystery to most of the players, is none other than the vice president, Mr. Jack Garner. Almost the exact antithesis of the celebrated Throttlebottom who immortalized the vice presidency as something it has often been, but is no more, Garner impresses many insiders as a "master hand" in congress.

A very shrewd and able fellow, wise in the ways of congress after more than 30 years in house and presiding over the senate, Garner leaves few traces of his influence and never overplays his hand.

Yet the records of secret conferences in his offices in the capitol and the senate office building would show that he is an administration leader in congress of equal if not greater puissance than titular leaders such as Senators Robinson and Harrison.

Specialist On "Messes"

One of his great specialties is straightening out messes. And his highly developed streak of horse sense has also kept the White House out of various first-class messes.

It was hard-headed Garner who dissuaded the administration from plumping for his friend Sam Rayburn for speaker, realizing the impossibility of licking Joe Byrns and the danger of putting Roosevelt in an awkward hole.

Roosevelt, of course, has great faith in Garner's judgment—and even telephones him frequently for his reaction to important situations which arise while Garner is summering in Texas.

More than anyone else, Garner brings administration pressure to bear in the senate. His influence is even felt in the house. There the vice president watches his step for fear of accusations of encroachment, but he has dealt with the fellows in that body for years and maintains many close contacts.

Down Garner's Alley

The holding company bill, TVA amendments, and the tax program are among the measures on which Garner lately has helped the administration considerably. Roosevelt discussed the "soak-the-rich" program extensively with Jack before announcing it.

If your memory is long, you'll recall that Garner for years fought for a somewhat similar program against the opposition of Secretary of Treasury Andy Mellon.

The fact is, Garner is much more a New Dealer than Robinson, Harrison or Byrns. There's no one more outspoken in face-to-face deliberations with Roosevelt, and yet no one more devoted to the president.

Garner has a distinctive dislike for the big bankers, and big industrialists of New York. Thus, much of the New Deal is right down his alley.

Gag On The General

For the benefit of those whose eyebrows went up when Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, celebrated for his ability to find Communists behind every other bush and his advocacy of poison gas in warfare, was made chairman of the NRA committee to study the effects of code abandonment on business and labor standards:

The appointment was due to the efforts of Prentiss Coonley, chief of NRA's division of business cooperation, who developed a huge admiration for Fries while serving under him in the chemical warfare service.

Fries is subject to gag. He has been told to make no statements without submitting them for inspection and high officials of NRA say a "careful watch is being kept on him."

A STAMPING CORNER

By W. J. KIRBY

One of the latest airmail sets of stamps is that of New Zealand. Three denominations—1-d. carmine, 3-d. dark violet, and 6-d. dark blue—bear the same design. A large cabin plane is seen coasting earthward to land near a hangar, where a mail truck awaits. At one side, shaded by a palm tree, stands a Maori native watching the plane. The scene is labelled "New Zealand Air Terminal."

The postoffice department's stamp museum, in the postoffice building at Washington, is now open to the public. Quartered in numerous glass cases are original stamps and die proofs of every postage stamp issued by the government since 1847.

In addition to the United States stamps displayed, there are also stamps from seventy-five foreign countries. Eventually, it is planned to have stamps from every country embraced in the International Postal Union—about ninety—included in the exhibit.

The exhibit includes the cancelling machine used by Charles F. Anderson in cancelling the 115,000 covers sent out from the Byrd expedition at Little America. There is also the master die of the 3-cent Century of Progress stamp, a transfer roll and set of completed rotary plate. It is estimated that the completed display will have a value of appoximately two million dollars.

In a recent press conference, Post master General Farley stated that no new stamps were contemplated "just now." Does this mean that we will not have a stamp for the Boy Scout jamboree to be held in Washington next month? Official Washington has been known to withhold announcement of the new issues until the last moment, and again Mr. Farley may mean "this week" when he says "just now."

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

BUFFALO BILL—In 1860 Buffalo Bill (William Cody) was a pony express rider, assigned to a 75-mile route a rugged country between Red Butte on the North Platte river and Three Crossings of the Sweetwater. Riding into his terminal one day at the end of his 75-mile trip, Cody found that his relief rider was dead and that there was no one to cover the next 85 miles to Rocky Ridge. "The mail must go on." Cody decided to continue to Rocky Ridge, where he turned back, riding a double route once more, to arrive at Red Butte on schedule time. The distance covered, 320 miles in 21 hours, 40 minutes, is considered by historians to constitute a pony express record.

Lights Of New York

By Paul Harrison

NEW YORK.—All around the town: Sign of the times, on a vacant Sixth avenue store: "Have moved around the corner to prosperity."

Modern advertising, in neon lights, helps the religious goods business in the Spanish quarter near Harlem: "Pray with candles if you want to get results" . . . Program libel on a theater marquee: "Noel Coward—The Scoundred—Swell Head" . . . Bourgeoise notice in the program of a Communist playhouse; "To the theater and home in a limousine—for only $6."

Since mentioning the two girl bootblacks I've seen four others—two in Bryant Park, two on lower Broadway . . . Companies employing corps of photographers to snap pedestrians and then try to sell them the pictures are hiring pretty girls to snap male strollers. Formerly lone men were the poorest type of prospects; now they're the best bet. . . . "Paddy's Market," the pushcart section of Hell's Kitchen, is exclusively Italian now.

Cool Loafing

Choicest spots for Broadway's standers-around are the lobbies of the refrigerated theaters . . . Plenty of free entertainment for kibitzers though, with three theaters being torn down on Broadway. Steamshovels already are snorting in the bedrock cradle of the old Rialto, and they provide no end of pleasure for Manhattan's excavation-watchers . . . Toughest spot in the rialto is the Barrel House, on Forty-second street. Soldiers and sailors, mostly, and plenty for the bounders to do.

Guests at Reuben's the other dawning invented a new game: Place a pat of butter on a knife and flip the butter against the ceiling; object, to make it stick. This went on gaily for a time, drawing dark looks from the waiters but laughs from other diners—until the butter began to melt and plop down on coiffures and evening clothes . . . Recovery note: The new summer social register lists 937 yachts in commission this year, against 677 in 1934.

Caveat emptor: Of all the sturgeon sold in New York, nearly every ounce is sand shark . . . Almost never do you get sole when you ask for filet of sole, even in the best restaurants; it's flounder or haddock . . . Buyers of jewels have no protection against fraud, except for the reputations of the dealers . . . Fledgling dancers should beware of schools that list Fred Astaire's name among their graduates—and several of them do. Astaire declares he never took dancing lessons . . . And visitors shouldn't allow themselves to be lured into cheap Broadway night spots by flashy displays of photographs in the lobbies. In many cases these are only random selections of lesser-known Hollywood beauties, who never even have heard of the places their pictures advertise . . . One store flashes a testimonial of a performer who committed suicide last year.

Country Calls

In 1933 the government of the Dominican republic was overthrown and the ex-president and five aids fled the country. An over-zealous congress branded them traitors. Since then, though, the new government has thought things over, officially abrogated the stigma, and decided it wants to welcome home the men who fled. Money for their home-coming has been deposited in a New York bank. But the refugees, probably living under aliases in the United States, haven't been found. If Rafael Estrella Urena, Federico Velasquez Hernandez, Angel Morales, Manuel Alexis Liz, Federica Ellis Cambiasco or Valentin Tejada read this, they'll know.

Keep Prices Up

Because New Yorkers in droves are deserting the town from Saturday noon until Monday morning, nighteries have only the tourist trade to depend on over week-ends. But they're still charging extra prices. . . . Two gentlemen from Kentucky—colonels, no doubt—insisted on stepping behind the bar at Leon and Eddie's to show just how a mint julep ought to be made . . . Bars now serve popcorn, and put a lot of salt on their potato chips—to make the customers thirstier. . . .

Oldest sidewalk cafe in Manhattan is the Royal, over on Second avenue. It has been there 28 years and still has the waiter named Herman who cashes checks out of his own pocket—for a percentage. He has made a fortune that way, although he can't read or write. Just looks at a customer's face and is almost infallible in guessing whether or not he's honest.

A prominent automobile manufacturer is building a special coupe fitted with medical equipment to take care of the needs of professional men.

BRITAIN'S KING IS A DIPLOMAT

Crowns Best Friendships By Making His Personal Aides Peers

By Milton Bronner
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, July 13.—That at least one king is not ungrateful has been strongly evidenced by the fact that George Fifth of England has made Sir Clive Wigram and Sir Frederick Ponsonby peers of the realm. Barons, in fact.

The monarch conferred this honor upon them to record his appreciation of two of his oldest servants, counsellors and friends, for Sir Clive is his private secretary and Sir Frederick is treasurer to the king and keeper of the privy purse.

There are a number of occasions during each year when the monarch distributes honors. But the list of those to be honored usually is made out by the prime minister. Of course, if the king objected to names on the list, they might be removed, but this does not often happen. Likewise the king can add to the list submitted. But this again does not often happen. But there is no doubt that when King George announced his intention of honoring Wigram and Ponsonby, the then Premier MacDonald warmly acquisced.

Doles Out King's Funds

The chances are that, outside of his own family, nobody in all the world knows King George so well and so intimately as the two men he has honored. Sir Frederick, by dint of his jobs is the keeper of the king's purse. He knows just how much the king is worth in pounds sterling in the bank. He pays all the king's bills and sends checks to all the king's pet charities. He pays all the royal servants and the household bills of the various royal residences. He handles the incomes from the king's various properties. If George V suddenly wanted to make a private splurge, buying something very expensive, he would have to consult Sir Frederick to see how the bank account stood. Because the king never accepts credit. He is one of the best cash customers in his realm.

Sir Clive Wigram perhaps knows the king even better. He is not only the monarch's confidential adviser on political matters—his ears and his eyes—but also his hand, because he handles all the king's correspondence. All letters are answered through him, save very personal ones that George Fifth may pen himself. His work takes him into daily contact with the king. He knows all the moods of his royal master.

Attracted Favor Quickly

Son of Herbert Wigram of the Madras Civil Service in India, Clive Wigram, born 1871, was sent back to England to study at the famous school of Winchester. He entered the Royal Artillery at the age of 20. He seems to have been the kind of young subaltern who immediately attracts favorable notice, for at 22 Lord Elgin, named viceroy of Indian, took the young man along as his aide de camp.

Retaining his military rank, he exchanged into the 16th Lancers and saw active service on the northwest frontier, 1897-98. Then he went off to South Africa and served in the Boer war, being mentioned in dispatches.

Back in Indian once more, he became aide de camp to the new viceroy, Lord Curzon. In the winter of 1905-6, King George, then Prince of Wales, made his famous tour of India. Lord Kitchener, commander of the forces in Indian, was asked to recommend some young officer to act as Indian A. D. C. to the future monarch. Wigram was recommended. He got on exceptionally well with George. Then the latter returned to England and everybody thought he had forgotten his handsome aide who had proved so serviceable.

Summoned Wigram To London

But in 1910, when George V came to the throne, one of his first acts was to prove that he had not forgotten Wigram. He sent for him and made him his equerry and assistant private secretary. When Lord Stamfordham died, Wigram succeeded him as private secretary. The king's jubilee is, therefore, also Sir Clive's as he has served King George for 25 years.

Like Sir Clive, Sir Frederick Ponsonby also is a soldier. But he was not picked for his job by the king as was Wigram. He was an inheritance. The Ponsonbys are one of the oldest noble families of England. Sir Frederick's grandfather was a distinguished soldier in the Napoleonic wars. His father, Sir Henry, was equerry to Albert, Queen Victoria's husband, and later was secretary to the old queen herself.

Sir Frederick entered the army in 1888 and was A. D. C. to the then viceroy of India in 1893. Holding a commisison in the Grenadier Guards, he served at the front both in the Boer and the great war.

Served Queen Victoria

He served Queen Victoria as equerry and later as assistant keeper of the privy purse and assistant private secretary from 1894 till 1901. He served King Edward Seventh in the like capacities from 1901 till the monarch's death in 1910. King George made him keeper of the privy purse in 1914 and treasurer of the household in 1920.

A piquant fact is that his daughter became the third wife of the twice divorced Duke of Westminister, one of the richest and gayest of all the dukes and no favorite of the king and queen.

Sir Frederick edited the letters of the Kaiser Wilhelm's mother, who was an English princess, the aunt of King George. Wilhelm, upon his father's death made strenuous efforts to get his hands on those letters, but they were smuggled out of Germany. They did not throw a very pleasant light on the former Kaiser.

'NON-NOSE OVER' PLANE TESTED

Teachers Compile Survey Of Life After Graduation

What becomes of high school students after they have graduated? What are high schools worth to the citizenships and the state?

In an endeavor to satisfactorily answer these questions the Franklin parish Teachers association sponsored a survey of the high schools of that parish, and has just made a report which discloses interesting results. The survey covered the graduation classes of the parish high schools for the ten-year period from 1920 to 1930, and shows just what each graduate has done in various fields of activity after leaving high school.

The research committee was composed of members of the faculties of the various high schools of Franklin parish and was headed by William B. Glover, principal of Winnsboro high school. The other members were: Miss Modene Henry, Winnsboro; Miss Aletha Hower, Central high school; Miss Margaret Baskin, Baskin; Miss Helen Glasgow, Wisner; Lovifle Madry, Crowville; John Rickey, Gilbert; L. E. May, Ogden; Williard Middleton, Fort Necessity.

The report of the committee, which has just been made public, follows:

"During this period of hard times and restlessness, many people are predisposed to lament the size of their school tax. Others with immature thought and without having made the necessary investigation, conclude that high schools cost more than they are worth. But few have carefully and critically examined the graduates of these schools to determine their value to community, state and nation. If the value of high schools is to be fairly judged, it is necessary that the worth of their graduates be carefully studied and rather accurately determined.

Before establishing value judgments of high school education it is essential that a painstaking investigation be made into the activities of the graduates. Questions such as the following must be answered: Where do the graduates live? What is their occupational and economic status? What are their religious and social activities? Do they continue their education? Has a high school education made them more valuable to society? Finally, what is their citizenship accountability? In answering these questions the true value of high school education in Franklin parish may be determined. If the high schools of the parish aid in raising the standards of citizenship, certainly, their cost is justified.

"During the decade 1920-1930, 673 students graduated from Franklin parish, Louisiana, high schools. The purpose of this study was to estimate the value of these schools' products, in order to determine the worth of a high school education to the pupils individually, and to the community, state and nation.

"In investigating the activities of the graduates one of the first things to determine is where they live.

"Approximately 37 per cent are engaged in the enterprise of establishing and maintaining their own homes. Nearly 23 per cent are in homes of their parents, while the remaining number live in rooming houses or apartments close to their work. Thus 60 per cent are in established homes, either of their own or of parents.

"It may be of interest to note in passing that 83 per cent of the graduates reside within the state of Louisiana; 55 per cent live in Franklin parish and only one of them lives in a foreign country.

"Graduates have entered 38 different occupations. Homemaking, which has been considered as an occupation, leads with 245 girls so classified. Farming has attracted only 62 graduates, a relatively small number from a parish largely rural in nature. Nearly one-fifth of the graduates have entered professions, the entrance to which required a high school education. This group includes 54 elementary school teachers, 29 secondary school teachers, and two college teachers, 16 registered nurses, five musicians, three lawyers, two doctors and four pharmacists. In addition there 58 per cent office workers, 13 salesmen, 22 store clerks, 15 merchants and four automobile mechanics. No doubt high school education aided graduates in securing positions of this kind. Fifteen of the graduates are classed as common laborers. Thus only two per cent of the graduates are classified as common laborers. The remainder are in scattered occupations such as radio operator, telephone operator, barber, undertaker and beauty parlor operator.

"In determining the economic status of the graduates these questions were asked: Are the graduates self-supporting? Are graduates being provided for by their relatives or parents? Are they sustained by dispensation of public charity? Are any graduates on relief? Hoy many graduates own their business enterprises?

"In finding answers to these questions, it was revealed that 86 per cent are self-supporting; approximately eight per cent are being provided for by their parents; only five are on relief, and there are none on public charity. Thus from the percentages just given, the conclusive facts are imminent that Franklin parish high school graduates are highly self-reliant, and are assuming one of the requisites of a good citizen-self-maintenance.

"Without question 'Religion has been the saving salt of humanity' and sincere religious principles and ideals are requisites for good citizenship. Therefore, an evaluation of the graduates' religious activities was necessary.

"It was learned that 499, or 78 per cent, of the graduates are church members, 132 of these members diligently participate in church activities, while 26 are Sunday school teachers, and 32 others hold positions of leadership and responsibility in the church.

"Approximately 61 per cent of the graduates enrolled in courses in higher education. 249 of the 393 who registered in higher institutions enrolled in state institutions. 62 per cent of those enrolled in high institutions graduated. The curriculums chosen are as follows: (1) Teacher training. (2) Business administration. (3) Nursing. (4) Engineering. (5) Home economics. (6) Music. (7) Law. (8) Dentistry. (9) Pharmacy. (10) Agriculture.

"Having received training in these courses, numbers of the graduates were prepared and enabled to secure positions as heretofore listed. High school graduation was prerequisite to entrance in these courses.

"It has been said that "two requisites of a democracy are the establishment and stability of homes." Nearly 65 per cent of the graduates have assumed these responsibilities. The success of this may be fairly determined by the fact that only one marriage in 24 has resulted in divorce, whereas in the parish as a whole, one marriage in ten results in divorce (based on three year average), and throughout the country as a whole, one marriage in six results in divorce.

"Education may not prevent crime. However, real education and training are powerful factors in checking it Not a single one of the 673 graduates was tried and convicted for lawbreaking activities. It has been found through studies of criminals in penal institutions that a large proportion of prisoners have not had a common school education and only a small proportion have had a high school education. Therefore, it seems to be an established fact, that as education progresses crime regresses.

"In determining the extent of poverty and pauperism, it was established that only two of the graduates are living in poverty, and that none have become paupers. This is a splendid record when one considers how common poverty and pauperism have been since the depression.

"One of the primary duties of a citizen is to take an active part in government. 88 per cent of the graduates are qualified voters; therefore, the graduates of Franklin parish are assuming the responsible task of aiding in governmental affairs.

"Because of the opportunities created by high school education in Franklin parish, graduates have learned to be liberal in their thinking and law-abiding in their actions. They have been enabled to live happier, to create greater prosperity, to establish better homes, to build better character, and to render the kind of service to their communities that has resulted in elevating standards of citizenship.

"The facts presented in this report, prove beyond a doubt that the high schools are one of the most important institutions in Franklin parish. If they are builders of good citizenship, can we afford to lament the cost?"

YANKEES' LEAD OVER DETROIT CUT TO ONE GAME

Chicago Wins Series Opener In Close Battle With Yanks, 7-6

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—The Yankees wore themselves out today overcoming the effect of one bad inning, and after they finally had tied the score in the eighth they had nothing left to meet Chicago's ninth-inning spurt. The White Sox won the series opener 8 to 7.

Zeke Bonura

The defeat reduced the Yankees' lead to one game over the Detroit Tigers who split a double header with the athletics.

The Sox blasted Johnny Murphy from the hill in the fourth inning, batting clear around with five hits and three walks to score seven runs. Aided by Lou Gehrig's 13th home run of the season and Tony Lazzeri's eleventh, the Yanks kept picking away at this lead until they finally drove Sad Sam Jones to cover in the eighth and tied the score.

Pat Malone proved ineffective as a relief hurler in the ninth and gave up the winning run without a hit. He passed Tony Piet, who went to second on Mule Haas' sacrifice and third on Zeke Bonura's fly, then uncorped a wild pitch that let the runner score.

Rip Radcliff led the Chicago attack in the big inning, starting things off with a single and driving in the last two with a triple off Jimmy Deshong, who replaced Murphy and pitched fine relief ball until lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth. Bonura also hit a triple and Haas and Luke Sewell contributed singles while Murphy forced in one run with a pass.

TIGERS, A'S DIVIDE

PHILADELPHIA, July 13.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers and the Athletics split a wild and wooly doubleheader today, the A's taking the first 18 to 5 in a free-for-all hitting barrage, and dropping the second 6 to 3, after announcing they would protest the battle.

As a result of the even break, the Tigers climbed to within a game of the league-leading New York Yankees, who were defeated by the White Sox today.

Homers rumbled freely through each game, among them the 26th circuit clout of Hank Greenberg, Detroit's major league leader, in the second game. Jimmy Foxx and Bob Johnson, of the A's, and Detroit's Fox all smashed out four-baggers in the opener, and Johnson also connected for one in the nightcap.

Roger Cramer, A's centerfielder, equalled the "modern" big league record by hitting safely six straight times at bat in the first game.

DISCOVERY WINS $10,000 BUTLER HANDICAP EASILY

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Discovery, holder of the world record at one and one-eighth and one and three sixteenth miles, today won the $10,000 Butler handicap at Empire City for his fourth straight victory. Mrs. Deering Howe's Only One was second and A. A. Baroni's Top Row third in the field of six as King Saxon finished out of the money.

PARKER TO MEET HARRIS FOR SPRING LAKE TITLE

SPRING LAKE, N. J., July 13.—(AP)—Frank Parker, the nation's fourth ranking player, today defeated Wilbur Hess, national intercollegiate champion from Ft. Worth, Tex., to enter the final round in defense of his Spring Lake invitation tennis title.

The victory, achieved in straight sets, 6-2, 6-2, 6-3, qualified the Lawrenceville, N. J., youth to meet Charles Harris, of West Palm Beach, Fla., his conqueror in the Kentucky state championships, in the final round tomorrow. Parker already holds two legs on the trophy and a victory tomorrow would give him permanent possession of it.

GIANTS RALLY TO WIN THIRD FROM PIRATES, 7 TO 6

League-Leaders Maintain Big Lead By Pounding Out 15 Hits

PITTSBURGH, July 13.—(AP)—The Pirates and the league-leading New York Giants put on a weird exhibition of the ups and downs of baseball today, and when it ended the Giants were on the long end of a 7 to 6 score, and their hold on first place was just as firm as ever.

Travis Jackson

It was the third straight triumph for the Giants here and Pittsburgh's fifth loss in succession and 11th in 15 games. Manager Pie Traynor made a desperate effort to break the losing streak when he benched Lloyd Waner and put young Bud Hafey in to hit against Carl Hubbell. Hafey got only one blow but the revamped lineup turned out 13 hits and slammed Hubbell for five runs in the fourth, only to give way at the end.

Guy Bush, who started on the bill for the Bucs, succumbed to a four-run rally in the second when Hank Leiber started with a triple over Hafey's head. Travis Jackson sent him home with a single that bounded up and hit Arky Vaughan's face; Hubbell smashed a double that landed so close to the foul line there was an argument about it and Dick Bartell got a single when Tommy Thevenow tripped and fell going for his grounded.

The Bucs made up for all those bad breaks in the fourth when they hammered out five hits, including triples by Thevenow and Paul Waner and a double by Gus Suhr to tally five times. But Waite Hoyt, Bush's successor, couldn't hold the lead and the Giants forged ahead with two runs in the fifth on hits by Bill Terry and Jackson, and error by Thevenow and a passed ball. They got their final run, which actually won the game, in the seventh just before the last Pittsburgh tally.

Terry, who led New York's 15-hit attack, opened this inning with his fourth blow, stole second and tallied on Leiber's hit.

CARDS BLANK PHILS

ST. LOUIS, July 13.—(AP)—"Wild Bill" Hallahan, celebrating the return to his old time hurling form, held the Philadelphia Phillies to two scratch hits today as the world champion Cardinals won their eighth consecutive victory 4 to 0.

The triumph, Hallahan's third straight in two weeks, still left the Cardinals seven and a half games behind the league leading New York Giants.

BY GEO. V. LOFTON

Connie Mack named Hal Trosky as the most likely successor of Babe Ruth in the manufacture of home runs, but the big Cleveland first baseman is hitting only .250, and some of the critics are commencing to wonder if he might have been a one-year phenom.

Trosky is only one of a number of the newer major league players who showed so much promise, but who have been unable to get going this season.

Bill Werber, of the Red Sox; Jo-Jo White and Marvin Owen, of the Tigers; Linus Frey, of the Dodgers; Frank Higgins, of the A's; Red Rolfe, of the Yankees; and Harland Clift, of the Browns; and Trosky perhaps have been more disappointing to their managements than the others.

Ralph Boyle and Frenchy Bordagaray, of the Dodgers; Cookie Lavagetto, of the Pirates; Terry Moore, of the Cardinals; Tuck Stainback, and Frank Demaree, of the Cubs; Alan Strange, now with the Senators; Myrl Hoag, of the Yankees; Beau Bell and Al Bejma, of the Browns; and Ed Coleman, transferred from the A's to the Browns, certainly have not looked like major hitters this season, but none of them played such important roles in the plans of their clubs as Werber, White, Owen, Frey, Higgins, Rolfe, Clift and Trosky.

Can't Steal First Base

Werber and White, for example, led both their leagues in stolen bases in 1934. They actually were remindful at times of the immortal Tyrus Raymond Cobb, upsetting rival infields with daring sprints and slides. White's aggressiveness on the sacks precipitated the trouble between the Tigers and Cardinals in the world series last October.

Werber and White promised a spectacular base-running duel this spring. Werber exhibited a scar on his wrist, incurred when he attempted to tag White at third base in Fenway park last season.

"The next time White comes into me that way, he'll have to fight," asserted the then cocky Werber.

Werber also said that he was just warming up when he swiped 40 bases last season, and set his 1935 goal at 60.

But the more heated rivalry between Werber and White failed to develop, for the very good reason that a ball player can't steal first base. Werber is hitting only .244, and White was benched in favor of the reformed Gerald Walker when he couldn't lift his batting mark above .204.

Clifton Dispels Doubt

Owen was ill this spring and has been in and out of the lineup, giving Flea Clifton an opportunity to prove that the Tigers weren't so weak in the way of reserves as everybody imagined.

Frey, the youthful Brooklyn shortstop, started out as though he intended to take his place among the leaders in just about everything, and the Flatbush flock slumped with him when his batting average fell to .249.

Handicapped by injuries, Higgins is hitting only .248, and his third year with the A's certainly is not turning out to be a charm.

Rolfe's poor hitting has been screened by the remarkable Yankee pitching. Such a keen judge as Rogers Hornsby believed that he had the makings of a remarkable long range hitter in Clift, but the Oklahoman has failed to live up to expectations.

However, all the boys are young, and even fair ball players are so scarce that they get ample trials these days.

Unhappy Magnates Give Game Back To Customers

Balloting Plan For Selection Of All-Star Players Is Approved

(By NEA Service)

NEW YORK, July 13.—Well, the party in Cleveland is over, and the major league magnates are holding their heads.

They've all been hit over the head by public opinion, and now are ready to admit that the Chicago sports editor who came up with the all-star game had a swell idea.

This Chicago sports editor got by with it for two seasons. Others of his craft appreciated his idea. But I can't think of two major league owners who gave it a tumble.

Only a year ago there was talk in New York of forgetting all about the all-star game. The stupid owners wanted to toss a million dollars' worth of publicity out of the window, particularly in the midsummer season when business was bad; when the St. Louis Browns were attracting 30 spectators, who ought to come out regularly just to see Rolly Hemsley catch.

In justice to major league owners, it costs $50,000 to close major league parks for two days.

But the annual all-star game will return to them tenfold whatever they put into it. And the proceeds go to a good cause—broken down ball players.

70,000 Can't Be Wrong

Apparently the slow-thinking baseball magnates have learned something from the last all-star game, an engagement that thrilled nobody among a crowd of 70,000 in the huge Cleveland stadium and satisfied even fewer people.

President Will Harridge of the American league has decided it would be all for the best to give the game back to the fans. He advocates the balloting plan that will permit the fans next year to choose the rival teams.

That the American league prexy should come to that conclusion is significant. His team won the all-star game at Cleveland, 4 to 1, and he beyond anyone else should be content with the arrangement that prevailed there. The two managers, Mickey Cochrane of the Tigers and Frankie Frisch of the Cardinals, picked the teams without consulting the fans.

Where Was Greenberg?

The game didn't present Hank Greenberg of the Detroit Tigers, currently the American league home run king, nor did it enter into the box score the name of Tommy Bridges, generally regarded today as the ace of the junior circuit flippers, even though he was named for the team.

The all-star game is a unique presentation. Originated in Chicago as a World fair spectacle, it never was meant to be a test of the relative strength of the two major leagues. The world series provides that. This game was intended to be the fan's game. His action to see in action the players he has lifted into favor and regards, momentarily, anyway, the best in the game.

The game in Cleveland, even if it did re-establish the playing strength of the American league, totally disregarded this idea.

Fans Get Run Around

National league managers thought so little of the game, and the fans' viewpoint, that they pitched Dizzy Dean, Paul Derringer, and Carl Hubbell on the day preceding the all-star game and thus made them unavailable for service in the game the fans are most anxious to witness.

The National league authorities have been most flagrant in their "public be damned" policy. In his anxiety to win the game, Ford Frick, National league boss, decided upon the manager-selected team, and at a conference talked Harridge into it.

The result is a flood of criticism and it has changed Harridge's viewpoint. He's now in favor of the fan-picked team. Frick hasn't committed himself, but he, too, after the third straight National league defeat, must see the logic of the argument. He can't do worse and might do better.

President Harridge's Idea

Harridge proposes to increase the player squad from 20 to 23. He'd have the fans through a nation-wide ballot pick 18 of the players for each team, reserving for the management the right to pick in the case of error five additional performers.

It is a grand idea, and if it isn't adopted will again indict the magnates for stupidity. It would guarantee that players like Cy Blanton of the Pirates, Hank Leiber of the White Sox, popular favorites of the moment, would get into the game, and keep off the squad passe veterans who have passed the meridian of their careers and keep their places only because of past reputation.

FORMAL OPENING OF M'GUIRE GOLF CLUB THURSDAY

Elaborate Program Is Arranged At New West Monroe Course

Formal opening of the new West Monroe golf club at McGuire's park will be held next Thursday afternoon and night with an elaborate program of entertainment, it was announced Saturday night by Jim McKenzie, club professional.

No green fees will be charged and every golf player in Ouachita parish is invited to attend.

All kinds of sweepstakes will be held and free refreshments will be served at the new club house both during the afternoon and at night.

The beautiful new nine-hole course is in the best possible shape, considering the short time it has been built. The greens are in excellent condition and the fairway is fast and clean.

Play will begin about 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon and continue until dark and everything possible will be done to add to the enjoyment of the visiting golfers and the other guests, it was said.

Visitors are asked to drive out highway 80 to Seventh street and turn right to the club house. This is necessary because of the levee work which is being done on Trenton street.

The West Monroe course, which is backed financially by the Brown Paper mill and its officials, will be one of the finest and most beautiful in the south when a little more work has been done to it.

Its water hazards equal any of the finer and larger courses of the country and its general plan shows careful study by the club professional and his aides.

Mr. McKenzie is reputed to be one of the best golf teachers in this section of the country. Some of the finest golfers have been tutored by him.

The new club house, while small, is well arranged and fully equipped with showers and lounge rooms. It was so planned that additions can be made in the future as the demand and finances permit.

West Monroe golfers have taken a great interest in their club and an increasing number are patronizing it.

At the present time non-member golfers are allowed to use the course with the payment of a small green fee.

The course is located at McGuire park and the club house across the highway from the course.

THREE MATCHES COMPLETE ROUND

Second Round Play In Lakeside Tourney To Start On Monday

Only three matches remain to be played in the first round of Lakeside Country club's championship golf tournament and these will be run off today, thus clearing the deck for the start of second round play Monday, Shep Girault, Lakeside pro, announced yesterday. One week will be allowed for the completion of second round matches.

The three matches slated at the country club today are H. L. Woods vs. H. K. Tauchstone, F. B. Winbery vs. C. S. Foster and Bun Beasley vs. Morton Braswell.

Following are the results of first round matches already played:

McVea Oliver defeated Tip Schley, 2 and 1.

Bobby Oliver defeated A. B. Clarkson, 6 and 4.

Cramer Haas defeated Ben Downing, 9 and 7.

Record-Breaking Feats Presage Bright Outlook For U. S. In Olympics

By John J. Romano

All eyes of the sports world these days visualize the probable chances of the various athletes in the 1936 Olympiad to be held at Berlin. It is rather early to predict the chances of the United States team in spite of record-breaking performances being recorded in practically every meet. Little news of such straining efforts seeps through the press releases.

It is the general belief that Americans put on a lot of swank and are determined to lead the world if such a thing as bluff will do it. Anyone acquainted with the stringent rules required to record an official new mark will quickly convince you that it simply is not done. To gain title to a new mark requires as many affidavits, sworn and signed by numerous officials, as winning the coveted D. S. C. or Victoria Cross on the field of battle. It is well that such is the case. No athlete, no matter what his nationality may be, wants his name on the Hall of Fame unless he justly deserves it. That is what makes the Olympic games the focus of the sports world every four years.

Owens And Peacock

Scanning over the American entrants one has but to look to Jesse Owens, of Ohio State, and Eulace Peacock, of Temple. If there are more versatile athletes on the cinder path they are yet to be discovered. These superb athletes specialize in four events and it will take something like a frightened deer in the sprints to a kangaroo in the broad jump to beat them. Four firsts mean plenty of points.

Anton Kishon, the youngster from the little heard of Bates college, is another to be heard from when the distance is measured off in the 16-pound hammer throw. The young giant snapped the weight at 168 feet and 6 7-8 inches. There's nothing record-shattering about that but remember Anton is a youngster and is only beginning to learn the fine points of tossing the hammer. With any kind of encouragement and pointers from those who have him in charge, Kishon may set a better mark than that made by Matt McGrath in Stockholm in 1912. He needs but nine feet more to erase burly Matt's standing record.

Jarvinen Will Be Pressed

Scandinavia has had a monopoly on the javelin. But Charley Gongloff, of Pittsburgh, may have something to say. His record-breaking toss in the National Collegiates heightened the hopes of those who eschewed an American victory. Gongloff smashed the mark set up by Bob Parke, of Oregon, by a few inches. When fractions count, inches are like daylight between the first and second horse in a race. They pay off on the leader. The all-time Olympic mark for the javelin is 238 feet and 7 inches made by Matti Jarvinen, of Finland, at Los Angeles three years ago. Gongloff attained 221 feet 3 1-8 inches. Not far to go to set a new figure when one considers the time the Pittsburgher has in which to improve before he toes the mark against the best world has to offer.

Gongloff will be competing against a scion of a family long known in Olympic triumphs. Jarvinen's father was a champion discus man in the ancient Greek classics. Not content with the success he attained in world-wide competition, the elder Jarvinen coached and trained his sons to a point where they became world renowned for their efforts.

Akilles Jarvinen went out for the decathlon. This is the highest prize in international competition. The Finn reckoned without the power of Jim Bausch, American star, and all-around athlete. Bausch won the ten events without forcing himself to the limit.

Matti, the record-holder for zipping the steel-tiped spear through the air, was more successful. In addition to gladdening his father's heart, Matti's throw eclipsed all others and is still on the books as the supreme toss of the javelin. That is what young Gongloff is shooting at!

Will Make Presence Felt

Don Elser of Notre Dame is another husky calculated to add points for the American team and send Old Glory flying from the topmost standard. Don plays considerable football and basketball. This does not hinder him from attempting to heave the 16-pound ball farther than more illustrious athletes such as Leo Sexton who tossed the iron pill 52 feet, 6 3-16 inches. Elser's best effort is 50 feet, 7 1-8 inches. Don has not far to go before he can write his name in Olympic history.

Sexton had very little training before he began to set distance behind his heaves. Elser is built on better lines. He reminds you of a giant oak towering high above the others but possessing graceful lines, denying to the sight the power and strength possessed in its fibre. Elser is like that. He takes to all sports as a duck takes to water and accomplishes the results expected without undue effort. Elser will be hard to beat once he polishes indescernible raw edges and gains the smoothing process of his specialty. Elser also shows exceptional form as a sprinter and hurdler of merit. Count on the Notre Dame star for sure points.

All in all, this outline touches on but a few of the outstanding Olympic stars. There is still time for others to develop out of the shadows and who knows but that those mentioned may be eclipsed by others to come up in the meantime.

SCHMELING SIGNS TO MEET JOE LOUIS IN SEPTEMBER

15-ROUND BOUT TO BE HELD AT POLO GROUNDS

Winner Between German And Negro To Get Crack At Braddock

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, July 13.—Disclosing a shift in heavyweight fight plans which apparently eliminates Max Baer from the picture, Promoter Mike Jacobs today closed negotiations for a 15-round match between Joe Louis and Max Schmeling, to be held September 18 at the Polo Grounds.

Max Schmeling

The winner, according to Jacobs, will likely be matched with James J. Braddock for the world's championship in 1936. Braddock is under contract to make his first title defense for the Madison Square Garden corporation, but Jacobs, head of the 20th Century Sporting club, does not consider this a barrier to his projected plans to promote a championship fight next year.

Originally Jacobs contemplated matching the Louis-Schmeling winner with Max Baer, this October, but the promoter doubts whether the former heavyweight champion will attempt a come-back.

"I am not figuring on a fight for Baer," said Jacobs. "I don't think he wants to fight again but he may change his mind. We can reconsider the prospects, if and when Max decides what he wants to do. He doesn't know himself now."

Baer had his hands examined this week at Baltimore, found there were no broken bones and was told he could get them in shape to box by September. Before Louis knocked out Primo Carnera, the plan was to match the "Brown Bomber" with Baer. Subsequently the Californian married and talked about retirement, with the result that Joe Jacobs, American manager of Schmeling, seized the opportunity to grab the spot for the hard-hitting German.

The terms for Schmeling's contract with the 20th Century club finally were agreed upon today in an exchange of cables between Mike Jacobs and Joe Jacobs, who hustled to Germany soon after Louis knocked out Carnera. The "Brown Bomber" already has signed. The principals will split upward of 50 per cent of the "gate."

Promoter Jacobs believes the Louis-Schmeling fight will draw the biggest crowd for a non-championship bout since Jack Dempsey knocked out Jack Sharkey before a million-dollar house at the Yankee stadium in 1927. Jacobs predicts the gross receipts will touch $750,000 due mainly to the sensational interest aroused by the rise of the "Brown Bomber" as a heavyweight title threat.

Joe Jacobs is due to sail from Germany on Tuesday, bringing with him Schmeling's signature. The German, one-time holder of the world championship, probably will return to the United States the middle of August.

Schmeling fought himself back into heavyweight prominence this year with knockout victories over Steve Hamas and Walter Neusel.

Louis has one hurdle to clear before meeting Schmeling. The Detroit negro is matched with King Levinsky at Chicago August 7. He will be a heavy favorite to dispose of the veteran, who was knocked out last winter in two rounds by Baer.

QUITS HUNTING TRIP

BERLIN, July 13.—(AP)—Max Schmeling came in from the woods today to sign a contract to battle Joe Louis of Detroit in a milk fund battle in New York in September.

Joe Jacobs, the German's American manager, said yesterday that Schmeling, on a hunting trip, called him by telephone and agreed to meet the dusky bomber who slugged Primo Carnera out of the heavyweight title picture recently.

Schmeling was under contract to Walter Rothenburg, European promoter, to fight Max Baer in Amsterdam, Holland, but the condition of Baer's hands threeatened to prevent that engagement.

The German fighter, according to Jacobs, expressed confidence of defeating the sensational negro and going on from there to wrest the crown from Jim Braddock.

Jacobs talked to milk fund promoters in New York by long distance telephone today.

BOXING CLASSES ARE HELD THREE NIGHTS EACH WEEK

The recently organized amateur boxing club will hold classes on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday nights, it was announced yesterday. There is no charge for boxing instructions and all interested in the sport are invited to attend the classes.

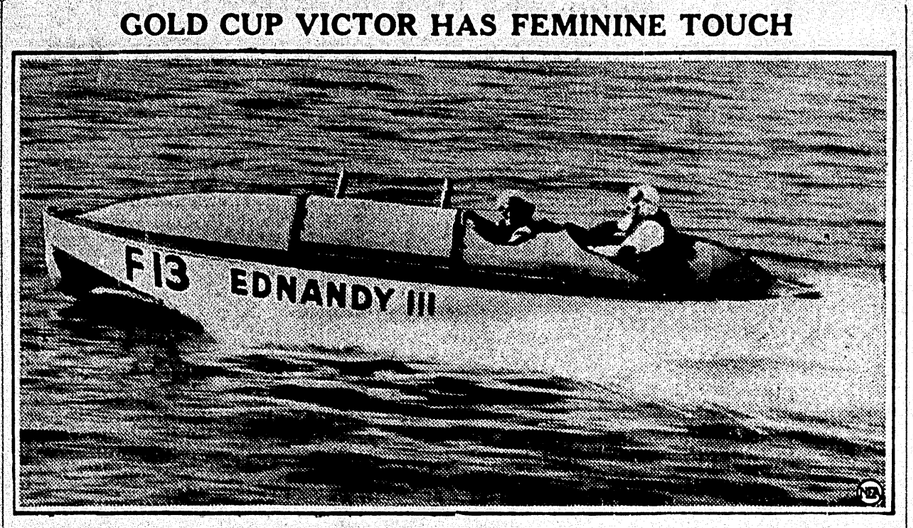

Classes for those who have had previous instructions or experience begin at 7:30 o'clock, followed by a class for inexperienced boxers at 8 o'clock on each of the three nights. Those who attend are asked to be on time so that the classes may get started as early as possible.

The classes are held in the rear of 113 North Second street, and those who attend are asked to use the rear entrance.

Several new members were added to the club roster at last Thursday night's classes.

Every sixth worker in the United States is employed in the manufacture of motor vehicles.

North Carolina Pro Cops First Money In Open At Fonthill

FONTHILL, Ont., July 13.—(AP)—The tortoise beat the hare today and Tony Manero of Greensboro, N. C., carried off $750 first prize money in the General Brock hotel open golf tournament.

Manero, a New York born Italian, posted a 291 for the 72-hole medal play without being under par for any 18-hole round. He shot consistent golf throughout, however, to take first money away from other shotmakers, some of whom turned in sensational individual rounds only to falter on others.

In a tie for second place was Byron Nelson, Ridgewood, N. J., player and Bud Donovan of Winnipeg, former Manitoba amateur champion, each of whom carded totals of 292.

Tied at 293 were Ray Mangrum of Pittsburgh and Clarence Doser, Rochester, N. Y. Bob Alston of Ottawa and Jimmy Thompson of Hollywood, Calif., had 294 each and then, one stroke behind at 295, came Walter Hagen, Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., Harry Cooper of Chicago and Tommy Miyamoto who headed six Japanese entrants.

Donovan, one of the early finishers, watched Manero shoot par on his last nine holes to oust him from first place but Manero in turn had some anxious moments as Hagen and Nelson started their last nine holes needing 35's to go ahead of him.

IF WIND IS BLOWING, NO. 1 IRON WILL KEEP BALL OUT OF IT

During the Pasadena Open, one of the early tournaments played during the last winter gold rush, Jug McSpaden, Kansas City, Kan., pro, claims he played the best four rounds of golf in his life. His scores were 70-67-71-73.

Victory in this tournament did not hinge on one stroke, as often is the case, for McSpaden led the field to the wire by five shots.

"The very best shot, and the one that is most vivid in my mind," says McSpaden, "is the No. 1 iron I hit on the twelfth during the final round.

"The wind was blowing, and having the equivalent of a spoon shot to get home, I picked that iron. I rather would play a long shot with this club than with a spoon, believing the chances of getting off a good shot are not only better, but it is easier to control a ball with an iron than with a wood. The ball, hit crisply, kept low and out of the wind, where a spoon would have sent it. The shot ended three feet from the cup."

The No. 1 iron is used McSpaden for distance, and is played the same as a spoon. The ball is placed a few inches more toward the right foot than for the drive, where the ball is teed at a point off the left foot.

A full pivot is necessary if the player is to get the required yardage. Although the ball is struck before the club hits the turf, it is unlike other iron shots where the ball is hit a decided downward blow.

Grove Regains Some Of Former Effectiveness

By Bill King
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

BOSTON, July 13.—Those brazen American league batters who have been going back on their heels to take a healthy swing at Bob (Lefty) Grove's fading fireball had better get up on their toes again, warns Pilot Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox, his old teammate.

With 10 wins to his credit, two more than he gained during all of last season, and with the comforting thought that he would have had three more but for infield boots, Grove has silenced most of the critics who claimed that Tom Yawkey, Red Sox owner, paid Connie Mack $100,000 for a worn-out pitcher.

"You can't take any more roundhouse cuts at Mose," Dykes said. "He don't give you any more good balls. He's curving plenty these days and most of the time he throws his fast one, it's going right by you, just as it did when we were with the Athletics."

Jimmy Foxx, the last of Mack's pennant-winning stars, is equally proud of his old teammate's comeback.

"Lefty's throws hiss past you with quite a bit this season," Foxx explained. "He has probably lost some of his terrific speed, but he has given his fireball a new touch that makes it as effective as ever. Nowadays the last six feet of Lefty's fast pitches seem to jump. This is probably an optical illusion but it gives the batter a tendency to swing late."

While getting No. 10 against the White Sox the other day, Grove held them to five hits, all of which were made during the first three innings.

He was so elated over his performance that he was eager to talk about it, although he has strenuously avoided discussions about himself since his shoulder started aching during the 1934 spring training season.

"I had so much stuff," Grove explained, "that I couldn't control it. No one hit a good ball. Why some of those White Sox connected with throws that were almost wild pitches. They couldn't hit my fast ball and they didn't do much when I started curving it."

FULL PROGRAM AT COACHING SCHOOL

Many Innovations Planned At Mississippi State This Week

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., July 13.—(Special)—Numerous innovations supplementing the regular courses of instruction in six major college sports have been provided by the athletic department of State College for the coaching school here July 15-27.

A thorough course in training, giving the fundamentals of conditioning athletes and building up individuals physically, is to be given by Claude (Monk) Simons, Tulane trainer and physical education instructor. This course will parallel all courses for the two weeks in football, basketball, baseball, track, boxing and wrestling.

Major Sasse is bringing to the campus for two days Chuck Taylor, nationally known authority in basketball and one of the greatest players the game ever produced. Taylor will give a series of demonstrations and exhibitions in dribbling, passing, shooting and pivoting to supplement his lectures on the fine points of the game.

J. E. Burghard, Southeastern conference official, has been secured to interpret rules changes effective next fall, and Harold Drew, Alabama end coach and chief scout, has been scheduled to lecture on the fine points of scouting opponents. Drew last year scouted Stanford for Alabama and will show pictures of the Rose bowl game while here as instructor in the coaching school.

R. P. Patty, business manager of the athletic department, has arranged a series of entertainments for attending coaches. He has planned two dances, one each week, a barbecue, swimming parties, golfing and tennis for persons registered for the two weeks.

A stream of inquiries pouring into the athletic office this week indicates that attendance will be far beyond expectation of those in charge.

GIRAULT OFFERS FREE INSTRUCTION

Classes For Lakeside Club Members' Children Start Tuesday

Shep Girault, professional at the Lakeside Country club is opening a class of instruction for youngsters who are interested in learning to play the game of golf, it was announced yesterday.

Classes will be held every Tuesday from 9 to 10 a.m. at the Country club and are open to all club member's children under 16 years of age. The classes will be given free of charge.

The children will need only one club to start with, preferably a mashie, and Mr. Girault suggests that they get an old club from their parents and he will cut it down to fit their requirements. If a child can't get a club at home, he will loan them one to get started with, the professional said.

Mr. Girault pointed out that the best time to teach a boy or girl the correct fundamentals of a good golf swing is while they are young. "Once the child gets the knack of it, the improvement in their game will be very rapid," he said.

All boys and girls interested in the game are urged to come out for the first lesson Tuesday morning at 9 a.m.

EVANGELINE LEAGUE

(By Associated Press)

Alexandria and Rayne of the Evangeline baseball league engaged in a scoreless duel for five innings Saturday before Kirschner's homer in the sixth with the bases loaded scored four runs, Rayne finally won 6 to 1.

Abbeville jumped to sixth place in the league by defeating Lake Charles in a doubleheader, 6-1 and 3-1, sending Lake Charles to seventh place.

Jeanerette, the league leaders, had little difficulty in beating New Iberia, 12 to 1.

Opelousas pounded out 17 hits to defeat Lafayette 16 to 3 in a night game.

Foxmen Pound Three Hurlers To Score 9-2 Win Over Cedar Grove

RUSTON, La., July 13.—(Special)—Going on another batting rampage similar to the one here Wednesday afternoon against Swartz, Ruston defeated the Cedar Grove nine of Shreveport by a 9 to 2 score in the Memorial park Saturday. The locals sent two invading pitchers to the showers before they were slowed up by Guillery, the third hurler to try his hand.

The home club's attack was led by "Sport" Grafton of Bernice with three hits in five times at bat. Grafton is a former Tech star and is playing his third season with the Ruston town team.

Ruston started off in the first inning by making two runs. After Mitchell and Thigpen had reached base on hits, Jimmy Davis doubled to deep center and both men scored. A hit batsman and double by Grafton gave the locals another run in the second.

The invaders started their attack in the fifth when a walk to Blume and double by J. Beckett brought in a tally. Two hits brought in another run for the visitors in the sixth which ended their scoring for the day.

Hits by Willis and Grafton gave the Foxmen another score in their half of the sixth. Doubles by Willis and Riser added another in the seventh.

The Ruston club batted around in the eighth to add four more runs to their total. Pankey walked, Grafton singled, Mitchell walked and then Hinton hit a long double to right field to bring in three runs. Davis then singled to bring in Hinton to complete the scoring spree.

VAULT TO 'DOUBLE-DOUBLE'

For consistent excellence the sophomoric pole-vaulting pair from the University of Southern California, Bill Sefton (left) and Earle Meadows, has set a lofty standard. The boys are 1935 co-champions and co-record holders at 14 feet 1 1-8 inches—of the National Collegiate A. A., and co-champions—at 13 feet 3-8 inches—of the National A. A. U. In other words, they couldn't beat each other, but they could beat everybody else in two of the greatest groups of athletes the track and field world has known.

Identify, Former Plater, Reaches Top Within Year

Coupled With Discovery, Man o' War's Son Provides Great Team

By Max Riddle
(NEA Service Turf Writer)

NEW YORK, July 13.—One of the most interesting high lights of the current racing season is the superb form shown by Identify, a four-year-old son of Man o' War, which young Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt claimed from Morton L. Schwartz for $3,500 last year.

One hardly can stretch the imagination far enough to state that Identify is a high-class stake horse. But he easily has been the star of the New England racing season, and has proved a more successful campaigner than his more famous stable mate, Discovery.

One interesting feature of the rise of this former plater is that he is a specialist at certain middle distances, such as a mile and a sixteenth to a mile and three-eights.

In this respect he parallels the famous King Saxon. King Saxon, also a recruit from the better plater ranks, is a specialist at distances up to a mile.

What this means is simply that the Vanderbilt stable can depend upon Identify to grab the major share of stake and handicap prizes at the middle distances, while Discovery is copping from a mile and an eighth to a mile and a quarter in rich specials, such as the Brooklyn, or Arlington and Saratoga stakes.

Identify was cut out to be a slasher, as his blood lines show. He is an aptly named son of Man o' War, out of Footprint, by Grand Parade.

Though for several years Man o' War has sent nothing to the races with any more class than War Glory—a very small horse, one of the best three-year-olds of 1933, winning the Dwyer stakes—Identify was highly tried and seemed to be lacking.

Keeps Vanderbilt Faith

But Trainer Max Hirsch had him in the best form of his life when he was claimed for the Vanderbilt interests. One might suppose that a Vanderbilt, having millions and being intent upon establishing a great racing and breeding stable, would have no interest in horses which were racing in the claimer class.

However, Vanderbilt somehow got the idea the Man o' War colt would produce. He did! Less than a week after Identify changed stables, he snared the Annapolis purse, beating Dust Girl in the mud, with Bradley's Bazaar out of the money. Ever since that time, Identify has been steadily improving.

He has won five stakes this year, the Granite State, Toboggan at Belmont Park, White Mountain handicap, in which he beat nine others, the Rockingham Park handicap, and the Governor's handicap.

In the Rockingham Park he saved the day for Vanderbilt, whose Discovery was expected to be the winner. Discovery could do no better than third, but Identify led all the way, beat Dark Hope by three lengths, and Discovery by two more. Back of these were Vicar, Our Count, War Glory, Gallant Mac and Howard.

Weight No Handicap

Perhaps the Governor's handicap was his best race, for he carried 125 pounds, giving away as much as 25 pounds to his rivals led all the way, and set a new track record of 1:50 3-5 for a mile and an eighth.

It takes a good horse to break a record with that weight up.

Thus, though Identify may be no Head Play or Discovery, he is proving himself one of the most dependable good horses in the country, and he will go down in history as just one more of the good ones sired by the old super horse, Man o' War.

CARIDEO TO JOIN STARKVILLE STAFF

Sasse Hires Former Notre Dame Star As Mississippi State Aide

ATLANTA, July 13.—(AP)—The engagement of Frank Carideo, former Notre Dame all-America quarterback, as an assistant coach was announced today by Major Ralph Irvin Sasse, one-time West Point mentor and now head coach at Mississippi State college.

Carideo will report Sept. 2 and become a full-time aide, Sasse said, helping with the development of backfield material besides specializing in coaching the kickers.

The former Notre Dame star will round out Sasse's staff, which also includes Capt. Ross MacKechnie, former head coach at Mississippi State, and Captain John Stokes, line tutor, who served with the major at West Point.

There is a bit of dramatic background to the new combination. Carideo was all-America quarterback of Knute Rockne's last Notre Dame team, in 1930, the first year of Sasse's regime as head coach at Army. They met in the mud at Chicago and the Soldiers came close to upsetting one of the greatest teams Rockne ever developed. The margin of a 7-6 victory was furnished by Carideo's point after touchdown. It was the only close call that the Notre Dame juggernaut, which slaughtered Pennsylvania, 60 to 20, and trounced Southern California, 27 to 0, had that year.

Carideo served as an assistant to Noble Kizer at Purdue in 1931, then went to the University of Missouri as head coach for three years. He resigned at the end of the 1934 season, after being under fire for failure to get winning results, and was replaced by Don Faurot.

BROWN AT STERLINGTON

Brown Paper mill meets the Sterlington Engineers at Sterlington at 3:30 p.m. today in what should be one of the most interesting and bitterly contested games of the season as it will give one of the teams undisputed possession of first place in the second half standing. Each team has won 3 and lost 1.

The Sterlington Engineers, first half champions, won the first half with 16 games won and 4 lost, while Brown Paper mill finished only one game behind with 15 wins and 5 losses. Sterlington practically eliminated Brown single handed in the first half by winning all four of their games from them, but Brown has strengthened their team by the addition of McAlpin and Clifford Johnson, each of them power-houses at the plate, as well as adding some pitching strength.

Manager Loomis at Sterlington feels that his offense, headed by Gilbert, who is hitting an average of .506, is good enough to take the second half. He did add three pitchers to help on the defense. The pitchers added were Holt of Arkansas U., Crowe of Shreveport and Baumstenn of Ole Miss.

The managers of each team refuse to announce their starting pitcher as a game of this importance prohibits a hasty decision.

Vaughan And Johnson Suffer Losses In Race For Hitting Honors

NEW YORK, July 13.—(AP)—Due to the two-day layoff for the all-star game and various other causes, there wasn't much activity in the major leagues during the past week and what there was didn't suit the leading hitters at all.

Only a few of the leading regulars in either league managed to improve their averages during the week which ended with Friday's games and some of the losses were surprisingly large in view of the few games.

Floyd (Arky) Vaughan, of Pittsburgh, National league pace setter, took a 15-point drop from last week's high mark of .406 as he hit safely only twice in 14 trips to the plate. His leading rivals, Joe Medwick of St. Louis and Bill Terry of New York, lost one point apiece but Vaughan's long lead wasn't seriously damaged as he remained 30 points above Medwick's .361 mark.

In the American league the leader, Bob Johnson of the Athletics, continued his downward progress for another six points to .352 with seven hits in 25 times up. His teammate, Wally Moses, who was second last week, skidded to eighth place, losing 13 points while Charley Gehringer of Detroit, who hit seven times in 18 attempts for a three-point gain, moved into second at .344.

Several changes were recorded in both circuits by those hitters whose averages defied gravitation.

ROEBUCK SIGNED TO MEET DAVIS IN MAIN EVENT

FAMOUS INDIAN ATHLETE TO TRY TO TAME OHIOAN

Davis Spots Tiny 55 Pounds In Feature Of Wednesday Mat Card

Tiny Roebuck, famous Indian athlete who turned to wrestling and became one of the top-notchers in the game, will be brought here Wednesday night to meet Karl Davis in the main event of the weekly mat show at Roosevelt stadium, Promoter Charlie Bruscato announced last night.

Roebuck has been one of wrestling's headliners for a number of years. After a scintillating athletic career, he capitalized on his fame and entered professional wrestling, where he won immediate success. He quickly won his way to the top and is still ranked with the best grapplers in the business today.

Roebuck is a Pawhuska Indian. He weighs 280 pounds and thus will be the heaviest wrestler ever to perform in Roosevelt stadium. He is one of the most powerful grapplers in the game. The Indian has met such stars as Jimmy Londos, Strangler Lewis, Jack Washburn, Pat McGill, George Zaharias, Dick Shikat and many other headliners, and he always puts on a good show.

Davis, who tips the beam at 225 pounds and will be giving away lost weight when he tackles Roebuck, made his local debut last week, severely trouncing Laverne Baxter. He impressed local fans as being about the best man ever to enter the local ring, including Dr. Karl Sarpolis, Leo, the Terror or anybody else. Has whirlwind style was reminiscent of Wild Red Berry, but the fact that he weighs some 50 pounds more than Berry makes him that much tougher. Rarely has one grappler dealt out such an unmerciful beating to another as Davis did to Baxter.

Davis wasn't impressed at all when Bruscato approached him to sign for the Roebuck match.

"I don't care if he weighs 380 pounds and is the champion of the world, I'll beat him," was his reply to the warning that Roebuck's reputation would make him the favorite. "I'll whip anybody you throw in there against me. What I did to Baxter last Wednesday night is only a sample."

Baxter asked Bruscato for another crack at Davis but the promoter refused to accomodate the North Carolina youngster. Bruscato said he thought Roebuck, who was available for Wednesday's spot, would have a better chance of taking Davis down a notch or two. Baxter immediately got in touch with Promoter Julius Sigel at Shreveport and closed for another chance against Davis in the Caddo arena Monday night.

"Davis is too dirty for Baxter," Bruscato said in explaining his refusal to re-match the pair. "I believe Roebuck will cool Mr. Davis off and even if it costs me more money, I'm bringing him here to do that very thing."

Davis boasts of being the roughest matman in the game today, and his antics have won him a measure of fame throughout the nation. He glorifies so plainly in brawling, that his array of science has been lost in a mound of slugging, kneeing, kicking and elbowing. He delights in battering down his opponents, to say nothing of the referees—and sometimes even the promoter, if he happens to be handy, comes in for his share. The boos and hisses of the crowd are music to his ears.

Recently Karl wrestled Chief Chewicki, rasslin's King Kong and Frankenstein, for the "bad man" supremacy. The big Gypsy, riding on the crest of unpopularity, was enjoying the undisputed "old meanie" title until the big Swede swooped down and began stealing his thunder. As a result of the Davis-Chewicki warfare, the Chief, with all his thumb tacks, his tape and wire, stove lids and chloroformed rags, plus 235 pounds of beef, was maade pale and effeminate by comparison.

Among the victims of his assault and battery tactics, according to a recent edition of The Ring, Davis numbers Dick Daviscourt, Jim McMillan, Gino Garibaldi, Glen Wade, Jim Clinstock, Man Mauntain Dean, Marshall Blackstock, Dorv Roche and he had held Rudy Dusek, Karl Sarpolis, Abe Coleman and Everette Marshall to draws.

Davis is a graduate of Ohio State University and it isn't his intention to remain in the mat game for long. He plans to return to his Alma Mater as physical director and settle down to a quiet life with his family.

Bruscato said last night that the semi-final bout has not been completed but that he hoped to bring a couple of good men here in an effort to make it an all-star card.

REDS TRIM DODGERS

CINCINNATI, July 13.—(AP)—A pitchers' battle between George Earnshaw, veteran Brooklyn righthander, and Al Hollingsworth, Cincinnati's rookie southpaw, terminated disastrously for the former today when the Reds put over three runs in the eighth to gain their third straight victory, 5 to 2.

The triumph left the Reds only a half game behind the fifth-place Brooklyn club.

CUBS WIN PAIR

CHICAGO, July 13.—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs ran a winning streak to six games today by turning back the Boston Braves 10 to 2 and 3 to 1, in both ends of a doubleheader before 11,500 here. The twin wins extended their season's record over the Braves to 12 out of 14.

Charley Root's effective relief pitching, after Starter Roy Henshaw lost control in the third, and a 13-hit attack against Danny MacFayden and Bob Brown gave the Cubs the opener, while Bill Lee turned in his ninth victory in the nightcap by allowing only three Braves to reach second and himself batting in the winning margin by doubling after Frank Demaree and Chuck Klein had singled in the fourth.

NATS BEAT BROWNS TWICE

WASHINGTON, July 13.—(AP)—The Senators won their first doubleheader of the season today, defeating St. Louis 11 to 7 and 10 to 4.

Four-run splurges in the fifth and seventh inning and a three-run barrage in the eighth gave Washington a big lead as Buck Newsom won over his former teammates after spotting them a three-run start.

BIG CROWD ATTENDS TRANSIENT PROGRAM

A record crowd of about 600 persons attended the wrestling and boxing show held Friday night at the Transient Bureau recreation field.

Manuel Lopez, 173-pound professional matman from Laredo, Texas, won the main event, from Troy Powell, 165-pound amateur. It was a handicap match and it was necessary for Lopez to win two falls in thirty minutes with punishing holds barred. He won the first fall in fourteen minutes and the second in eleven minutes.

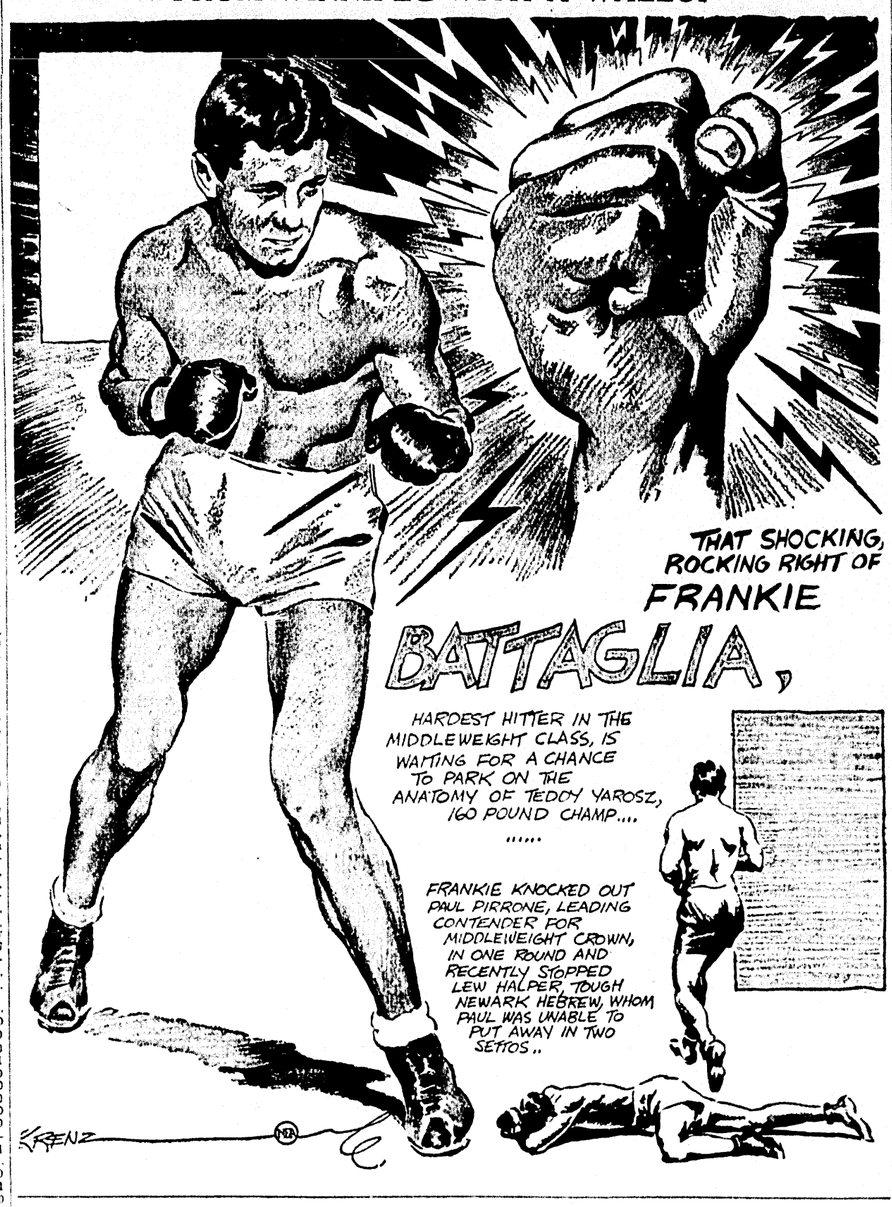

In the semi-final attraction, John Achton and George Burns clowned through three rounds of boxing, and for a curtain raiser, Jack Proctor won a decision over Frank Schatte after three rounds of close fighting.

An exhibition boxing match featured Curley Jordan, contender for the featherweight championship from 1905 to 1909, and Joe Ackerman, promising youngster under the tutorship of Jordan. In two other preliminary wrestling bouts Dick Phillips threw Young Barksdale in four minutes, and Tom Moore battled to a fifteen-minute draw with Red the Terror.

Another wrestling and boxing show, free to the public, will be held at the Transient field Tuesday night.

New York City licenses approximately 1,000,000 chauffeurs and operators of motor vehicles.

who succeeded Stanley by appointment of Governor O. K. Allen, announced the dismissal of three assistants and the appointment of two new ones.

Those dismissed were: First Assistant J. Bernard Cocke, Michael E. Culligan, prosecutor in Judge William O'Hara's division of criminal court, and Archie Wagner, office assistant.

Herbert Christenberry, brother of Earl Christenberry, secretary to Senator Long, and Sidney A. Mitchell, staunch Long supporter, were named assistant district attorneys. No successor was named for Wagner.

Mrs. Margaret Connely, office telephone operator, also was dismissed.

Stanley resigned suddenly Thursday night after the legislature, a week ago, enacted a bill stripping him of the right to name his own assistants.

Stanley and Long have been bitter political enemies since the former defeated Byrne overwhelmingly for the district attorneyship in January, 1934. Byrne was Long's candidate for the post.

Following the council meeting Mayor Walmsley declined to comment on reports that in the event the legislature sought to address him out of office he would carry his fight into the federal courts. However, he again asserted his determination to retain his office "under any conditions."

Definite plans for the "Old Regulars" mass meetings will be laid at a caucus called for 10 a. m., Monday. Also at that time an effort will be made to swing into the Long ranks the four ward leaders who refused to leave Walmsley at yesterday's caucus.

The mayor announced today that all city employes except those receiving their salaries from the federal emergency relief administration on Monday would receive 50 per cent of their salaries for the first half of July.

The payroll, he said, would come from miscellaneous revenues of the city and would amount to approximately $70,000.

Among those who will receive half-salaries are city policemen and firemen, who are controlled by the Long forces.

Commissioner Pratt declared that the Monday payment will represent the last available city funds.

timated by army engineers for the Markham plan.

"After hearings and discussions from all sides and continued executive sessions, this is the only course to pursue with any prospect of final results," Wilson said in a statement.

"The work in the Atchafalaya basin (the Morganza floodway) presents the emergency feature and we are assured of cooperation on the part of the people and the local interests.

"The increased carrying capacity and more rapid discharge through the Atchafalaya channel will bring relief to the lower section of the Tensas basin which is not provided for in the plan for the Eudora floodway. On the other hand flood damages there would be increased and without compensation since it is designated as a backwater area.

"All admit that the Eudora floodway as recommended would never be undertaken and no compensation paid to anyone since the positive provisions are that flowage rights, easements and waiver of all damages must be complete before any work will be undertaken; also the fuse plug would never be raised as that was not to be undertaken until the work was completed.

"A floodway constructed by condemnation proceedings is opposed and is impossible for many reasons:

"First, that the cost is estimated by the chief of engineers to be from four to five times that estimated in the review report.

"Second, if purchased, and controlled by the United States government the annual cost of six dollars per acre each year would have to be expended for upkeep, not to mention railroads and highways.

"So my conclusions, after careful study of every phase of the problem, is that we should adopt a program of legislation that can be enacted and that will be effective for definite results."

Wilson offered his bill as a reply to charges made early this week by Harry Jacobs, assistant state engineer, that the committee chairman was holding up action upon uncontroverted features of the flood control program through opposition to the Eudora floodway.

He said today that the best answer to Jacobs was to quote his own testimony before the house committee last April when Jacobs declared:

"I would like to see the consideration of the committee given to nothing being done or referred to as a floodway in the Eudora. It should be excluded, taken out of the recommendation, because we cannot expect those people, under a recommendation of that kind or under a bill of this kind, to be singled out and to have all of their land made subject to that condition, which would affect them so seriously."

Here's Real Boy's Job---Busting Toy Balloons

CLEVELAND, July 13.—(AP)—For a boy—it's the world's grandest job.

Fay Csuri, head bus boy at a Cleveland hotel, spends a great deal of his time every day deflating toy balloons, and he does it by the good old hand sling-shot method of a rubber band and a pin.

It's an old custom of the hotel to present child guests with them in one of the principal dining rooms. Often the child lets go of the string and the balloon floats to the ceiling and, eventually, is forgotten.

That's where Csuri enters. After the guests have departed he "shoots" the balloons down.

was heard at Rodriquez, 3,000 miles away, as though a New York explosion should be heard in San Francisco and London.

Batavia, a city 100 miles distant, was made dark as night by falling ashes, and lava dust, blown high into the atmosphere, drifted across the Pacific and affected weather here. A tidal wave caused by the explosion drowned thirty-six thousand persons in the Malay Archipelago, and the effect of that tidal disturbance was seen in long ocean waves at Cape Horn, 7,818 miles away, and in the English channel, 11,040 miles away.

Atmospheric waves set up by volcanic power "were reflected back and forth around the earth, seven times." How much "better" could nature do if she did her best.

In old days, two armies, drawn up for battle, went home in a hurry, when a solar eclipse began. They took that as a hint from above. What sort of hint would be needed to make Mussolini change his plans. No mere volcano could produce it.

WOMAN CONVICTED IN KIDNAP CASE

encouragement given to the fugitive William Dainard, otherwise known as Bill Mahan, will be followed by indictment and prosecution to the full extent of the law."

The contention of Mrs. Waley that she was under the domination of her husband had brought a denouncement from government attorneys, who said she thus had been trying to hide behind the Mormon religion to escape punishment.

Judge Cushman instructed the jury that a person's religious creed could not be recognized as a defense.

Waley recently pleaded guilty to similar charges and was sentenced to 45 years in prison.

Assistant United States Attorney Owen P. Hughes in his summation pictured the blonde Mrs. Waley as a cold blooded gangster "moll."

John F. Dore, former mayor of Seattle and chief defense attorney, defended the young wife's religion claim and her witness stand statement that she feared to interfere with the kidnaping because of threats by Mahan.

The defense attorney brought Mrs. Waley's family and economic background into his argument when he declared she was the child of a father "who has no occupation other than filling up the house with children he can't support."

Publisher Of Newspaper On State Board 16 Years

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 13.—(AP)—A quiet, middle-aged Frederick, Okla., newspaper publisher who has watched governors come and go in a politically strife-torn state, has won the distinction of serving longer than any other state board member in Oklahoma.

J. L. Newland, whose chief hobby is education, is serving his sixteenth continuous year as a member of the state board of education.

GEORGE HOOKER

The funeral of George Hooker, 55, who was found dead in a hotel room in Shreveport early Friday, due to a stroke of apoplexy, will be held this afternoon at Bonita, after which the body will be taken to Crossett, Ark., for interment.

Mr. Hooker was a former Monroe resident, having been line superintendent for the Monroe municipal light plant up to a few years ago, when he went to Shreveport to enter the employ of an electrical company as salesman. He was well known in Monroe, where he had a wide circle of friends.

His only child, a son, was drowned in the Ouachita river while swimming on July 4, 1933. His only immediate surviving relative is a sister residing in Crossett, Ark.

INDUSTRIAL--REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES

Sales Manager Issues Optimistic Statement After Long Trip

Production of Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks will continue at peak schedules throughout June, and probably considerably longer, W. E. Holler, vice president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor company, announced this week, following his return from a coast to coast trip through the territory, where he discussed with dealers and the wholesale organization in the field, the outlook for the next 90 days.

June output projections, Mr. Holler said, are higher than in June of last year, and full capacity of the manufacturing units and the company's 10 assembly plants will be required to carry out the program. This assures a wide spread of employment at a period when production normally begins to taper off. He added that it is the company's hope to maintain sales at such a level as to repeat the unprecedented achievement of last year, when Chevrolet sales in the second six months eclipsed those in the first.

"Several factors noted in the field justify optimistic predictions," said Mr. Holler. "In the first place, Chevrolet dealers have on hand a large banks of orders, which the plants are now working hard to fill. Deliveries are coming through much more promptly, and this fact is naturally having a favorable effect on the number of orders received.

"More than a dozen executives from Detroit are now out in the territory, addressing Chevrolet wholesale and retail personnel in all parts of the country. They are in constant touch with us, and the reports they have relayed in all point to continuation of business at or near its present peak.

"In the final analysis, the improvement can be traced clear back to the farm, which of course is fundamental in any picture of national prosperity. Farm income in most sections of the United States has shown a substantial gain over 1933 and 1934. The outlook for business from farmers would be good even without the addition of the government benefit moneys which have been pouring into rural sections.

"For the first time in several years, the farmer is in a position to rehabilitate himself. Federal aid is helping him to improve his home and his buildings. Higher prices for his produce—with hardly a single item excepted—are leaving him something over and above his actual living requirements, for investment in the commodities he needs. And the supplemental income derived from government sources is enabling him to include such major items as farm implements, cars and trucks, in the list of urgently needed articles he can now afford to buy.

"Chevrolet banks on its ability to obtain its share of this business, because farmers are thrifty buyers by habit. Particularly after a period when scarcity of funds forced them to 'play close to the belt,' they may be expected to attach full value to such important qualities as the durability and economy which are bywords with the product we sell.

"Reports from the field lead us to believe that a hundred million dollars would be no exaggerated value to place on the rainfall received in May. It could hardly have arrived at a time when it would do more good. Thousands of farmers were holding back on their spring seeding, apprehensive over the possibility of a second summer drouth. The psychological effect of the heavy rains was, therefore, greater, perhaps than their actual physical effect upon crops already in the ground, important as the latter benefits were, on their own account."

Chevrolet's expectation of sustained summer business, Mr. Holler explained, also takes into account the stimulus which urban communities are feeling as a direct result of the improvement so general on the farm.

"There is not line of business where the flow of money will not be favorably affected by the rising income on the farm," he said. "Our dealers will share in the increase too, through the sale of the new cars, used cars and trucks."

An especially favorable sign, he added, is the unusually high percentage of trunk models among the passenger cars ordered this season. This condition confirms the prediction made by hotels and tourist agencies, to the effect that 1935 would see a resumption of motor touring on a scale so great as to surpass the highest previous record.

"This resumption of touring by the public is a good omen for business," he said. "It is one of the most reliable 'telltales' regarding the status of the public purse. When every other car encountered on the highways bears a license from some other state, you can write it down without fear of contradiction that things are decidedly looking up."

ARMATURE WORKS HAS LARGE PLANT

Concern At 2019 DeSiard Specializes On Industrial Motors

An important Monroe industry with which the general public is little acquainted is the Monroe Armature Works, Inc., of which M. S. Harrison is president and general manager.

This firm caters largely to industrial electrical work, although they repair any kind of motor, large or small. Repairs on electric motors, motor winding, control apparatus and supplies and power equipment are the specialties of the Monroe Armature Works. The plant does not solicit house wiring and automobile electrical work.

There isn't a better equipped plant of its kind in the state of Louisiana. There are larger plants in New Orleans, Mr. Harrison pointed out yesterday, but there are none of its size in other cities in the state and not even the large New Orleans plants are better equipped to turn out efficient work than the Monroe Armature Works.

The local concern employs only thoroughly skilled men and the class of work turned out is the highest. Mr. Harrison has operated the local plant for eight years, and in all, he has had 15 years of experience in the electrical field. At present he employs two other experienced assistants.

Often the Monroe Armature Works is called upon to enter the engineering field, such as rewinding motors for new speeds and changing motors to operate under new conditions, speed, etc. They are thoroughly capable of handling such jobs, as their many satisfied clients will testify.

The installation of industrial motors and wiring of large industrial plants, sawmills, etc., are done by the local concern.

The Monroe Armature Works carries a large stock of supplies, such as parts for motors, generators, switches and other items required in such work.

The concern is often called upon to overhaul, rewind and condition enormous motors and the public is invited to call at the plant and watch this interesting work. The address is 2019 DeSiard street, and the telephone number is 98. Mr. Harrison welcomes any inquiries concerning electrical work. He will gladly furnish estimates for any job and there is no obligation. Owners of industrial motors will find the prices charged by the Monroe Armature Works most reasonable.

SMART SHOWING OF BETTER CARS

Hudson And Terraplane Cars Are On Display At Adler's Showroom

The new Hudsons and Terraplanes for 1935 have arrived and are now on public display for the first time in the showrooms of Adler's, Inc., local distributors. Featured by lower, longer lines with more power, even finer performance and two of the latest developments of the industry, the new cars are expected to create a tremendous amount of interest. The two developments which are entirely new to the industry are the steel-roofed body which incloses the passengers in a silent, solid steel compartment with perfect ventilation and the new electric gearshift which entirely clears the front compartment and gives real finger-tip control of the car.

For 1935 the Hudson Motor Car company will build a special and de-luxe series Terraplane 6 on 112-inch wheelbase and a complete series of Hudson cars on three wheelbases, namely, 116, 117 and 124-inch wheelbases. New for 1935 is the Hudson Big Six with a 93-horsepower engine mounted on 116-inch wheelbase chassis. There are five models of the Hudson standard 8 on 117-inch wheelbase with 113-horsepower, and three models of the Hudson DeLuxe 8 on the 117-inch wheelbase with 113 horsepower. In addition there is the big 8 which will be produced in two models—custom club sedan and custom brougham on 124-inch wheelbase, also with 113 horsepower.

From a performance standpoint, the Hudson and Terraplane models all offer improvements for 1935 over 1934. Detailed advancement in engineering and construction in the engine has resulted in increased power without any change in the basic dimensions. As a result of these improvements the power-weight ratio of the new cars is considerably more advantageous than for 1934 with a resulting increase in acceleration, hill climbing ability and top speed.

AUTO SHOULD BE CHECKED OFTEN

Boyce-Kendall Garage Stresses Point For Greater Economy

Many firms operating a fleet of automobiles and trucks have a repair garage of their own, employing an efficient mechanic and helpers. These repair plants are usually very well equipped so that the fleet might be kept in good repairs. It is usually the policy of the firm to have every truck and automobile checked at frequent intervals so that any trouble might be ascertained before it becomes serious and costly to remedy. This is efficient and economical.

As an individual owner of one automobile, you would not think of operating your own repair and service garage merely to repair and maintain your one car. Your problem, then, is to seek out a good auto repair shop where you feel that you will get efficient service and will be treated right. Following the practice of fleet owners, you will find it a good idea to have your car checked from time to time, regardless of how well it might be performing.

The Boyce-Kendall garage, the efficient and popular garage located at 111 North Third street, invites you to drive into their station at any time and they will be glad to go over your car with the idea of locating any defects that might be apparent at the time.

Boyce-Kendall have been in the automobile repair business in Monroe for several years. They have devoted their entire time to this field and have made a study of every problem pertaining to automobile and truck service and repairs. Through this conscientious and diligent application, Boyce-Kendall have gained the reputation of being one of the best-posted service companies on all makes of cars in Monroe and this territory.

Realizing that unless they equipped their plant with the proper equipment they would be sacrificing efficiency, Boyce-Kendall have installed in their North Third street garage practically every facility and convenience which they thought would improve and expedite working conditions there.

As a result, Boyce-Kendall company is one of the most modernly equipped repair shops in Monroe. A visit to this plant will convince anyone that investing capital has not been spared in providing this equipment for better service to Boyce-Kendall customers.

And remember—you don't have to have all cash to have your automobile repaired or overhauled at Boyce-Kendall's. They will be pleased to discuss their easy payment plan with you.

MAXIMUM SAFETY IN NEW NASH CAR

All-Steel Body And Seamless Top Help To Protect Passengers

Maximum safety for driver and passengers has been incorporated in the new 1936 Nash "400" recently announced, according to H. H. Benoit, local Nash-Lafayette dealer.

"In these days of higher motor car speeds, too much attention cannot be given to the development of greater safety factors in automobile construction," said Mr. Benoit. "Nash engineers have recognized this in designing the new '400' with the result that chassis and body of the new car represent the last word in safety construction.

"Nash '400' bodies are all steel—floor, sides and top. The top is a seamless, steel canopy, welded to the steel side pillars and panels of the body, and together with the all-steel floor, forms an armored compartment giving passengers complete protection. The structural members of the body are so designed and placed as to provide the utmost safety in any kind of an impact. This method of construction, it is claimed, has increased passenger protection 200 percent in the event of accidents occurring.

"Oversize super-hydraulic brakes of latest design and having 176 square inches of braking surface; an exceptionally low center of gravity, solid steel wheels and the use of safety glass also contribute materially to the safety in operation of this newest product of the Nash Motors company."

NEW COLOR FOR OLD AUTOMOBILES

The Duco Shop, 1111 DeSiard Street, Tells Of Modern Trend

It is fortunate that, with so many old cars on the roads as there are this year, the whole matter of refinishing has now undergone a tremendous change, according to the Duco shop, 1111 DeSiard street. Back in the days when many automobiles were still painted, it was a major matter to renew the apparent age of a car by the use of a Duco finish. First, the old paint had to be scraped off, and then, after a clean surface was secured, the modern lacquer could be used. Those days, happily, are gone. Practically all cars, nowadays, are finished in Duco and the imposing of a new Duco finish is a more economical job. It ought to cost less than a man pays for a new suit of clothes for a small car and not over twice as much for the big fellows.

This puts the matter of refinishing on a new basis. It has become something that more people than ever are going to undertake this year, particularly as it is also now possible to get just the exact shade of color desired, provided that shade is durable. In other words, at last a complete range of colors is to be had.

This year the tendency, following the idea of simplicity, is to minimize or eliminate mouldings, to use a single all-over color, to have the radiator shell, cowl band and head lamps finished with Duco instead of using so much glittering material. For example, a purple blue car may be embellished, not only with its complementary hue, yellow, but also with yellow red, yellow red yellow, yellow green yellow, and green yellow, besides the durable hues from neighboring colors.

The use of a single all-over color and the increased tendency to make the embellishments as simple as possible, is likely to put cars on the road this season with a new distinction as to color and more appealing to the eye than ever before. The new color trend has been apparent in various automobile shows throughout the country, the New York show, earlier in the year, having not less than forty cars by many representative manufacturers finished after the new manner.

Bad Vision Ends Career Of U. S. 'Alien Bouncer'

DENVER, July 13.—(AP)—One of Uncle Sam's best "bouncers" has shooed his last alien across the international boundary.

Credit with having escorted probably more aliens out of the country than any other federal officer, Brown McDonald, 66, has retired from duty because of the loss of vision of his right eye.

In 30 years McDonald placed more than 3,000 aliens of nearly every nationality on ships outward bound or watched them step across into Mexico or Canada.

No prisoner ever escaped from him and he rarely had to use force.

Cotton

ew Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, July 13.—(AP)—otton ended a week of dull and ntureless price movements today by lling off 11 to 13 points in quiet ding.

During the major part of the ses-n prices held close to their previ-s final prices, but in the last few nutes of trading offerings became ntiful and price recession occurred the market absorbed the contracts. Needed rains in the belt were con-dered the main reason for the late cline. Most sections of the cotton owing region have had plenty of t dry weather and rains today re considered bullish as far as the w crop was concerned.

Active months closed around their ws for the day in most instances, ly finishing at 11.91, Oct. at 11.59, c. at 11.56 and Jan. at 11.55.

The government report on con-mption during June showed a sharp cline from the previous month but increase of approximately 22,680 les over June, 1934.

Exports totalled 466 bales.

New York Stocks

By Victor Eubank
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, July 13.—The stock market ended the week today in a fairly optimistic frame of mind.

While there was no buying rush during the brief session, the rails picked up a friendly following and a number of new highs for the year were registered in other divisions. The close was steady. Transfers approximated 550,000 shares.

Although motor and electrical equipment equities were in demand, price changes, generally, were narrow. Important stimulus seemed to be lacking for the list as a whole. The customary week-end evening up operations were also evidence.

Wheat was again in a selling position, but corn was hesitant. Cotton was a little behind most of the time. Secondary rail bonds rallied. The leading gold currencies improved in terms of the dollar.

Shares registering gains of fractions to around a point included Santa Fe, New York Central, Union Pacific, Great Northern preferred, Westinghouse Airbrake, Timken Roller Bearing, Pullman, Westinghouse, Schenley and American Tobacco "B." Both General Motors and Chrysler made new 1935 tops, but they were about unchanged at the end. The steels, aircrafts and utilities did virtually as much. United States Smelting, Cerro De Pasco and American Smelting eased.

The better showing of the carrier stocks was attributed partly to technical influences—they have been backward for some time—and to reports that the president would insist on the passage of the motor bus and truck regulation bill at this session. Rail officials have claimed that unlicensed truck competition has seriously affected the earnings of many roads.

The utilities were at a standstill as financial observers studied the senate lobby committee disclosure that power interests had thrown a $300,000 fund against the holding company bill. At the same time financial quarters were cheered by the renewed attack of bus business on the administration's wealth-tax program.

Another drop in world silver prices did not do silver mining shares any good. Some selling in the group was attributed to fears that the treasury may alter its plans for the extensive purchase of the white metal. Silver was quite heady in London and Montreal. Imported bar silver in New York was reduced 1 cent an ounce to 67 3-4 cents.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, July 13.—(AP)—Clear, cool weather in the northwest, a condition militating against black rust in spring wheat, led to fresh downturns of grain values early today. Opening 3-8 to 1 1-4 cents lower, Sept. 81 to 81 1-2, wheat then held near to this range. Corn started at 3-8 decline to 1-4 advance, Sept. 74 1-2 to 5-8, and subsequehtly altered little.

Wheat closed nervous, 1 3-4 to 2 3-8 under yesterday's finish, September 80 1-4 to 3-8, corn at 1 cent decline to 1-4 advance, September 74 3-8 to 1-2, oats 3-8 to 1-2 down, and provisions unchanged to a loss of 10 cents.

MODERN METHODS USED IN BAKING

Ouachita Firm Has Most Modern Equipment; Employes Well Experienced

One of the most sanitary bakeries to be found anywhere is that of the Ouachita Baking company, 2519 South Grand street. At any hour of the day or night, the place is open for inspection and always the same care is taken to make the output as sanitary as is humanly possible.

The equipment comprises the last word in baking perfection and includes moulding machines which far surpass the antiquated method of moulding by hand, a dough mixer which is equipped with automatic scales to assure that each and every "mix" has the exact amount of flour, and a scaling machine which weighs each loaf of bread so that they will all be uniform.

All employes of the bakery are skilled workmen in their respective lines. Salesmen and saleswomen are courteous and ready to oblige in the smallest detail and they are of great help in planning special orders for weddings, birthday celebrations and social affairs generally.

All northeast Louisiana is served by the trucks of the company and these are kept in order by the mechanical staff which is maintained by the bakery to provide service at all times.

J. W. Rohr, manager of this company, has had years of experience in his line and he is striving through an advertising campaign conducted by the leading bakeries of the city in the columns of the Morning World and News-Star to better acquaint the public with some of the salient facts that pertain to the baking business.

PROMINENT NEW ORLEANS BUSINESS MAN SUCCUMBS

NEW ORLEANS, July 13.—(AP)—Walter Cott Ayres, 73, widely known in the south and middle west for his real estate colonization and industrial development, and a former member of the national house of representatives, died here yesterday.

At the time of his death he was representative of the federal housing administration in Louisiana.

Mr. Ayres, a native of Paris, Tenn., was elected to congress in 1891. He later served for 12 years as chief examiner of the bureau of pensions in the department of interior.

He took charge of the sale, development and settlement of lands and towns for the Rock Island and Frisco railroad along its lines. He came to New Orleans in 1918 as industrial commissioner for the New Orleans and Great Northern railway company.

Among his survivors is a daughter, Mrs. Brown Pierce of Highland Park, Ill.

East Baton Rouge Employes Hail Close Of 'Financial Drouth'

BATON ROUGE, La., July 13.—(AP)—East Baton Rouge parish employes, payless for six months, tonight hailed the end of the parish's financial "drouth."

Dr. C. A. Lorio, president of a group of 17 Huey Long supporters who have been functioning as the parish police jury with partial recognition, announced arrangements for borrowing up to $225,000 from local banks against 1935 revenues to pay the parish's governmental expenses for the first six months of this year.

Loans against the anticipated revenues have been delayed during contest over the authority of 13 appointees named by the governor to the police jury and four pro-Long elected jurors to act as the parish's governing body.

The authority of the Long group has never been recognized by nine elected anti-Long jurors.

The issue is before the East Baton Rouge district court.

The 13 appointees were named under an act Senator Huey P. Long drafted to gain control of the parish government.

FIREMEN ENTER BURNING HOUSE AND RESCUE MAN

HOPE, Ark., July 13.—(AP)—Firemen saved the life of J. R. Heard, automobile company bookkeeper, today when fire swept through his home.

Alone and asleep when the blaze started, Heard was found unconscious from suffocation when the firefighters entered the smoke-filled house. The residence was almost destroyed before the fire was controlled.

Heard's wife and two daughters, Daisy Dorothy and Alice Loraine Heard, were visiting relatives at Winnfield, La., at the time.

Folk School Is Expected To Draw Large Attendance

RUSTON, La., July 13.—(Special)—The opening of the Lincoln parish folk school on the Louisiana Tech campus, Tuesday afternoon, is expected to sound the signal for four days' vacation for many farm families of the parish and also for a large number of the business and professional people in the towns of the parish. The school will open each afternoon promptly at 2 o'clock with 45 minutes devoted to mass singing under the direction of John P. Graham, supervisor of music for the school.

Mr. Graham will be assisted by Rodney Cline, Tech faculty member, and A. E. Wilder, Jr., one of Ruston's prominent song leaders. Miss Mable Walker will be accompanist. All singing will feature southern ballads, "heart" songs and patriotic songs.

The actual class room work of the folk school will consume but two 45-minute periods each afternoon, and will be followed by a general session at which some able platform talent will be heard. Among the guest speakers will be Pat M. Neff, president of Baylor university. Before becoming president of Baylor, Mr. Neff served two terms as governor of his native state. He is widely and favorably known as statesman, orator and scholarly gentleman. He will speak Friday at 4:30 p. m.

Dr. George Sexton, well known as minister and former president of Centenary college, will speak Tuesday at 4:30 p .m.

Judge Camille Kelley, judge of juvenile court of Memphis, will speak on Wednesday at 4:30 p. m. She is one of the first women judges to preside over a court in this country. Her popularity is based as much on her ability as a platform speaker as it is on her ability to deal out justice to youthful offenders.

J. A. LePrince, senior sanitary engineers, U. S. Public Health service, Memphis, will speak Thursday at 4:30 p. m. Mr. Le Prince was with the late General Gorgas of Panama Canal fame.

BRAKEMAN'S LEG HURT

WINNFIELD, La., July 13.—(Special)—Charles Long, brakeman on the rock quarry train here, is in a local clinic suffering from injuries received when his leg caught on a spike on the tracks. He sustained painful lacerations on his leg and other leg injuries.

MURPHY FINISHES DUTIES IN CITY

Licenses Taken Out By Realtors; Local Board Will Meet Shortly

J. H. Murphy, of New Orleans, in charge of the license bureau of the Louisiana Real Estate board, completed his work here Saturday after having signed up a large number of real estate men in Monroe and vicinity with the proper licenses required by state law. Luther Reed, president of the Monroe Real Estate board, stated Saturday night that Murphy's visit had been successful and that members will enroll with the board here as a result.

It had been planned to hold a meeting Monday afternoon of the Monroe board but this has been delayed for a few days, stated Mr. Reed. This is necessary for the making of arrangements desired before the meeting is held.

He stated that the outlook for the board is bright and that realtors in Monroe, Rayville, Bastrop and Ruston look with favor on the new organization.

SWARTZ CLUB MEMBERS HOLD REGULAR MEETING

The Swartz Demonstration club held its regular meeting at the clubhouse with ten members present. Mrs. Jewel McQuiller, parish home demonstration agent, gave a demonstration of drying fruits and vegetables. The members agreed to pay a small sum each for a canner which has been ordered.

The members decided to charge each non-club member who uses the canner, one can out of every eight they used.

Mrs. Allen Coates was elected secretary due to the resignation of Mrs. Fred Morrison.

TO APPOINT DELEGATES TO STATE LEGION MEET

The regular meeting of the L. B. Faulk post, American Legion, will be held Monday at 8 p. m. at the post home. The meeting will be of importance as delegates to the state convention at Baton Rouge will be named.

Plans for sending the junior baseball club to New Orleans for the state championship play-off will be discussed. Every member is urged to attend the meeting and aid in giving the team a "big send-off." The juniors are said to have a real baseball team and need the moral support of every legion member at this time.

The team will play the first of a three-game series with Springhill at Brown Paper mill park Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

The hydrax is the nearest living relative of the elephant. It is a little animal no larger than a rabbit and is erroneously designated in the King James Bible as a coney.

Monroe Girls Acquiring Coats Of Tan As Summer Advances

Boating On Ouachita Increasingly Popular

By Eve C. Bradford

July advances. The lutes of summer blow and the golden hours that vanish like magic are being stored away that they may live again another year. "God's in His Heaven and all's right with the world." Especially so with those gay, light-hearted young moderns who leap from crag to crag, as it were, jamming as much of summer joy into the fleeting days as is humanly possible. Life is now at its freest and best with the river, the golf links, the tennis courts and the shining dance floors offering constant allure.

Tanning hides usually suggests a business, but in the case of Lillie Thompson and Clara Virginia Terzia it is a creative art. Saw these two beautiful blondes comparing their mahogany-colored skin in the gardens of the E. G. Calvert home the other day. There seemed to be some rivalry, but for the life of us we couldn't determine which looked the best as old Sol, in this case, was quite impartial and gave them both a glorious coat of tan.

Elizabeth Kennedy is another whose skin has been subjected to the sun in large doses. You can see her almost any day striding hatless along the fairway nonchalantly swinging a brassie.

Kitty Morrison is one of those delectable blondes who never tan. Spending the fourth of July under the glaring sun in a boat with a stalled engine in the middle of the Ouachita, she arrived home without even a freckle. Other members of the party spent the night administering soothing lotions.

Caroline Stubbs walks hatless through the summer days but simply refuses to acquire a coat of tan. By the way, we heard the most exciting and romantic news the other day about Caroline. It seems that a celebrated movie actor, dining in the Blue room at the Roosevelt in New Orleans, saw her and begged an introduction. Caroline, so lovely, so talented, so charming and yet so very modest, would not enlighten us on this subject, but nevertheless we got it from good authority.

Imagine Happy Hudson's chagrin when a certain party came all the way from New York city to pay his respects and found her in a sanitarium. One consolation, she will be sufficiently well Wednesday night to tap the boards on the Cherokee terrace at the Frances hotel, where Vincent Lopez, famous orchestra leader, will wave his baton. When he plays "Nola" even an invalid leaps for joy. Some one who saw him recently told us to watch that enormous diamond on his third finger send forth tongues of flame whenever he waves his famous hands. It may take more than one swallow to make a summer, but it takes just one enchanted night, such as the one we are looking forward to Wednesday night, to make the summer unforgettable.

Going down to the sea is our most popular pastime these days. The nautical ripple has swelled to tidal-wave proportions. Local voyagers, however, are spared the trials of mal de mer, as boats on the placid Ouachita are never storm-tossed. So nautically-minded have we become, we catch ourselves using aquatic terms in our homes. Kitchens have become galleys, beds are berths and the dining room the mess hall. Windows have become port-holes. All signs, if we continue river-ward, will soon read "starboard and port," rather than "turn right or turn left." Not "how many more miles" but "how many leagues." Stop signs will read "Drop anchor." Scarcely a week passes without a new boat flaunting the stars and stripes along the water front in the north end of town.

Sea Dart the second is now in possession of the Travis Olivers, and is being renovated from stem to stern. It is a sea-going craft, so we can expect to hear of them sailing over the bounding main at any time.

The Victor Sacketts will soon step aboard their handsome new house boat that is all shining white with silver trimmings. Friends are eagerly anticipating the christening.

Marion Learned and son, Alvah, paddle their own canoe. Saw them paddling home at sundown the other day with their faithful dog, Scottie, perched in the prow like a sentinel.

One rarely sees mother and son such pals these days. Their devotion to one another is a beautiful thing.

Brunswig Sholars and Edwin Theus are suffering from a severe case of "angleritis" (the deadly fishing fever). They are casting longing eyes toward the gulf, the fisherman's paradise. Cut off from the world, they will be restfully lulled in the cradle of the deep by the only crooner worth listening to, the waves singing their perpetual song of solace as they lap against their fishing craft. Several boon companions, also suffering from this fishing fever, will accompany them to the coast.

Alwine Mulhearn is home from New Orleans quite radiant—and why not? She successfully passed the bar examination and is now ready, like the Portia of old, to claim her "pound of flesh," if need be.

Sue Graves is off for Alexandria next week to add her personality to Nancy Stack's wedding entourage. When she returns she is going to settle down and study journalism, so we hear. Once the printer's ink stains your fingers and the roar of the press is in your ears, there is no escape. There will be no more little jaunts for Sue into the world of society once she starts on a journalistic career. If you love your work, the sacrifice is worth it; but if not, it is indeed a life of slavery. Like the circus, the paper must go on regardless of life and death.

Fishing Trip Planned

A group of ardent anglers, prominent business and professional men of this city, will close their desks next Saturday and leave for a week of unalloyed pleasure, deep-sea fishing in the Gulf of Mexico. Motoring to Grand Pass, they will occupy a clubhouse on Lake Borgne, where all the comforts of home will be provided. In the party will be Messrs. Edwin Theus, Brunswig Sholars, Mike Winberry, George Pipes, Jake Dorman, H. F. Madison, Thomas Leigh, Decker Moore, Murray Hudson and son, J. W. Kilbourne and Allen Davenport. Others from Bastrop will be Messrs. H. I. Seligman, Webb Madison, J. Dalton, Jr., Frank Hawthorne and Dr. V. H. Reitzell.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Miss Frances Lavice Davis, lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gleaves Davis and popular member of the younger set whose engagement to Mr. William Richard Hammond has just been announced.

Pinching Explained

The Monroe Garden club is composed of a group of women who have not settled into the customary summer lethargy. There is always a fund of valuable information to be had from Mrs. T. C. Rowland, Mrs. Elmer Richards, Mrs. J. R. Wooten, Mrs. John Breard, Mrs. Manning McGuire or Mrs. Fred Hanna. They are all enthusiastic gardeners and ever on the alert for new ideas.

Now is the time, according to these successful gardners, to assure beautiful gardens in the fall. "A pinch in time makes flowers sublime" might well be made an adage of the amateur gardner.

Pinching is a form of pruning. It refers to cutting the soft growth of the plant and accomplishes several purposes. It keeps the plants in bounds, it makes them better shaped, produces larger flowers in some cases and a greater abundance in others.

Pinching flowers is not subject to hard and fast rules, except that it takes a definite length of time for a flower to form from the time the stem is pinched. One can time roses or snapdragons or chrysanthemums and have them at their best at a set date if he desires. Or one may pinch to secure height, to secure dwarf spreading shape, to secure quantity of bloom or to secure extra large blooms.

Planting asters close together and taking off all side branches will certainly increase the size of the blooms. Picking off the side buds from the dahlias greatly increase the size of the remaining flower. Pinching may be used as an aid when transplanting. When digging a plant to be transplanted many roots are lost. Pinching back the top helps the plant to survive the shock of transplanting.

Most annual flowers need to be pinched now and the pinching should be continued from time to time all summer. When the snapdragon plants are four to five inches high they should be given a hard pinching. That is, they should be cut back until only two sets of leaves are left on a stem about two inches tall. This pinch will cause from four to six side shoots to start and each side shoot will produce a nice heavy-stemmed bloom. When these blossoms begin to fade they should be removed, cutting them back almost to the parent stem. Again the new side shoots will produce sizeable flowers on stems long enough to be attractive. Such treatment will improve the appearance of the bed of snapdragons over the entire summer. If the plants are not pinched each would produce one large bloom and from then on an abundance of every short-stemmed small blossoms unfit to use as cut flowers and not very attractive as garden flowers.

Chrysanthemum plants should be given their first pinch this month and should be kept low and bushy until mid-summer. After that the side branches can be allowed to grow until buds have set. Then all side buds should be pinched off. Such treatment will produce more and better flowers than can be produced by letting the plants to unattended.

Now that the hybrid tea roses are blooming, cutting the blooms can take the place of pinching. When cutting a rose take enough of the stem, so that the new breaks will have to come out reasonably near the ground. This treatment may sacrifice some rose buds that one hates to lose, but it will result in longer-stemmed and better roses and will keep the bushes low and spreading.

The evergreens, too, need pinching, and this is the time of the year to shape them properly. A sharp butcher knife is an excellent tool for this purpose. With short upward strokes it is easy to shear them to a uniform shape. This will improve their appearance and cause the growth to thicken and make a tight, heavy tree.

Some plants in the nature of things send out so many side branches that pinching is unnecessary. Marigolds, larkspur, cosmos, nasturtiums and salvia need pinching only to keep them from becoming too tall. When any plant has reached the height desired it may be stopped without injury by removing the tip.

Party Suggestions

Do you want to give a party that will be a sure success—perfect food, perfect service and a grand good time? But something easy and not too expensive. Well, here's your answer. Give a buffet party. Outdoors of course. Such a party permits you to turn even your most distinguished guests loose among paper napkins, gingham tablecloths, big dishes of homey, tasty foods. It says, as plain as the dancing moonbeams, "Let's have a good time!" By all means have candles under glass containers on the table. Flowers, of the common garden variety, are always delightful for decorations.

Suppose, for example, you had a snowy angel food cake in the center of the table and around the base of the cake bright red roses, marigolds or any other flower of vivid hue. It is never too hot for coffee. So be sure and have plenty regardless of the weather. Here are some popular ideas for the rest of the menu: Baked macaroni and cheese served right from the big oven dish. A mixed salad of vegetables, sliced cucumbers and onions, plenty of French dressing. Olives and pickles and buttered rolls and sandwiches. The barbecued steaks, chickens or ribs will, of course, form the piece de resistance.

Even though you serve coffee, be sure and have a copious supply of iced punch. Here is an inexpensive recipe: Boil four cups of sugar with eight cups of water ten minutes. When cold, add juice twelve lemons, four cups pineapple juice, two cups canned crushed pineapple. Chill. Just before serving, add twenty-four maraschino cherries (quarterded) some lemon and orange slices and four pints carbonated water. Makes six quarts.

About The Zoo

Summer time at the zoo in Bernstein park is the happiest time of the whole year. The animals like it, the children like it and the keeper likes it because the animals do.

Not so long ago, when the animals were removed from their home near the salt water natatorium, there were rumblings of discontent. However, in an incredibly hort time, they commenced to enjoy their new home in the park, where the sunlight trickles through the leavy branches of the giant, century-tossed trees. The cages are all new and roomy and the wire netting permits wider roaming and vision than heretofore.

Of course, it is rather difficult to establish by direct observation that the inmates at the zoo are more cheerful. They are still generally bored, as only zoo animals can be. But their health is excellent, and that is always a good indication.

The zoo is a sort of hotel, with table d'hote meals and no bills. Many there are these days who envy the permanent guests their square meals each day, their friendly companionship and expert attention given them when sickness comes.

Feeding time at the zoo is the most interesting time of the day. The Louisiana timber wolves and the l ;es are fed raw meat; the soft-eyed deer are given grain. The bears are vegetarians and are fed plenty of green stuff with milk and bread to balance their meals. The hawks, eagles and various species of Louisiana birds, get a potential salad—a slab of lettuce, bits of apple and other fruits. Andy, the buffalo, consumes quantities of grain. His appetite, by the way, hasn't decreased since the loss of little Chester and the death of Min. The alligators are only fed three times a year—once in the summer once in the winter and when they come out of hibernation.

Life at the zoo is not always one long round of pleasure. Sickness comes, not only as a result of surreptitious peanuts and shells that gullible animals will eat just because visitors throw them in their cages, but because of the bits of cardboard, candy wrappings, paper and buttons tossed to them. Animals eat things when they are sick that they will not eat when they are well.

Sitting in the shade of the oaks at Bernstein park, we discovered some interesting facts about the idiosyncrasies of animals from George Lowery, keeper-philosopher of the park. He has made a study of their habits, their likes and dislikes and regards them all as friends. Bird life has also come under his close observation. He knows the names, the habits of every bird that wings its way among the leaves of the trees that make life a perfect paradise for them at Bernstein park. "What do animals do at night?" That's one of the favorite questions. Mr. Lowery informed us that it seems certain they don't just sleep, because they doze off during the day when boys and girls are yelling all over the place. The animals at night are very much like the animals by day. These nuances, however, have been observed. The monkeys, who seem definitely to react to crowd-stimulus, are somewhat subdued. The foxes pace restlessly up and down. The eyes of the wildcats dilate in the dark and glow with mysterious fascination. The alligators, who share the pool at one end of the zoo, are said to be ten times as lively at night as they are by day.

There is gaiety at the zoo. There is intrigue. There is solemnity. Sometimes you can almost sense by the far away look in the eyes of the timber wolf the longing for freedom, for the great open spaces. When the deer pause, head held high, and nostrils distended, you feel sure the far away call of a mate has reached their sensitive ears. The monkeys never cease to hold the interest of visitors, as they are quite the most human creatures in the zoo. Jiggs, the little black monkey, would win in a walk in a popularity contest. He is not only curious but very friendly and carries on an animated conversation with visitors all hours of the day.

Monroe Represented

Monroe will be represented at the Business and Professional Women's national convention in Seattle, Wash., beginning the fourteenth of July, by Miss Maible Hood and Mrs. Dora Anish, who left the city Wednesday night.

Dr. Mabel F. Hood, state president, will head the state delegation attending the convention, which will be presided over by Mrs. Geline MacDonald Bowman of Richmond, Va., national president. Mrs. Bowman has often visited Louisiana and has attended several state conventions. The election of new officers will claim much interest at the sessions and Miss Charl Williams, who visited Louisiana last November, will be a candidate for the national presidency. Mrs. Bowman, too, is being urged to be a candidate to succeed herself.

"Women, unite for effective democracy, security, opportunity" will be the theme of the sessions. The keynote will be sounded on July 16, when the national president will deliver her biennial message. Mrs. Bowman, an authority in the field of public affairs, is scheduled to give a call to action to business women. Headquarters of the convention will be the Olympic hotel and a number of social events have been planned for the convention.

At the convention Dr. Wood will present a complete report on the three projects of the state federation. These include the establishment of a vocational guidance bureau at some university in the state, preservation of the old state capitol at Baton Rouge as a state museum and supporting of the old-age pension bill.

Miss Leocadie Amis, Baton Rouge, has been appointed state custodian of the Agnes Morris Loan fund, a position she has held for several years, Dr. Wood announces. The important post of state finance chairman has been awarded to Mrs. Womack, while Mrs. Jessie Norton, Shreveport, is the chairman of education.

Mrs. Alida Fontana, New Orleans, has been made state chairman of publicity and Mrs. M. K. Doughtie, of Shreveport, is the state membership chairman. Miss Mathilde Powell, of Baton Rouge, is the state historian and Miss Monita Goldsby, Baton Rouge, is the state organization director.

Presidents of clubs in the state were announced as follows by Dr. Wood with the Opelousas club yet to be heard from: Mrs. I. Distefano, Bogalusa; Mrs. Carrie Coll, Baton Rouge; Miss Eva Kustenmacher, Covington; Miss Kate Smith, DeRidder; Miss Maude Reid, Lake Charles; Miss Mary O'Kelley, Monroe; Miss Garnett Baker, Natchitoches; Miss Amelie E. Buchmann, New Orleans; Mrs. E. O. Morgan, Ruston, and Mrs. Charlotte A. Barney, Shreveport.

Misses Armandine Renaud, Irene Quinn Renaud, Alverne Noble, Fabol Powell, Mary Ann Wilder and Mrs. Douglas Hahn will form a congenial motor party leaving this morning for New York City. Misses Renaud will take a course of study in dancing under Madame Serova and other dancing masters during their stay in New York. En route home, they will visit in Niagara Falls, following the Lake Erie highway to Detroit, Mich. They will also spend several days in Chicago, where Miss Armandine Renaud will attend the convention of the dancing masters of America.

Mrs. Abe Arent and Mrs. D. I. Hirsch have returned from Galveston where they attended the Texas State Florists' convention and school of instruction. They were guests in the home of Mrs. John Meathe during their stay in Galveston. Mrs. Meathe will be remembered as Miss Esther Stein.

Friends are welcoming Mrs. E. A. Chumney of San Antonio, Texas, who is enjoying her first visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Stubbs, since her marriage. Several interesting social affairs planned in her honor will bring old friends together during her visit in the city.

LOVELY JUNE BRIDE

Mrs. Stein Baughman of Farmerville, La., who before her marriage on the sixteenth of June was Miss Mary D. Gunter of Delhi. Mrs. Baughman was introduced to friends in Farmerville and in this city at a beautifully planned reception in the Baughman home last month.

Falcon Ray Foster Weds Florence Page

Paris Johnson Goodnight And Doyne Buffington Married In Clarks; Ray Rogers And Bernice Jayroe Take Vows In Mobile

The following announcement claims the sincere interest of friends in this section of the state:

Mr. and Mrs. William Andrew Page, Sr.
announce the marriage of their daughter
Florence
to
Mr. Falcon Ray Foster
on Thursday, the twenty-seventh
of June
nineteen hundred thirty-five
Ruston, Louisiana

The ceremony was performed in Ruston, with Rev. J. D. Carroll officiating. Only the members of the immediate families were present.

Mrs. Foster is a graduate of Louisiana Polytechnic institute and is connected with the home economics department of the Ouachita parish high school.

Mr. Foster is a graduate of L. S. U. He is a member of Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity. He holds a responsible position with the Brown Paper mill.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster spent a brief honeymoon touring the gulf coast and are now at home to their friends at 1012 Jackson street.

Goodnight-Buffington Wedding

A wedding characterized by lovely simplicity and impressiveness was solemnized when Miss Doyne Buffington, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Z. L. Buffington, of Clarks, and Mr. Paris Johnson Goodnight were united in marriage at 10 o'clock in the morning Thursday, July the eleventh, at the home of the bride's parents.

A tall white lattice intertwined with trailing green vines and pink Radiance roses, placed in front of the fireplace and flanked with ferns and baskets of pink crepe myrtle, created an ideal background for the ceremony. The Rev. Paul Jones, pastor of the Clarks Baptist church, and a close friend of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony in the presence of the immediate families and intimate friends.

A pre-nuptial piano solo, "Liebestraum," was rendered by Mrs. C. L. Moore, Jr., of Monroe. The bridal party entered to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus.

The bride, walking with her father, who gave her in marriage, wore a Viola ensemble, in the new shades of light navy blue. It consisted of a silk cable net dress mounted over a taffeta slip and a three-quarter length taffeta coat in moulded lines, which added great charm to her slender, blonde type. Her accessories were navy blue, and she carried white bride's roses and valley lilies.

Miss Louise Buffington, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was becomingly dressed in an ashes of roses crepe model with plaited georgette trimming.

The groom and his best man, Mr. F. B. Wisinger, were smartly attired in white linens.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Buffington entertained the bridal party and wedding guests with a breakfast. The three-tiered wedding cake, a confection of great artistry, ornamented in pink and white, the color theme of the breakfast, graced one end of the table and was cut by the bride.

Before her departure the bride tossed her bouquet from the steps of her home. I twas caught by Miss Lois Goodnight. The young couple left by Motor for a visit in New Orleans and on the Mississippi coast.

After August 22, Mr. and Mrs. Goodnight will be at home to their friends at Hotel White, where a suite of rooms is being remodeled for them.

Mrs. Goodnight is a member of one of Clarks' oldest and best known families. She graduated from the Clarks High school and from the Meadows-Draughon Business college of Shreveport. She is a member of Sigma Phi Gamma sorority. For several years she has been employed in the office of the Louisiana Central Lumber company.

Mr. Goodnight is the son of Mrs. H. A. Steed of Oakdale. He is a graduate of the Oakdale High school and of Louisiana State university. He is a member of Theta Kappa Nu fraternity. For the last eight years he has been employed by the Louisiana Central Lumber company and is now assistant sales manager of their hardwood mill in Clarks.

The handsome wedding gift received and the numerous pre-nuptial courtesies extended the young couple attest to their popularity.

Out-of-town wedding guests were Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Steed, Miss Lois Goodnight, Miss Ruth Goodnight and Mr. Harry Steed of Oakdale and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Moore, Jr., of Monroe.

Rogers-Jayroe Wedding

Of interest to friends in this city is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Bernice Jayroe, attractive daughter of Mrs. E. W. Jayroe of Monroe, and Mr. Ray Rogers Sunday, July the seventh, at the Methodist parsonage in Mobile, Ala., with Reverend Ellison officiating in the presence of a few intimate friends.

Immediately following the ceremony, an informal reception was held at the home of Mrs. Talbert, where friends were permitted to extend their well wishes.

The bride, formerly of this city, is a graduate of L. P. I. and for the past year has been a member of the Lufkin, Texas, school faculty. Mr. Rogers is also a graduate of L. P. I. and is a member of Theta Kappa and Delta Alpha Phi fraternities.

Engagement Announced

The following announcement of special significance comes today to break the social calm of mid-summer:

Mr. and Mrs. Gleaves Earl Davis
announce the engagement of their daughter
Frances Lavice
Mr. William Richard Hammond

The affectionate interest of friends is centered in this announcement, which concerns one of the most charming members of the younger set. Miss Davis, granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ivy I. Davis, substantial citizens of this community during their lives, graduated from Randolph Macon college. She won the junior scholarship for making the highest scholastic average in her class. Quite a distinction was her election to Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic fraternity. She is also a member of the Alpha Omicron Pi sorority and an active worker in the Monroe chapter of the Junior Charity league.

Mr. Hammond, son of Mrs. A. M. Hammond of Louisville, Ky., is a member of the faculty of Northeast Center of Louisiana State University. He received his bachelor's degree from Western Kentucky State college and his master's degree from Peabody college.

The marriage of Miss Davis and Mr. Hammond will take place early in September.

Eason-Bassett Wedding

The following announcement appearing in the Arkansas Gazette will be of interest to friends in this city:

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bassett of Conway announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Gladys, to Herman Edward Eason of Fayetteville, the ceremony having been solemnized Sunday afternoon, June 30, at the First Methodist church by Dr. Charles J. Greene, vice-president of Hendrix college. Mr. and Mrs. Eason are now on a motor trip to Colorado, Wyoming and California at the conclusion of which they will be at home in Fayetteville. The bride is a graduate of Hendrix college and Peabody college for teachers, while the bridegroom received his degree at the University of Arkansas.

Miss Bassett was head of the English department of the Parish High school, this city.

Taffeta Gowns Rustle At Smart Gatherings

By Adelaide Kerr

PARIS, July 13.—(AP)—Crisp taffeta—flowered or plain—rustles through many a smart drawing room here this summer season.

Mrs. Jesse I. Straus, wife of the American ambassador to France, wears a pale green taffeta frock buttoned down the center of the back to the hipline. Another fashionable American wears one of a flowered pink and gray pattern.

Jeweled, gold-bordered Indian saris, flower trimmed gowns and coiffures and flashing gems add brilliance to dinners and soirees.

With the coming of warm summer nights, Parisians have adopted colorful mousseline and crepe gowns topped by the glamorous saris (head veils) borrowed from the maharanees of the east. Most of the saris (always fashioned of the same material as the dress) are bordered in gold or silver braid and many are worked with plastrons of gems or flowers which cover the top of the head.

Lady Mendl Wears Sari

At a recent gala party appeared a rose one bordered in silver and a mauve one rimmed with gold braid, while Lady Mendl wore a dark blue crepe gown whose head veil was embroidered on top in gold, corals and turquoises. Many women are wearing such gowns with gold or silver kid sandals sometimes without heels.

Frocks of sheer mousseline, tulle or organdy with rather full skirts are worn by other women. Most of them are accented by a colorful flower cluster at the waistline or a belt of another hue.

One crisp pink lace gown worn by an American brunette at a recent gala was finished with a girdle of blue-violet and a cluste rof pink and blue violets caught at the front of the waist, while a white organdy was accented by a green suede belt studded with a motif of sparkling strass.

Flowers Tucked Under Curls

Flowers appear on heads too, tucked under the curls at the nape of the neck, worn in a cluster on the side of the coiffure or even perched right on top of the head.

Jewels gleam from ears, wrists and coiffures, adding brilliance to the ensembles. One Parisian wears diamond stars in her dark hair, another adds ruby earrings to a white satin gown and a third wears emerald bracelets with a frivolous black tulle frock.

Billie Carolyn Turnage, the lovely little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Turnage, of Swartz, celebrated her second birthday anniversary on July 7. To commemorate the happy event a number of her little friends were privileged to attend a birthday party given in her honor Monday afternoon.

Many delightful games were participated in by the children. Interesting contests helped to fill the hours with pleasure. At the conclusion of which lovely gifts were presented to Naomi Spillers, Eugene Rowe and Lucretia Wederbrock.

Favors of tiny American flags and gay colored balloons were given to all the children.

Billie Carolyn was the recipient of many lovely gifts. Delicious refreshments of ice cream and cake were served to the children.

In addition to the little guest of honor the others who enjoyed this happy occasion were Billie Hammett, Frankie Bryant, Joy Leigh Douglas, Johnnie Turner, Carolyn Bagwell, Jamie Smith, Lily Marie Speir, Elinor Glynn Evans, Macelle Spillers, Evelyn Spillers, Billie Maxine Takewell, John Scarf, Jr., Naomi Spillers, Virginia Lee Speir, Frances Speir, Lucretia Wederbrock, Ray Reneau Ruth Reneau, Marie Takewell, Gloria Hare, Maurice Reneau, Kirby Reneau, Stanley Dyer and Eugene Rowe.

Mrs. B. H. Byar and little daughter are now at home to their friends at 1107 Trenton street, West Monroe.

Noted Orchestra Coming

The celebrated Vernie Cummins 14-piece orchestra, the New Yorkers, will play at the Lakeside Country club for a membership dance Friday, July 26, from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m.

The orchestra comes direct from the Blue room at Hotel Roosevelt in New Orleans, and is regarded as one of the best in the country.

Unlike the majority of women's clubs, the Monroe Business and Professional Women's club does not disband for the summer. The cool, comfortable clubhouse where these women meet is the stimulus for continuous endeavor throughout hot summer months.

The regular monthly business session was held Tuesday night, with Miss Mary O'Kelly, the newly installed president, officiating. Reports were read by retiring officers and chairmen which told of much activity during the fiscal year just ended, in which the Louisiana Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs was entertained.

An interesting fact revealed was the addition of 25 new members during the year. These new members will be "put into harness" at once by Miss O'Kelly, who contends it is necessary to give new members something to do in order to engage their interest.

The financial report was also of interest. The two divisions of the club membership, "Purple" and "Gold," were rivals in raising funds to be applied on the debt of the clubhouse. The Purple division, the winners, will be feted by the Gold division.

Mrs. Goldie Copes was elected a member of the board of governors and emblem chairman to succeed Miss C. Mae Johnson, whose resignation was accepted, due to her departure from Monroe at an early date.

Amendments proposed for action at the northwest biennial convention in Seattle, Washington, July 14 to 20, 1935, were read and approved.

Committee chairmen for 1935-36 were announced as follows: Agnes Morris loan fund, Mrs. Dora Anish; education, Miss Wilma Pace; finance, Mrs. Johnnie S. Elbert; house, Mrs. Jennie Thornton; legislation, Miss Eleanor Faulk; magazine, Mrs. Talitha Downes; publicity, Miss May Reed; personal research, Mrs. Acele Smith; courtesy, Mrs. Thelma Petty; entertainment, Mrs. Doris Sutton; health, Mrs. Mamie Holstein; international relations, Mrs. Ida Kaplan; emblem, Mrs. Goldie Copes; program, Miss Bernice Wright; public relations, Mrs. Fay Heard; transportation, Miss Mamie Ober; recreation, Miss Lucille Godwin.

Miss C. Mae Johnson, retiring president whose departure from Monroe is sincerely regretted by her many friends, was the honor guest at a social hour, following the business session. Birthday Party Given

Terri Sue Tidwell, beautiful little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Tidwell, reached the interesting age of one year on the twelfth of July, and to commemorate the occasion, her grandmother, Mrs. Arthur Tidwell arranged a garden party in her honor.

When twilight settled over the garden, the guests arrived and were presented with gayly colored carnival hats and balloons.

Favors attached to blue and white ribbons were also drawn from the immense Jack Horner pie.

The three-tiered birthday cake, with its beautiful embossing and one shining candle, was cut by the clebrant in cunning party frock of pink mousseline. Pink ices and little cakes embossed in pink were also served.

Paying their respects to Terri Sue were Dickie Cotton, Marcie Renaud, Robert Garrison, Jr., Karol Yarbrough, Buddie Culpepper, Charles Masur, Clayton Campbell, Carol Clark, Sue Anne Windes, Anne Neville Shafto, J. L. Adams, Jr., George Lofton, Jr., Margaret Dell Anders, John P. Noel, Jr., Diana Noel, William Abner Johnson III, Martha Clayton Sparks, Clara Munholland, Stanton Huey, Jr., Palmer Huey, Mary Virginia Parker, Skippie Bell, Betty Sue Dixon, Carolyn Peters, Don Frichel, James Edward Williams and Beverly Cotton.

Summer's Fashion Recipe Calls For 'Dash Of White'

This is the way Paris accents dark frocks with white this summer. To a dark blue talleur Chanel adds a blouse of white linen with petal collar and cuffs and a little toque of white pique. The mode of white with dark is what might be termed a "prevailing fashion." White hats or black hats trimmed with white flowers or ribbin are much in evidence. Black or navy blue frocks are sprinkled liberally with white flowers, figures, ribbon bows or scrolls. White blouses frequently are used to give the contrasting touch.

PARIS, July 13.—(AP)—"Add a dash of white" is the fashion formula for summer chic.

White accents around throats, wrists and waists, on hands and on heads give zest and piquancy to black and navy blue frocks worn in town on hot days.

White carnation cape collars, daisy garlands and anemone clusters are favorite floral neckline accents. Besides these there are any number of white fabric collars of all sizes and varieties—pique models cut to resemble a chain of petals, ribbed organdy frivols and pleated linen jabots—often accompanied by cuffs of the same design. Nearly all the white touches are detachable so that they may be cleaned and kept fresh.

Big white gauntlet gloves of pique, linen or doeskin are other smart summer accents, as are tailored linen and leather belts. To wear with dark taffeta suits there are dozens of organdy blouses of tissue paper crispness with ruffles rippling down the front or short sleeved georgette blouses trimmed with edgings of fine valenciennes lace.

White hats appear in models which vary from small toques to wide brimmed designs. Flower caps with deep visors covered entirely in white violets and broad brimmed white straws finished with a dark band about the crown appear on warm days, while many black straws are trimmed with a white grosgrain ribbon or white pique flower.

Many black or navy blue printed crepes for afternoon wear are peppered with white figures such as stars, leaves, birds or ribbon scrolls, while a number of black afternoon outfits are brightened by some such touch as a white lining in the cowl collar of a short black satin afternoon coat topping a dress of the same material.

White steps out at night too. White capes of organdy, linen or fox top colorful evening gowns; printed chintz dresses are splashed with white figures and printed linen dance frocks finished with white organdy hems. Even old-fashioned white petticoats appear, one black organza gown being worn over a white organdy petticoat trimmed with narrow lace edging.

A trousseau tea was the fascinating affair enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Z. L. Buffington, with their daughter, Miss Doyne Buffington, a much feted bride-elect, whose marriage was celebrated Thursday morning, July eleventh, as the gracious hostess.

Receiving with the hostess were her mother, and two sisters, Mrs. F. B. Wisinger and Miss Louise Buffington.

The handsome wedding gifts viewed by the guests included a dinner set of white wedgewood china, monogrammed silver table service, fostoria crystal, a hand crocheted bedspread, a hand-quilted bedspread, linens for each room of the house, dainty lingerie, and a check from employes of the Louisiana Central Lumber company.

Among the wardrobe models attracting attention were an aquamarine blue chiffon dinner dress with silver accessories, a pastel blue crepe tailleur with broad lapels of white ruffled organdie, a white corded silk sports frock with nautical trim, a lilac lace model, the beautiful navy blue wedding dress and accessories, exquisite white and colored lace trimmed gowns and a pale blue chiffon negligee.

Miss Buffington was becomingly dressed on this occasion in an afternoon model of navy figured chiffon.

In the dining room, Miss Dora Cooksey welcomed the guests, and assisted in the refreshment courtesies. Mrs. C. L. Moore, Jr., of Monroe, charmingly presided over the punch service. The table was overlaid with a beautiful lace cloth. Salvers of open faced sandwiches and tiny cakes were placed for the convenience of guests.

Throughout the afternoon a concourse of friends filled the hospitable home, among whom were: Mrs. T. W. Beauchamp, Mrs. S. D. Howard, Mrs. Eugenia Bush, Mrs. Henry Mitchell, Mrs. W. O. Case, Mrs. V. E. Lewis, Mrs. J. D. Stuart, Mrs. F. A. Minard, Mrs. E. L. Kraft, Mrs. E. M. Steeley, Mrs. R. D. White, Mrs. U. N. Bradford, Mrs. Mae Box, Mrs. J. W. Clarkson, Mrs. T. E. Skorvin, Mrs. J. M. ON DISPLAY HERE ONE WEEK ONLY—The Original Electrolux that was used in the Dafoe Hospital for the Dionne Quintuplets.

ON May 28, 1934, the world was electrified by a message flashed from the remote Canadian village of Corbeil. Quintuplets were born . . . and living . . . for the first recorded time.

Though their birthplace was almost beyond the reach of civilization, these babies have received during the past year the utterly dependable food protection that only modern automatic refrigeration can provide. Forty-eight hours after orders were given in New York, a New Air-Cooled Electrolux, operated with kerosene, was at work cooling the human milk rushed from Toronto and Montreal to feed these newborn babes.

This kerosene-operated Electrolux is the same nationally advertised refrigerator that is already serving more than half a million modern American families. In the cities it is run by a tiny gas flame . . . in the country, beyond the gas mains, by a wickless glow-type kerosene burner. Listed at the left are some of the vital advantages of this most modern of refrigerators.

CHARPTER XIX

Katharine was in the hall, curled up on a window seat. She brushed her hand across her eyes as the doctor appeared.

"Oh, John, I think I must have dozed off just for an instant. I had the most awful dream . . ."

His face startled her. It was so drawn. "Johnny, she isn't—she hasn't . . .?"

He could not speak. Katharine crouched low, as if to ward off a blow.

Dr. Kaye spoke slowly, as one who is deadly weary. "We pulled through," he said. "She's going to get well."

Katherine crumpled against the window frame. Her creamy silk evening frock was wrinkled. Her eyes had great hollows under them. "Oh, John, thank God! You did it—we owe it all to you."

He shrugged his shoulders. "It was the least I could do."

"You mean because you took us to the club and she saw Gibbs there? Why, that was fate—"

"Not exactly," said John Kaye, rather dryly. "You see I happened to know he was one of the habitues . . . I hear gossip around town."

"It's taught me something," Katherine said, on a long, shuddering breath of exhaustion. "It's taught me never to interfere with human destiny That, after all, is God's business . . ."

If only we could all learn that lesson so early," said the man wryly. "Come along now. Time for you to get some sleep. Zoe is resting quietly."

"Does her mother know?"

"I sent the nurse to tell her five minutes ago."

"Then I must have been asleep," marveled Katherine. "And I thought I'd never sleep again till I was sure. What weak creatures we humans are, John! You must have thought so when you came out of that room a moment ago and saw me dozing."

"I thought . . ." he paused and smiled that peculiarly winning smile of his. "Never mind what I thought."

Katherine went home again, tiptoeing through the quiet house, through the dew-soaked garden. The morning seemed new-minted for her especial pleasure. It was a fresh gift. Never before had she realized how divinely sweet a morning could be.

Zoe's convalescence was slow. No one but John Kaye and Katherine knew what really had happened that terrible night. Some columnist from the city printed an item to the effect that "Gibbs Larkin took it on the chin from a certain prominent medico at the Blue Sky club." Katherine, reading it, trembled. But there were no further repercussions from the incident. Gibbs evidently had not been seriously hurt and, wherever he was, he had the sense to keep out of Zoe's path now.

Later Katherine read his name in the sailing lists. Bound for Plymouth and Havre. She wondered if Cissy Malotte the blues singer, were on board the boat also.

The day came when Zoe was allowed to walk in the garden. She seemed thinner, more thoughtful than before. Her close brush with death had sobered her, changed her from the laughing, rather frivolous girl she had been into a quieter woman. Katherine was conscious of being drawn to her as to a younger sister.

For the moment thoughts of Michael Heatheroe were pushed into the background of Katherine's mind. She saw him almost daily. Sometimes he rode at her side; sometimes not. But their relationship was now on a firmer basis. Katherine no longer felt it necessary to be stiff and offhand with him. Every day she saw about him some quality that she liked and admired more.

"Who says men and women cannot be friends?" she demanded of Dr. Kaye one rainy Sunday. Bertine and her father were at the country club for tea. Katherine was exquisite in soft country tweeds, her fair hair curled about her face in a nimbus of ringlets.

"I don't know. Who does?" John Kaye returned lazily. Ellen had kindled a fire in the library grate, for the afternoon was cool as well as damp—a curious day for August—and Katherine sat on a low hassock, poking idly at the embers with one of the fire tools.

"Oh, I don't know. Everybody!" Katherine offered vaguely, smiling to herself. The man watched her with interest, balancing a teacup in one hand, the other occupied with a cigaret.

"Generalizations are always stupid," the doctor said idly.

"I love this," Katherine went on, with animation, including the fire and the tea tray in the wave of her hand. "It's pleasant to be shut in like this, with rain pounding against the windows and beating at the door." She smiled a secret smile thinking of the day she and Michael Heatheroe had been sheltered in the wayside cabin. Michael had been angry at her that day. Why? Some day, perhaps, she would know. He had never spoken to her in that way since.

"Pleasant, indeed. You never can get this feeling in a city apartment," mused Dr. Kaye. "You have to have the noise of tree branches bending in the wind and the sweep of water pounding on rocks and maybe the lighthouse bell tolling occasionally to give you a taste of real drama, in the storm. Katherine," he digressed suddenly, putting his cup down, "you have been happier of late, haven't you? Or do I imagine it? Somehow you and Bertine seem to be hitting it off better than you did."

"Oh, yes. Bertine is all right," Katharine said politely. It wouldn't do to tell John that the reason she was able to bear her stepmother's irritating ways, her trick of whining and "fussing" at everything was because she had found a new outlet for her energies and affections. The Merser house was open to her now whenever Bertine made home unbearable. Violet Merser was her confidante . . . and Katharine loved the children, too, as she hadn't dared to love anyone for years. But if Bertine knew how often she sought out the little white house in the hills behind Innicock, she would be sure to interfere.

How grand it would be, Katharine thought, if Michael Heatheroe were to come walking in that door this very instant. She would say, "Tea, Michael?"

She would say, "I'm sorry, but do you take sugar and cream? I don't seem to remember . . ."

But she could never ask Michael Heatheroe to her home. Her stepmother would never allow it. Bertine, for all her smiles and apparent amiability, ruled the Strykhurst menage with a rod of iron. Her portly husband did exactly as she wished; in fact, he often thought, said Katharine rather contemptuously to herself, exactly what his wife told him to think.

Michael Heatheroe did not "belong."

"Who is he?" Bertine would say, with a lift of the eyebrow. "Where did he come from and who are his people?"

Well, some day Katharine would have a place of her own. She could ask her own friends there, as often as she liked. No one would dare to criticize then; or, if they did, she would not listen.

"Wool-gathering, Princess Kitsy?"

She smiled at the lean, ascetic-looking man across the hearth.

"I guess so. You used to call me that when you first came here, John. 'Princess Kitsy.' You were a very grand young man and I was in pigtails."

"A funny child you were, too," said John Kaye. "Just like a prickly pear. I tried so hard to make you smile."

"Was I that bad?" cried the girl.

"Well, you were afraid of people. Shy—no, it wasn't exactly shyness. Distrust, I'm afraid. Poor little girl!"

Her throat tightened, her voice thickened as she said, "Don't, Doctor John. You'll have me bursting into tears."

"Well, you've changed a lot, any how," said the man. "You're not afraid of anyone any more. That's the stuff, Katharine. Look life in the face and tell 'em all to go to hell."

"Good advice," said Katharine, smiling.

Lights flashed up in the overhead fixture and Bertine Strykhurst bustled in.

"What are you two doing, mooning here in the dark? You ought to get into your things and take a brisk walk," cried Bertine. "Katharine doesn't take enough exercise. That's why she droops around so half-alive."

Angry words sprang to the girl's lips and were suppressed. Dr. Kaye looked at her warningly.

"I played three sets of tennis in the broiling sun yesterday," Katharine said, keeping her tone good-humored with an effort. "And I rode horseback in the morning. Doesn't that count?"

Bertine gave her own superior little laugh.

"Oh, I guess we know why all the young ladies in town have taken to riding of late. I guess we could tell a thing or two about that."

Katharine clenched her hands. With an effort she controlled her voice. "Really!"

Bertine turned to Dr. Kaye as if for understanding and sympathy. "You wouldn't believe how silly the girls are nowadays about the first decent-looking male creature in breeches. Why, I heard today that Sally Moon is going to marry the fellow."

"Marry whom?" the doctor asked.

"Why, that young man who runs the riding place," cried Bertine, in triumph. "That chap who calls himself Heatheroe."

John Kaye, glancing at Katharine, was shocked by the drawn look on her face.

"Why, there's something here," he said to himself, in surprise. "This means something to her."

Terminology Of Clothing Dictated By Screen City

HOLLYWOOD, July 13.—If you've been used to calling your newest dress "an amusing little number" better stop it. Orry-Kelly doesn't approve.

Dresses, says the big Irishman who does designs for Warner Brothers, First National and Cosmopolitan pictures, may be smart, beautiful, unusual, or ugly, but they are never "amusing." The word, in connection with clothes, is one of his major pet peeves.

Orry-Kelly was picking out his materials for fall. The salesmen stood up and tossed swatches of lovely fabrics at him, chanting their praises, while the designer, lounging in an arm-chair, selected some, tossed others aside, and soon became half buried under a shimmering pile of silks, satins and brocades the while he nonchalantly condemned or endorsed each sample with a terse Orry-Kelly phrase.

"Everything is going to be very shimmering for fall," he confided, as he picked out a black and gold brocade for an evening wrap for Claire Dodd. ("No, that one's too 'Pasadena' —and that one's too 'Winter Garden,'" he interrupted, tossing two more condemned fabrics aside) and then went on. . . .

"But don't say they're metallic—that's been done before. The new materials, rather, have gold and silver threads, shot through other fabrics . . . glistening . . . radiant . . . but no, not metallic."

In illustration, he held up a blue metalasse interwoven with silver, that he had bought for Ruby Keeler; a metal and silk combination that looked like red-plaid gingham; and a lovely, heavy crepe interwoven with cellophane. And it was true . . . they were a world apart from the old, stiffened metal clothes, and yet they did glisten . . .

Taffeta With Metal Threads

"Many of the newer materials also have an old-fashioned note," Orry-Kelly went on. "Every house has brought out a taffeta for fall, expecting the bouffant silhouette to continue. But they're more supple; won't crack; are often two-toned; and come in heavenly colors mixed with gold or silver threads—and pure gold, at that.

"How are these names for bringing back memories?—Noiseless chenille taffeta . . . alpaca . . . velour-woven silk . . . cashmere . . . moire . . . silk twill . . . and tricotine? They're all back in exciting new forms. And the velvets, printed, raised, even changeable . . . yes, we're having an old-world revival in fall materials, and no mistake.

For Marion Davies, the designer has purchased a lovely blue velvet with a taffeta-back in yellow that seeps through the pile with shimmery effect. For himself, for a summer suit, he took a cloth called "Samoural" . . . pure silk that looks like heavy, non-crushable linen, in desert sand color, that would be well combined with brown for a shirt-maker dress.

Add to new hair styles . . . the Genevieve Tobin bob . . . hair flat on the crown, like a monk . . . edges curled forward in a Roman-wreath effect . . . and the long, turned-up bob of Jean Muir . . . hair swept off the face and caught at the temple with two flat, silver-filigree clips.

"Where did you get that hat?" is the refrain everybody's shooting at Ann Dvorak . . . Ann designs her own . . . and the latest, believe us, is "sump'n." She cut the pleating off a dress . . . cut the brim off a hat . . . and then put the pleating round the crown that was left, finishing off with a clump of flowers in front . . . and voila! a hat to make an entrance in!

Marian Marsh, in a white frock with a bandana-blouse and wide collar of navy blue with raised wool stars . . . hat slanting from a high peak and trimmed in navy print . . . June Travis, in a printed dress under a navy redingote with wide patent leather belt and navy sailor hat . . .

June Gale, with Hoot Gibson, all in white, with a red band and tassels on her turned-down white felt hat . . . Genevieve Tobin, sporting a handsome pair of copper clips in huge anchors, on a white sports suit . . .

At Elissa Landi's for tennis, Sunday afternoon . . . Jean Muir forsaking her Grecian modes for a navy blue sleeveless sweater, white silk pique blouse with Tuxedo front, white skirt, and blue plaid taffeta scarf . . . Elissa herself all in white, sweater, skirt and hair ribbon . . .

Mary Brian, at the train, bidding Dick Powell farewell as he left for New York, was very fetching in a bright red swagger coat over a printed dress . . . Mrs. Frank Borzage, same group, in a black single-breasted suit made elaborate with a spreading white lace fischu, white hat and furs . . .

Anita Louise wears a robin's egg blue sports dress of coolie cloth, with brown rope belt, carved brown wooden buttons, and bandana collar of brown, tan, yellow and tangerine stripe, tied in back under the small collar . . . a Jean Carol model . . .

For evening wear . . . anyway for little brunettes like herself . . . Olivia de Haviland favors bright red . . .

LOCAL MAN FILES SUIT AGAINST FUNERAL HOME

Right to continue operating the Roseneath Funeral Home of Shreveport, pending the outcome of a suit, was obtained in the Caddo district court this week by Lonnie B. Kilpatrick and Mrs. N. Kilpatrick, both of Shreveport, who were made defendants in a sequestration action filed by C. S. Brown of Monroe, president of the Co-operative Undertakiing company.

Judge Cecil Morgan of the Caddo district court, signed the order granting to the defendants the right to operate the funeral home upon the posting of a $25,000 bond.

The business was seized by Deputy Sheriff J. A. Wynn of Caddo parish and Mr. Brown was placed in active charged several days ago. The judicial writ was issued on petition of Brown who in a suit directed against the Roseneath Funeral Home, Inc., Lonnie B. Kilpatrick, his wife, Mrs. N. Kilpatrick and Maude J. Taylor, alleged that he was the owner of the physical properties of the company and also of the lease on the premises on Marshall street in Shreveport, where the home is located.

Claudette Colbert Plays Different Role In 'Private Worlds'

Karloff And Lugosi In 'The Raven' At Capitol

Thrills Abound In Adaptation Of Edgar Allen Poe's Classic

If you can picture the monster of "Frankenstein" and the vampire of "Dracula" vieing with each other for horror honors, you can anticipate the chills and thrills that are packed into Universal's "The Raven," opening today at the Capitol theater.

Suggested by Edgar Allan Poe's immortal classic, this film boasts the combined master mystery talents of Karloff (Frankenstein) and Bela Lugosi (Dracula). These two chill chasers are co-starred in a story adapted to the screen by David Boehm and featuring in the supporting cast Irene Ware, Lester Matthews' Samuel Hinds, Inez Courtney and many others.

The plot concerns the mental flights of a famous surgeon who is a Poe addict and who, like the great poet is of a morbid, brooding turn of mind. "The Raven"always fascinated him, to the extent of having a stuffed replica of this bird standing beside him on his desk. The shadow of this bird of ill-omen predominates the theme of the story, which actually begins when its principal character, a notorious criminal hiding from the police, comes to the doctor to have his face changed.

Promising to perform this difficult operation, the mad doctor betrays his patient and holds him in his grip until he does his bidding in a diabolic plan he has conceived. Into their lives comes a beautiful girl, over whom the raving doctor casts a spell, while her father and sweetheart attempt to save her. The story builds to heights of terror culminating in a most amazing and thrilling climax.

Fraught with danger and mysticism, "The Raven" abounds with intense suspense from beginning to end. It is indeed a worthy successor to "Frankenstein" and "Dracula."

DOG LOCKED IN BUILDING SOUNDS BURGLAR ALARM

CHOUDRANT, La., July 13.—(Special)—A burglar alarm in the store owned by J. A. O'Neal here sounded shrilly in the afternoon and the community came to life with a start.

Residents hurriedly gathered about the store, ready to nab the burglar when he came out of the store.

Someone peered through the glass front door and got a glimpse of the intruder.

It was "Moms," pet bulldog owned by C. L. Mondart.

Mr. O'Neal unknowingly locked the dog in his store Friday noon when he left on a business trip to Monroe.

Later the dog decided it about time to return home and sought about for a means of escape. In doing so it evidently pulled one of the alarm wires.

"Moms" seemed to enjoy the excitement she had created and paid no notice to the confusion of the moment.

Star's New Picture At Paramount

Charles Boyer, Joan Bennett And Joel McCrea In Big Cast

In her first motion picture appearance since she won the Motion Picture academy award for 1934, Claudette Colbert proves her right to that prize and again demonstrates her startling versatility in a role entirely different from her past ones. The picture is Walter Wanger's psychological love drama, "Private Worlds," which opened at the Paramount theater yesterday.

Cast in the leading role of a daring and intelligent picture that sweeps aside all the old illusions about love to show the inhibitions, complexes and repressions that are the true villains of romance, Miss Colbert appears as a trimly efficient, cool and capable woman doctor; a woman seemingly without personal affections but with a great love for the suffering.

Miss Colbert and Joel McCrea are carrying on important scientific work in their posts at a hospital for the insane when the appointment of a new doctor, Charles Boyer, as head of the hospital, disrupts their little world.

McCrea is attached to his quiet and dependent little wife, Joan Bennett, but he is lured from her by Boyer's vampire sister. The antagonism between Miss Colbert and Boyer flares up. Changes in hospital routine causes riots in the danger ward and a serious situation.

Finally, Joan Bennett, who has learned of her husband's infidelity, collapses and is faced with a possible loss of her mind. In her desperate and successful efforts to unsnarl the tangle of all their lives, Miss Colbert reveals herself in her true colors. She learns that she has taken refuge from love in the memory of a dead sweetheart and that her apparent hatred for Boyer actually conceals a growing love for him.

Phyllis Bottome's successful novel of the same name furnished the original for "Private Worlds," which was skillfully directed by Gregory La-Cava.

Joel McCrea and Joan Bennett render particularly praiseworthy performances in roles that give them ample opportunity for real display of their talents. Sam Hinds, Jean Rouverol and Big Boy Williams stand out in minor roles.

Screen Life In Hollywood

By Dan Thomas

HOLLYWOOD.—A generous portion of America's entertainment next winter will be grand opera. From Broadway to Main street you will hear more classical music than ever before. And you will hear it in the flicker theaters.

It seems a bit incongruous to be thinking about winter while the thermometer outside soars to dizzy heights. But that's a part of the movie racket. The films being produced now are for fall and winter release. And there will be many grand operas among them.

Spurred on by the phenomenal success of Grace Moore's "One Night of Love," the film industry has become decidedly opera-minded. Virtually every good looking grand opera star in America has been corralled by the movie makers.

Personal appearance has been made a vital factor by the film moguls, however. While voice quality is important, it must be accompanied by good looks.

Long Line Of Talent

Miss Moore already has another picture, "Love Me Forever," ready for a fall release. This production also will introduce Michael Bartlett, who came to Hollywood fresh from an engagement with the Philadelphia Opera company.

Preparation is being rushed on "Rose of the Rancho," which will star Gladys Swarthout.

Lily Pons is here to make "Love Song."

Nino Martini already is at work in "Here's to Romance."

Lawrence Tibbett and Marion Talley are due soon for pictures as yet untitled.

And don't forget Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, the stars of "Naughty Marietta." They'll be at work on another operetta soon.

Whether Mr. and Mrs. Public will accept such a large dose of grand opera is still to be determined. The movie bosses believe they will—if all of them are as good as "One Night of Love."

Furthermore, it is predicted that these films will reawaken the public's interest in opera as presented behind the footlights—an interest that has been waning for several years.

Joker Accommodated

They tell this story on Roger Pryor. A few nights ago Roger started home from a party very late. En route to his house he got sleepy, so he pulled off the street and parked in front of what looked like a shabby hut.

Prompted by a strange sense of humor, he wrote a note, "Wake me at 9—with orange juice, coffee, fried eggs and toast," and stuck it in the car door before going to sleep. Promptly at 9 o'clock he was awakened by a cheery voice, and a tray with his complete order was shoved at him. He had parked in front of a drive-in lunch stand.

Believe In Signs, Now

Jeanette MacDonald wanted to give a swimming party, but, having moved into her new home just two days earlier, she was short of towels. So when she issued the invitations, she added, "Bring your own towel." Nelson Eddy and Gene Raymond thought it was a gag, so they arrived towelless. And did they howl when, after spending most of the afternoon in the swimming pool, they discovered Jeanette had meant what she said!

Incidentally, you should see Nelson give an impersonation of a monkey. It's a yell.

Drummer's Lass

Since Betty Grable acquired a yen for a drummer in one of our local night spots, everyone around town has been kidding her about learning to play the drums. Every time one of the younger fellows sees her he says, "I'm learning to play the drums, Betty."

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

HOMER, La., July 13.—(Special)—Officers of Pate-Thomas post here of the American Legion have been elected for the ensuing year. They are C. B. Kitchens, commander; Chris Lay, first vice-commander; O. M. Kerlin, second vice-commander; Otts Ford, adjutant; Claud White, service officer; Brodie Pugh, chaplain; and B. E. Nelson, membership chairman.

This Week's Movie Program

(Bottom left) Gloria Stuart, Ross Alexander and Ruth Donnelly have the featured roles in the rollicking comedy of young love and its jealousies "Maybe It's Love," coming to the Capitol Tuesday and Wednesday. Frank McHugh, Helen Lowell and Phillip Reed are also cast prominently.

NEW WINN PARISH AGENT BEGINS DUTIES JULY 15

WINNFIELD, La., July 13.—(Special)—H. E. Crawford, new Winn parish agricultural agent, has arrived here to begin his duties on July 15. He succeeds Carl E. Kennedy, who has been transferred to East Baton Rouge parish after three years in Winn parish.

Mr. Crawford has been connected with the Montgomery high school as agricultural teacher for the past three years.

More BUILDING Necessary for Entire Nation!

SURVEY SHOWS NEED FOR HOME MORTGAGE CASH

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—From a survey of 36 counties in northern Ohio, with over 100 cities and towns reporting, 5,836 prospects for new buildings have been found involving a need for approximately $30,000,000 in mortgage money, according to E. H. Blair, district director for the Federal Housing administration.

The results of the survey in the Cleveland area are said to be typical. In that city 17 architects have 103 new building prospects who need $3,547,000 to carry out proposed construction. Fourteen building materials dealers have on hand 160 prospects who propose to spend $615,000. Fifty-one contractors and builders have accumulated 853 prospects for work involving the expenditure of $2,963,000. Eighty-nine real estate firms have 1,664 prospects on file representing possible transactions amounting to $7,891,000. Architects believe that possibly 70 per cent of the appraised value of proposed new building requires financing. The high average of $35,000 per prospect is based on their past experience of ratio of inquiries to new business possible. Cleveland architects' prospects run in a higher price bracket and indicate a market for $25,000 homes.

Building material dealers report a demand for $6,500 homes, contractors and builders for $5,000 homes, and real estate firms for homes in a $7,000 class. In smaller cities a genuine demand for homes ranging in cost from $4,000 to $5,000 is indicated, according to Mr. Blair. The greatest demand, he stated, is from the moderate income group for homes ranging from $4,000 to $6,000.

Find Attic Play Rooms Are Useful

When renovating or building a new home, one of the most sensible uses for waste space in the basement, attic, or other portion of the house is to install a sanitary playroom, according to welfare authorities.

A playroom can be inexpensively built in practically any home where space is available. Nothing gives more pleasure than planning for the comfort, joy, well-being, health, and education of children.

It is important, of course, that the space allotted for the playroom be dry, comfortably heated, well ventilated, properly lighted, and have windows for the entrance of the health-giving rays of the sun.

The finish of the room and its furnishings are the most important from the children's standpoint. Sometimes it is possible to install a fireplace for added wormth, cheer, and comfort. There should be built-in book shelves where books suitable for children of various ages may be kept. Then seats may be built under the windows on both sides of the fireplace. They may have drawers under the seat, or the seat may be so constructed that the top may swing upward on hinges, thereby providing space beneath the seat for use in storing toys and equipment.

Wall decorations should be chosen with great care. The color scheme should be bright and cheery. Pictured wallpapers are available.

A blackboard of suitable size should be available on a well-lighted wall space. On another wall space may be painted the alphabet and numerals, or the letters and numerals may be on blocks which can be removed and inserted in slides. Some space may be devoted to a large wall map of the United States, or the state in which the child lives.

The floor should be warm and smooth so that the children can play on it. It may be outlined in paint in different places for playing games, such as sand-bag, hop-scotch, and the like.

Loans for modernizing a portion of a home into a children's playroom are available through private financial institutions approved by and cooperating with the federal housing administration, which is insuring such loans under the national housing act.

PINKHAM HAS NEW BOOKLET ON HOME

Ten Million Free Copies To Be Distributed Throughout Nation

Working in harmony with the federal government's effort to revive the heavy industries, the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine company is encouraging home renovating and building by printing and distributing ten million booklets entitled "Let's Fix Up the House."

This is a 32 page booklet with many illustrations and an attractive cover in two colors. The first page explains briefly how home owners may borrow money for repairs under the federal housing act. The rest of the booklet contains practical suggestions for the spending of this money to the best advantage. Surely every home owner can find some new and usable idea among the many listed.

Nor is the value of this booklet confined to those who own their homes. It also contains helpful suggestions for home decoration arranged under such captions as "Seven Ways to Make a Room Look Larger," "Color in the Home," "A Room for a Boy," "Lighting Your Home," "Your Bedroom Closet," etc. All these ideas are just as useful to tenants as they are to home owners. The Pinkham Medicine Company, which has published thirty million booklets a year for many years expects this to be one of its most popular numbers.

"Let's Fix Up the House" will be distributed from door to door in every city of the United States and most of the towns. Approximately three thousand local distributors will be employed and the completion of the campaign will take about four months. If you cannot wait for the distribution to reach your town, you may obtain a free copy by writing direct to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. at Lynn, Mass.

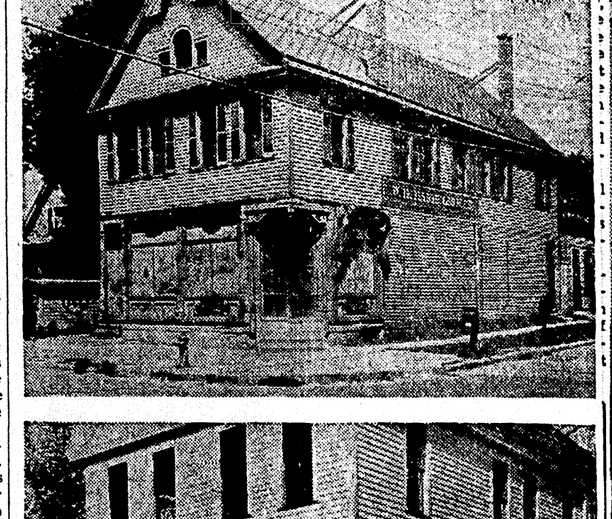

BUILT-IN MIRRORS FOUND CONVENIENT

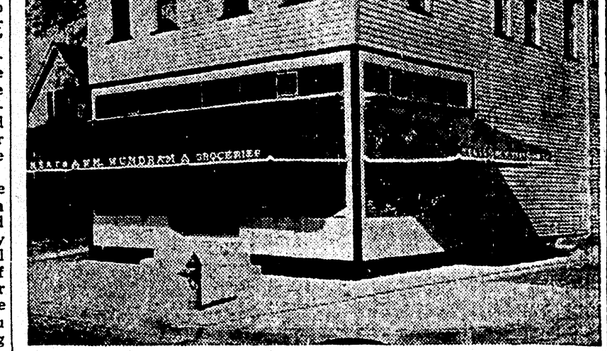

Built-in mirrors are valuable aids in maintaining personal appearance, and, properly placed, they contribute to the decoration of a home and tend to give the impression of added size to a room.

In bedrooms or dressing rooms, if a mirror does not fit in with the general scheme of decoration or surroundings, it may be attached to the inside of the closet door.

They are very essential but must be used with discrimination.

For Better Business

Good Start

Total Of $90,000 Has Been Pledged By Hawaiian

HONOLULU, Hawaii.—Pledges for modernization projects totaling $90,000 were obtained in Honolulu within the first 7 days of the program, according to Ray Semmes, associate director of the Federal Housing administration for the Hawaiian Islands.

The program began April 8. By noon April 15, according to Mr. Semmes, the total had been reached.

"I believe this to be a unique record of achievement for any section of the United States," the message continued. "Due to coorporation of the chamber of commerce and other substantial citizens, was able to launch the campaign within 5 weeks after arrival. Honolulu officially extends appreciation to the Federal Housing administration program available here."

Joseph B. Poindexter, governor of the islands, and Mayor George Fred Wright, of Honolulu, each issued proclamations to commemorate the opening of the modernization program. Both the Democratic central committee and the Republican central committee are supporting the movement, it is reported, and legislation is being drafted favorable to the mutual mortgage insurance plan.

Four approved lending institutions are participating in the modernization activity in Honolulu: The Mutual Building and Loan Association of Hawaii, Bank of Hawaii, Bishop National Bank, and the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Honolulu.

MONTANA REPORTS MANY APPLICANTS

HELENA, Mont.—Rapid development of applications under the mutual mortgage insurance plan of the Federal Housing Administration is shown in the records of the state better housing headquarters here.

One hundred applications for insured mortgages have been received since January 21. "It required approximately 130 days to reach the one-hundredth application. During the 10 days in January and throughout February and March," said the state director, "this office received but four applications for insured mortgage loans. We received 37 in April and 59 in May. This increase is quite encouraging, and we are set for 100 applications during June."

J-M Roof Coatings are good medicine for composition roofs that are drying out and beginning to crack. They penetrate to the very heart of the roofing felt, re-vitalizing it, and restoring all its waterproof qualities—just what the roof needs to be good for many more years of service.

By repeating this process every few years, you can keep your roof in prime condition at very little cost. J-M Coatings also give first-class protection to metal roofs that are showing signs of wear.

Use J. M. Fibrous Enamel (containing asbestos fibres) when the roof is in a worn condition. For ordinary conditions, use Regal Roof Coating (without fibres).

All Johns-Manville Coatings can be applied with a large brush. Full directions on every container.

Early Revival Of Private Building On Sound Basis, McDonald's Theme

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The principal aim of the home-financing program of the federal housing administration is to bring about an early revival of private-home building activity on a healthy, enduring basis, according to Acting Administrator Stewart McDonald, who considers that increases in building during the first months of 1935 indicate a "splendid improvement."

The acting administrator pointed to first-quarter increases of 131 per cent over 1934 in the number of families housed in new buildings as shown by building permits for more than 700 cities. He also considers it significant that contracts awarded for residential building in April 1935 were higher than in any other month since 1931.

"We have reached the point at last," Mr. McDonald said, "where the pent-up demand has pushed open the gates of the abnormally low residential building of the last four or five years, which has been inadequate to take care of the needs of increasing population or to take the place of old and obsolete structures which have been passing out of use."

Other indications of improvement are mentioned by Mr. McDonald: General improvement in the home-financing situation; virtual elimination of usurious and unsound mortgage practice by the establishment of the long-term, fully amortized mortgage as provided in the mutual mortgage insurance plan of the federal housing admiinstration; the institution of sound methods of appraisal valuation; and the application of certain elemental standards in site planning, design and construction of new buildings.

It is the opinon of Mr. McDonald that private capital to a degree has become convinced that residential mortgages, particularly with the protection afforded by the mutual mortgage insurance lan, offer a unique field for the profitable and secure investment of funds.

"Through the activities of 7,900 local better-housing campaign committees the American public is becoming more and more 'housing conscious'," Mr. McDonald said. He approximates the national housing deficiency at more than a million homes, which he describes as a potential market for building and repair stimulus in the future, with attendant benefits to the construction industry, architects, building constructions, and thousands of related lines of human effort.

QUESTION BOX

Q.—Is there any sort of covering for basement pipes to keep them from sweating which will take paint readily?

A.—Yes, indeed; one of the most popular types of pipe covering has an aluminum finish especially made for painting. This covering may be painted any color to harmonize with the color scheme of the basement. Thus there is a triple advantage in insulating pipes—conservation of heat, prevention of the formation of condensation, and improved appearance.

Q.—How large an area is needed for a tennis court?

A.—The official outside dimensions for a double tennis court is 120 by 60 feet. Many private courts are made 110 by 50 feet, but they will be found to cramp fast play.

Q.—What is a septic tank?

A.—It is a specially designed tank which is buried in the ground and into which domestice sewage is discharged from the house. Decomposition takes place in a chamber so designed that air does not come in contact with the sewage, harmful bacteria are destroyed, and the affluent filtered and discharged into a tile field through which it seeps into the ground. The tank should be of a design that has been approved by the state or local board of health and it should be installed in a manner that complies with their regulation. The liquid discharged from a properly designed septic tank is harmless and will not contaminate the soil.

Q.—Are water-pump systems for a summer cottage and electrical and gas equipment eligible under the conditions governing loans made by commercial banks and others under the regulations of the federal housing administration? I am thinking principally of automatic water heaters, but also of some incidental lighting fixtures.

A.—Yes—all three—provided they are installed as integral parts of the building and could be considered as non-movable or permanently installed. Water heaters and domestic systems may be financed through the low-rate modernization credit plan of the federal housing administration.

FARMERS COMPLY WITH HEALTH LAW

LOS ANGELES, Calif.,—Farmers are being forced to comply with health ordinances in order to insure a healthy meat and milk supply to this city.

As a result, many buildings will have to be repaired and many others will be moved. Two-room milk houses, which will involve the expenditure of between $125 and $500 per farmer, will be required.

The city veterinarian has requested copies of better housing literature to be furnished to inspectors of his department and will, in turn, urge the farmers to take advantage of the modernization credit plan.

Step Saving Theme In New Kitchen Idea

Housewives can save many steps every day by modernizing their kitchens. A general rule for efficient kitchen planning is to group as closely as possible the sink, range, and refrigerator, with working surface adjacent to each. This is best done by having a narrow kitchen with all floor space used to its best advantage. Wall space is best utilized for built-in cabinets which are most necessary in an efficient and modern kitchen.

Doors should be arranged in such a way as to allow persons to pass through the kitchen without hindering work being done there. Make sure that there is a table near the exterior door for the incoming groceries.

The desired location of a sink is directly below a window. This arrangement conserves wall space so necessary for built-in cabinets. It also gives the housewife a view of the exterior which greatly relieves the drudgery of her work. If a small playground is placed directly in front of the window, the housewife may watch the children at play, saving time and worry.

The cooking range is most convenient near the sink and a working surface. Since most cooked foods move directly to the dining table after dishing, it is advisable to place the range near the dining room door with a working surface for serving cooked foods adjacent to the door.

A refrigerator is best located near a working surface and the sink, since most groceries must be washed before storing, and foods in storage must be prepared before serving.

Broom and mop closets are very convenient near exterior or basement doors. Built-in ironing boards should be located so that the board is free from the shadow of the worker.

The knights of old were not physical giants. Museum collections of armor show very few steel suits large enough for the 20th century man of average size.

Location Is Important In Home Plans

The modern home buider recognizes the value of a good location and is becoming much more careful in its selection. Given a good sound structure, honestly built and well designed, its location will largely determine its value. Located in one place where properly protected by zoning regulations and adequate deed restrictions, its value will be protected, maintained and possibly enhanced. Located in another, where nuisances and other hazards are liable to encroach upon it, to make it undesirable, it values will be materially reduced. The federal housing administration recognizes these factors in its mortgage risk rating, and properties located in those neighborhoods which are suitably and adequately protected will receive higher ratings accordingly.

In this connection the prospective builder should consider the following: Stability of neighborhood; protection from adverse influence; adequacy of transportation; appeal of the neighborhood; sufficiency of utilities and conveniences; level of taxes and special assessments; proximity of civic, social and commercial center; the topography and special hazards of the neighborhood.

The home builder or buyer also will do well to remember that in addition to the characteristics of the property itself or of a neighborhood as such, the stability of the investment in a property depends upon an appropriate relationship between the property and its environment. A property, therefore, must be in harmony with neighboring properties.

While it is not advantageous to a property to be distinctl at variance with the standards of a neighborhood, it must be borne in mind that mere conformity is not a positive quality, and that conformity to low neighborhood standards does not justify favorable consideration.

Location exerts an extremely important influence in preserving the value of a home, a fact which is recognized by the system of appraisal utilized by the federal housing administration. Its system weighs these factors, affecting stability of value for residential properties, one against the other, to determine the probable stability of neighborhoods and for the particular site within it, for residential purposes. Careful thought concerning this matter by the prospective home builder will prove of great benefit in preserving his investment.

START BUILDING AFTER 20 YEARS

ANAMOOSE, N. D.—The first home to be built in this town in more than 20 years was recently begun. Population of Anamoose is 500. Its construction is said to have been suggested by the activity of the better housing program.

LABOR SHORTAGE HALTS CANVASSING

PHOENIX, Ariz.—An unprecedented situation has grown out of the modernization canvass here.

The house-to-house solicitation has been so successful that it has been, of necessity, stopped temporarily, as not a man in the building trades is available to do work, all being already employed, according to the associate director of the federal housing administration.

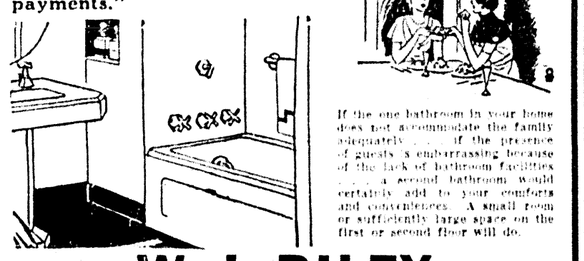

The largest building program since 1928 is now under way in Phoenix, according to the director.

CATHOLIC ORDER PLANS BARBECUE

Knights Of Columbus Will Be Guests; Bishop Is Invited Here

M. J. Cosgrove, grand knight of the local lodge of Knights of Columbus, plans an unusually interesting barbecue at 1919 DeSiard street at 8 p.m. Tuesday. The event will mark the opening of a campaign for membership for the local order. It will comprise "lady's night," the wives, daughters and sweethearts of members being entertained.

Mr. Crosgrove has sent a special invitation to the Most Reverend Daniel Desmond, bishop of the Alexandria diocese, to attend, together with District Deputy Matthews, of Shreveport, and priests from the surrounding country, including Rev. Father J. C. Marsh of Hodge and Rev. John Vandegaer of Monroe.

There will be an abundance of barbecued meats, soft drinks and a generally good time will be had by all, it was announced.

Those in charge state that the program will be one of the most interesting of its nature given here for a long time.

MASONIC CLUB BANQUETS AT HOTEL IN WINNSBORO

WINNSBORO, La., July 13.—(Special)—The Past Matrons' and Past Patrons' club of district No. 5 held a banquet at the Franklin hotel here recently. Mrs. Maude E. Wooten was toastmistress.

The following members were present: Miss Blanche Wilson, Sicily Island, president of the club; Mrs. Willie Lee Stodghill, Rayville, district deputy grand matron; Mrs. Arcadia McCoy, Rayville; Mrs. Wooten, Mangham; Mrs. Hattie Faye Walter, Winnsboro; Mrs. Arline Evans, Winnsboro; Mrs. Christine Broadway, Gilbert; Mrs. Leon McLelland, Sicily Island; Mrs. Katie D. Kemp, Sicily Island; Mrs. Zelia Cornick, Sicily Island; Charles Cornick, Sicily Island; C. R. Wilson, Sicily Island; E. D. Walter, Winnsboro; Jesse E. Stodghill, Rayville; and J. B. Evans, Winnsboro, past grand patron.

Musical selections were given by Mrs. Virginia Chapman, Mrs. Ruth Biggs and Mrs. Sunshine Logan.

Mrs. Matt Boughton, Mangham; Mrs. Biggs, Alto; Mrs. Logan, Archiband; and Mrs. Chapman, Archibald, were guests of the club.

IL DUCE'S SONS READY FOR WAR

As Italy seethes with preparations for the expected war with Ethiopia, Premier Mussolini's two eldest sons, Bruno, 17 (top), and Vittorio, 19 (below), have volunteered for service with their country's air force in east Africa. Both are licensed pilots. (Associated Press Photos)

EXPECT NO FIRING BY CIVIL SERVICE

Parish And City Employes Assured Of No Immediate Discharge

BATON ROUGE, La., July 13.—(AP)—Thousands of Louisiana state, parish and municipal employes brought under state civil service by one of Senator Huey P. Long's latest acts, were assured today there was no immediate prospect of their losing their jobs as a result.

Along with the assurance, conveyed through civil service commission resolution disclaiming intention of any immediate employment shake-ups, went an injunction that they would be governed by "efficiency and honesty, not politics."

The commission's secretary, Representative Lorris M. Wimberly of Bienville parish, saying the civil service office had been besieged by inquiries, announced a commission resolution stating that the sole objective "for the present" was the prevention of "abuses in employment and dismissals."

The resolution said the commission would require notice of dismissals or substantial pay reductions, and that any employe affected by either might appeal to the commission.

The period in which an appeal may be taken was given as ten days, but it was stated that additional time might be allowed if the commission saw fit.

The act giving the civil service commission authority over all public employes in the state goes into effect July 28.

"The cardinal rule to be observed is that efficiency and honesty, not politics, shall govern public employes," the resolution declared.

CHOUDRANT WATERMELON CROP SHORT THIS YEAR

CHOUDRANT, La., July 13.—(Special)—The watermelon crop in this section is much shorter than in the past, according to C. L. Mondart, local agricultural instructor.

This was learned when Mr. Mondart made a recent survey to determine whether or not enough melons were being raised to ship them in carload lots. He found that farmers were able to dispose of their surplus melons to local buyers at a good price and that there was not a sufficient number to ship them away.

Last year five or six carloads were shipped from Choudrant.

RAMSAY'S HEIR PICKS UP TORCH

Malcolm MacDonald Makes His Own Career In British Politics

By Milton Bronner
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, July 13.—Malcolm MacDonald has beaten the curse. And all Britain is talking about it. At 34 he has his foot firmly placed on the ladder of preferment and seems fairly on the way to a career of his own, despite the fact that he is the son of a four-time prime minister of Great Britain.

It is the more usual fate of sons of British premiers and of American presidents to be so completely overshadowed by their famous fathers that they sink into comparative obscurity.

In the reshuffle of the cabinet which occurred after Stanley Baldwin succeeded Ramsay MacDonald as prime minister, Malcolm MacDonald was advanced from parliamentary under-secretary for the Dominions to fullfledged secretary for the Colonies. This was done partly because the new premier wished to have a certain representation of the Labor party in the national government, partly out of compliment to MacDonald the elder, but also very largely because the young man has really earned his own spurs.

Easier Road Than Father's

Life has treated him far more kindly than it did his father up to the time he was 34. The senior was born of poor Scotch peasant folk up in Lossiemouth and had to fight his own way up to the top. Malcolm had the preliminary advantage of being the son of a famous political leader who could afford to send his boy to Oxford university.

There at Queen's college he quickly made himself felt as student, as debater, as writer, as football player and as golfer. He was one of a debating team of three sent from his university on a trip to the United States, Canada, Australia and New Zealand. On this journey they engaged in 67 debates with college teams of those countries. Malcolm MacDonald also made talks on the side, preaching the Socialist faith that was in him. All in all, he made 250 speeches on that trip.

Graduated from Oxford, he acted as secretary to his father during the naval conference at London and as liaison officer with the press during the London imperial conference. Entering politics now for good, he ran for parliament as a Socialist in Nottinghamshire in 1929 and won. It was one of the first times that a candidate of his party gained a seat there.

Sympathetic parliamentarians noted a marked contrast between Malcolm and Ramsay Mac. The father is tall; his son is on the short side. The father rolls his r's with a delightful Scotch accent; the son employes the mellower tones of Oxford.

When MacDonald's Labor cabinet resigned in 1931 to be followed by a coalition and later by a national government, both headed by himself, the son followed his father, breaking with the Labor party. Challenged by his constituency, Malcolm boldly said that, for one thing, blood was thicker than water. The great decision made by his father had required nerve and caused pain. The son did not want to add to the father's embarrassments. But, aside from that, he said he would have followed the premier because of the great issues confronting the country. He was re-elected.

Spoke For Government

In November, 1932, he was given a very great parliamentary honor. The debate was closing on the bill embodying the agreements made at the imperial conference at Ottawa. The measure had been under attack by the best speakers the liberals and socialists could muster. Malcolm MacDonald made the closing speech for the goernment. He had the joy of a packed house and a big affirmative vote for the bill. While his father, deeply moved, sat quietly in his seat, famous old stagers like Stanley Baldwin and Sir Austen Chamberlain rushed up to congratulate the young man. He had won his spurs.

In 1934 he went to Austrlia to attend the centenary celebrations as a delegate of the Empire Parliamentary association. He showed he had a wise head on young shoulers, delighting the Au 'ralians by saying:

"I am keeping my eyes open and my mouth shut."

It is predicted that this policy may mark his new career.

HONEYMOONERS LOST POINT

Niagara's roar was momentarily challenged as this man-made blast tore a 5,000-ton slice off Table Rock at the Canadian tip of Horseshoe falls and sent it crashing into the gorge below. Fifty thousand holiday visitors watched spellbound as a second blast reduced the ledge, often called "Honeymoon Point," to half its former size. The dynamiting was undertaken to guard against possible rock slides from a crack extending 200 feet along the table.

Work Relief Program

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Federal Works Progress Administration, under which projects for unemployment relief will be directed, has issued a general circular giving details of the program and the procedure which must be followed by local governing bodies in order to avail themselves of federal cooperation in carrying out public works projects. Copies of the circular are obtainable at the office of A. P. Lassiter, district director of the W. P. A., on the second floor of the postoffice building, Monroe. Contents of the circular will be printed in installments in this newspaper to acquaint the public with its provisions.)

Section 1. Purpose of Circular.—This circular is issued as a preliminary statement to acquaint prospective sponsors with the principles and procedures to be followed in selecting works progress administration projects under the emergency relief appropriation act of 1935. Information contained in this statement, and the forms included with it, are of a preliminary nature and subject to revision.

Section 2. The Work Relief Program.—It is the basic purpose of the work relief program to take persons off the relief rolls and put them to useful work in the shortest time possible. It is intended, as far as possible, to have such persons engaged at their usual occupations. Accordingly, the program of employment embraces many fields of activity, and covers all parts of the nation.

Public resolution No. 11, seventy-fourth congress, the emergency relief appropriation act of 1935, provides for the financing of the program and establishes rules, regulations, and penalties for violations. The president is granted broad powers in its execution.

Section 3. Works Progress Administration.—On May 6, 1935, the president issued executive order No. 7034, establishing the division of applications and information, the advisory committee on allotment, and the works progress administration. This order provides that the works progress administration shall be responsible to the president for the honest, efficient, speedy, and coordinated execution of the work relief program as a whole, and for the execution of that program in such a manner as to move from the relief rolls to work on projects or in private employment the maximum number of persons in the shortest time possible.

The works progress administration has the following powers and duties: (1) To establish and operate a division of progress investigation and to coordinate pertinent work of existing investigative agencies of the government, so as to insure the honest execution of the work relief program. (2) With the approval of the president, to require uniform periodic reports of progress, recommend appropriate measures for eliminating delay, and recommend termination of projects if they do not economically afford the amount of employment warranting their continuance. (3) With the approval of the president, to prescribe rules and regulations to assure that as many persons employed on all work projects as is feasible shall be persons receiving relief, and to govern the selection of such persons. (4) To formulate and administer a system of uniform periodic reports of the employment on such projects of relief and non-relief persons. (5) To investigate wages and working conditions and to make and submit to the president such findings as will aid the president in prescribing working conditions and rates of pay on projects.

This executive order further provides that the works progress administration shall recommend and carry on small useful projects designed to assure a maximum of employment in all localities.

The order also assigns accounting, disbursing, and purchasing functions to the United States department of the treasury, and control over all allotment of funds for administrative expenses to the bureau of the budget.

(Another installment will appear Monday.)

OFFICERS ARE NAMED

FARMERVILLE, La., July 13.—(Special)—Officers for the ensuing year have been elected by the Union Parish Police jury. They are G. E. Lindsey, president; L. J. Jarmon, vice-president; and Oscar Baughman, secretary-treasurer. The same standing committees that served last year were renamed.

CANNING CENTERS OPENED IN WINN

Seventeen Projects Sponsored By FERA Have Started Operations

WINNFIELD, La., July 13.—(Special)—Seventeen canning centers sponsored by the federal emergency relief administration have started operations in Winn parish. Fifteen are for white persons and two for negroes.

A leadership meeting was held in Winnfield recently, when instructions in canning were given managers of the centers by Miss Sue Ballance, Winn parish home demonstration agent, and Mrs. A. E. Gaar, ERA food adviser.

The centers will be operated from two to six days a week. Tomatoes, string beans and soup mixture will be the principal items canned during the first few weeks.

Managers who attended the meeting here are Mrs. Ethel Waller, Dodson; Mrs. Hilton Hammons, Gaar Mill; Mrs. Floyd Beavers, Sikes and Hebron; Miss Ruth Jordan, Hudson; Mrs. Macey O'Neal, South Winnfield; Mrs. J. W. Wilkerson, Joyce; Mrs. Florence Lay, Jordan Hill; Mrs. Cora Allen, Atlanta; Mrs. N. R. Bishop, Mount Zion; Mrs. Ethel Teddlie, Mars Hill; Mrs. Dena Kennedy, Cypress Creek; Miss Myrtle Bice, Calvin; Mrs. Ena Higgs, Hodge Mrs. Phein Huddleston, Huddleston; Letha West, Cedar; and Winnie Blackwood, Union Hill.

Five other centers are expected to be opened at an early date.

The huge German plane, DO-X, which made a trans-Atlantic flight in 1929, has been placed in a Berlin aviation museum.

DICK TRACY'S FRANTIC SEARCH FOR THE CAPTIVE TESS TRUEHEART, TAKES ON NEW IMPETUS WHEN THE LATEST CLEW IS ACCIDENTALLY UNCOVERED BY A TELEPHONE LINEMAN.

YOU SEE, MR. TRACY - I'M JUST A TELEPHONE LINEMAN - A "TROUBLE-SHOOTER"! MY PARTNER AND I KEEP ON THE GO ALL THE TIME, TESTING THE COUNTRY LINES AND CHECKING UP.

IT WAS AT THIS VERY POST THAT I WAS FISHING FOR A CROSS CIRCUIT WHEN I PICKED UP A DOT-DASH NOISE ON ONE OF THE WIRES - ...I THOUGHT NOTHING OF IT AT FIRST - UNTIL...

RECALLING SOME OF MY MORSE-CODE TRAINING - I LISTENED AS THE SIGNALS WERE REPEATED AND HEARD - "S O S.. FAIRGROUND STABLES - TESS."

HOW COULD SHE HAVE SENT SIGNALS LIKE THAT?

UNDER THE RIGHT CONDITIONS, A SHORT CIRCUIT ACROSS TWO LEAD-IN WIRES WOULD DO IT! OF COURSE YOU CAN'T TELL.

WE'VE ALREADY DONE THAT.

MEANWHILE - HELD PRISONER IN THE STABLE LOFT, TESS CONTINUES SENDING SIGNALS WITH THE CROSSED WIRES. UNAWARE THAT ALREADY THE TINY DOTS AND DASHES HAVE ATTRACTED ATTENTION.

MY FINGERS FEEL LIKE THEY'RE TORN TO SHREDS FROM UNTWISTING THE JOINT IN THIS WIRE - BUT IF THIS SIGNAL BRINGS HELP IT WAS WORTH IT.

TOUCHING ONE WIRE TO THE OTHER, SHE REPEATS THE MESSAGE OVER AND OVER.. DOT DOT DOT..DASH DASH..DOT DOT DOT. WITH JUST A RAY OF HOPE THAT SOME SORT OF SIGNAL IS BEING SENT.....
